Shell, Gulf To Toe Line

Shell Canada and Gulf Oil Canada said today they will join other oil companies in B.C. adhering to government price guidelines proclaimed by the cabinet Thursday.

The companies are two of three major petroleum firms that until now had refused to follow voluntarily a suggested ceiling on gasoline and heating oil price increases last winter.

Shell and Imperial Oil Ltd. both disagreed with the proclamation of Energy Act power linking adherence to guidelines with special grants to operators. However, Shell said: "Our position would be to obey the law and co-operate with the (energy) commission in making the system work."

Gulf Oil Canada Ltd. corporate affairs manager A. W. Torrell said: "When we receive this order, and it is written as I expect it to be, then we will comply."

The spokesman said Shell would respond when the company receives confirmation of the cabinet order and its accompanying regulations applying to the marketing of petroleum products.

He said Shell was not surprised by the action Thursday as the Energy Act is the only legislative vehicle available to make a previously planned system of consumer grants work.

The grants to oil companies will be available only to those firms that comply with the price guidelines.

Imperial and Standard Oil Co. of B.C. Ltd. did comply with the voluntary price restraint, while Shell, Gulf Oil Canada Ltd. and Texaco Canada Ltd. ignored the government request and allowed prices of gasoline to rise above the suggested 8-cent maximum per gallon. The ceiling set Thursday is 8 cents-a-gallon on both gasoline and furnace oil.

Imperial's corporate manager Cliff Goddard said "the only reason we are abiding by the guidelines is to comply with the anticipated law."

He disagreed the oil industry should be included with public utility companies under the Energy Act because oil companies are competitive and utilities are not.

The system of consumer grants is unfair because that introduced a non-competitive factor to the industry, Goddard said.

The proclaimed section of the Energy Act "gives the government complete open-ended control (of prices) and is going to have a negative effect on the industry. It is bound to affect new undertakings planned for the province.

"To try to operate a competitive enterprise in that kind of environment makes it difficult and discouraging to private industry. If the industry suffers, ultimately the consumer and public at large suffer," Goddard said.

He said the conflict of private competition and the system of grants in the framework of the Energy Act is like "dealing with one segment of an orange. It is better to deal with the whole orange."

Trading Shifts Alarm Ottawa

By PETER THOMSON
Special to The Times

OTTAWA — Dramatic shifts in Canadian trade patterns and a dangerous decline in exports of finished products were revealed Thursday in a Statistics Canada report on Canadian imports and exports for the first half of 1974.

Exports for the first half reached $15.1 billion, an increase of $2 billion or about 15 per cent. Imports for the same period increased by $2.2 billion, or 18 per cent, to $14.5 billion — all on a seasonally adjusted basis.

Most of the increases, for both exports and imports, were attributed to higher prices — not to increased volume.

Government officials amitted they were concerned about the drop in exports of motor vehicles and parts and other machinery and equipment.

These are generally labor intensive industries, they noted, and deterioration in exports carries a threat of increased unemployment in Canada.

The decline in exports of these catagories is attributed to the general economic slowdown in the U.S. and several other major trading partners.

The report, which does not comment on reasons for changes in export patterns, reveals a 90 per cent increase in the value of crude oil exports and a 75 per cent increase for wheat, a 35 per cent increase in wood pulp, a 23 per cent increase for newsprint and a 16 per cent increase for fabricated metals.

There was a decline of eight per cent in value of exports of motor vehicles and parts despite price increases for those products. There was a three per cent decline in exports of other machinery and equipment, a five per cent decline for softwood lumber and a three per cent decrease for metallic ores and concentrates.

On the import side of the ledger, crude oil costs increased by 116 per cent, animals and edible products by mine per cent, chemicals and products by 17 per cent, synthetic rubber and plastics by 32 per cent, fuel oil and other oil products by 40 per cent, fabricated steel by 41 per cent non-ferrous alloys by 20 per cent, motor vehicles and parts by two per cent and other machinery and equipment by 12 per cent.

The report states that "most of the increase reflected higher prices; in real terms imports rose about four per cent while exports decreased about more than four per cent."

With slower growth for exports than for imports, the trade balance narrowed to some $600 million from $800 million in the last half of 1973.

Growth in purchases from Latin America and some other countries was up sharply "owing to the high import bill for crude oil."

"A sharply accelerated growth in the value of exports took place for wheat, crude oil and pulp; and the growth of newsprint shipments was resumed.

"Lumber sales continued to decline in line with lower housing construction in the U.S. . . . shipments of automotive and related products fell because of reduced production and sales of motor vehicles in the U.S.," the report states.

GRAIN TALKS OFF

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Labor Minister John Munro and Justice Minister Otto Lang, minister responsible for the Canadian wheat board, today cancelled plans for a meeting Monday with the presidents of four Western grain firms.

The ministers told the presidents by telegram that the companies' decision to lay off employees made it pointless to hold the meeting.

Meanwhile, the flow of grain in Vancouver has already slowed to a trickle before an expected total shutdown tonight.

A special session of parliament now appears imminent to force an end to the dispute and impose a binding contract.

On Wednesday, last day for which figures are available, only 61 boxcars were unloaded by 550 grain handlers involved in a dispute with the four elevator companies. Estimated daily potential of the handlers if 700 cars. A week ago Wednesday they unloaded 277 boxcars.

More than a third of the work force faces layoff as of 5 p.m. today. The Grain Handlers Union has said that layoff will be considered a lockout and all men will cease working.

A conciliation report by federal mediator Dr. Neil Perry has been accepted by union members but rejected by the companies.

2 Swoops Net $12M In Drugs

Times News Services

Drugs worth $12 million were seized in raids in Chicago and Chester, Nova Scotia, today.

In Chicago, police and federal agents seized heroin and cocaine valued at nearly $9 million and arrested nine persons early today in a series of raids.

"These raids broke up a ring supplying a major portion of the heroin found in the metropolitan area," one narcotics investigator said.

In the Nova Scotia incident, five persons were charged today with possession of hashish for the purpose of trafficking following a raid Thursday in which 1,800 pounds of hashish were seized at a nearby cottage. The drug had a street value of $3 million.

The accused are: Edward Quintin Carr, 21, of Halifax; Donald Brock Robson, 25, of Montreal and formerly of Halifax; and Bruce Keith Ervin, Patrick Marcel Mayers and Mickey Lynn Hale, all of Vancouver.

Police said the hashish, packed in blocks weighing 2½ pounds each, was located on the ground floor of the cottage.

U.S. Eyes Float For Own Oil

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — President Ford is considering a proposal to lift the price ceiling on domestically - produced crude oil, which could cause steep price increases.

The proposal is contained in a "closely-guarded" administration working paper, and is apparently one of a number of alternatives being considered to reduce demand for gasoline and other petroleum products and cut U.S. reliance on foreign oil suppliers, according to government sources.

The proposal is to lift the $5.25-a-barrel ceiling price on "old domestic crude oil," which accounts for 75 per cent of U.S. produced crude, the newspaper said.

"New oil" production above the 1972 level is not subject to controls, to stimulate increased production and exploration.

Foreign oil now sells for $10 to $11 a barrel, and if the U.S. crude oil price ceiling were lifted, the cost could double to that level, which would cause an increase of 4 to 5 cents a gallon at the retail level.

The proposal has been prepared by teams from the president's council of economic advisers, the federal energy administration and the treasury department.

Backers of the plan say removing the price lid or "equalizing" foreign and U.S. crude oil price differences would probably have short-term inflationary effects. The rationale behind the proposal, however, suggests the increased domestic price would reduce demand and, in the end, cut crude oil imports by between 3 and 10 per cent, sources said.

Allowing the U.S. crude oil prices to float toward the much higher foreign prices, some proponents of the idea believe, would introduce a new element of competition into the system, forcing the Arab states and other foreign producers to eventually reduce prices.

The proposal is also seen as a means of encouraging oil firms to drill deeper to recover more oil from petroleum fields — so-called "secondary" and "tertiary" recovery — thereby increasing much-needed domestic oil production and, again, somewhat reducing U.S. dependence on foreign oil, the sources said.

Both Kuwait and Venezuela announced Thursday they are cutting back oil production in order to keep prices up.

Venezuela said it will cut production by 100,000 barrels a day immediately to dry up what it called an oversupply that is pushing prices downwards.

Kuwait has reduced its oil production for this month and will cut it even further during the coming two months in an effort to keep oil prices up.

Officer Gunned Down

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — A man carrying a sub-machine-gun burst into a crowded tavern in the town of Omagh today and fatally shot a senior British police intelligence officer who was having lunch, security forces said.

The policeman, an inspector in the special branch, Britain's police intelligence unit, died after the gunman coolly reloaded his weapon and then fired a second burst into the officer's body as it lay on the floor, a security force spokesman said.

The inspector was sitting with friends in a tavern in Omagh, 70 miles west of Belfast, when the gunman rushed in.

It was the second shooting death in the province in less than 24 hours and the 1,064th fatality in more than five years of violence in the province, which is united with Great Britain.

Late Thursday gunmen shot and killed a young man who was taking a traffic census for the government's environment department, police said.

A second man was injured in the incident, which took place near Dungannon, 35 miles west of Belfast.

Also in Belfast, John Hume, deputy leader of the mainly Catholic Social Democratic and Labor Party (SDLP) said Thursday night two men tried to abduct him as he waited in a Belfast airport for a flight to London.

THIRD W. GERMAN BANK COLLAPSES

BONN (Reuter) — The small Hamburg private bank of H. Wolff ceased trading today, the Federation of German Banks said in a statement.

A spokesman for the federation said the owner of the bank, whom it did not name, returned his trading licence to the federal banking supervisory office in Berlin today.

It was the third bank collapse in West Germany in two months.

Bankhaus Wolff KG Hamburg is one of the smaller private banks with an annual turnover of about 80 million marks (about $31.2 million).

The series of private bank closures began June 26 when the Herstatt Bank in Cologne, the biggest private bank in the country, was officially ordered to cease business and turn in its banking licence because it had run up heavy losses in foreign-exchange deals which were alleged to have been falsely entered in its books.

Herstatt had debts of 500 million marks nearly $200 million when it was closed down.

The Frankfurt banking house of Bass and Herz went into liquidation Aug. 12, largely due to financial problems of an industrial group with which it was connected.

No explanation was immediately available for the closure of the Wolff bank. A spokesman for the bank declined to make any statement.

Syrian Forces Put On Alert

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Syria has placed its armed forces on the alert to counter Israeli military moves, says the pro-Palestinian newspaper Al Mobarrer.

Officials in Damascus had no comment.

The newspaper, which gave no source for its report, says the Syrian move followed recent Israeli official statements that reservists will be called up in the next few days for "military exercises."

Meanwhile, the Suez Canal, closed to commercial ships since the 1967 Middle East War, may be re-opened by January, the head of the four-nation mine clearing and salvage operations said today.

No Tourists in City Stranded by Agency's Ruin

A spokesman for the British government offices in Vancouver said today he has heard of no passengers stranded in Victoria following financial collapse of Tabbeber travel agency in the U.K.

In all only eight people have been in touch with his office after Tabbeber, and an operation called Solair Holidays it ran "went belly up" this week, he said.

Solair organized tourist flights to Vancouver and Toronto and used Monarch Airlines to carry passengers. A spokesman for Monarch said the airline sent 164 passengers home in its last flight from Vancouver Thursday. Monarch operates a Boeing 707-B on the route.

As many as 600 passengers will need special transport back to the U.K. and the British government offices spokesman said hopefully arrangements can be made for Air Canada and British Airways to handle passengers stranded in Toronto.

Similar arrangements are being sought for passengers stuck in Vancouver, he said, but nothing has been finalized.

Solaor passengers in Canada should be covered for their return trip because Tabbeber was bonded, he added.

The collapse of Tabbeber came just a week after the giant Court Line holiday group became insolvent, stranding some 50,000 tourists abroad.

$8,000 RING THEFT IN CAMPBELL RIVER

Thieves walked away with about $8,000 in diamond rings Thursday from an unattended counter in a Campbell River jewelry store.

An RCMP spokesman said today the rings were believed to have been stolen between 11:30 a.m. and noon from de Haans store at 919 Island Highway.

He said police were tracking down "several leads".

Several people were in the store at the time and the shop assistants were busy in other areas.

Cyprus Head Flies To Athens for Talks

THE BETTER HALF By Barnes

"Maybe I'd get something to eat around here if I had a higher fence or a shorter wife."

Times News Services

President Glafkos Clerides of Cyprus flew to Athens today for talks with the Greek government in advance of this weekend's preliminary peace talks with Turkish Cypriot leaders.

Clerides, leader of the Greek Cypriot community, said he would discuss in Athens the economic and refugee problems caused by six weeks on warfare on Cyprus.

But, the Greek government Thursday gave signs of losing interest in rapid resumption of Cyprus talks in the hopes that somehow urgent domestic political reforms can be pursued without any settlement on the island.

In a series of interviews, Foreign Minister George Mavros suggested that the Cyprus question can wait for the United Nations General Assembly scheduled to start in New York Sept. 23.

He also suggested that any eventual Cyprus settlement be guaranteed by the five permanent members of the Security Council—the United States, Soviet Union, China, France and Britain — plus a non-aligned country like Yugoslavia.

In Ankara, Turkish Premier Bulent Ecevit said Turkey is not considering the Partition of Cyprus between Turkey and Greece, nor does it have any intention of annexing part of the island.

"We are willing to continue the negotiations over Cyprus within the framework of the Geneva Conference," Ecevit told newsmen. "We are not thinking of partitioning Cyprus. Neither are we thinking of annexing part of the island to Turkey."

Meanwhile, U.S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger says the U.S. government is studying a Soviet proposal for an 18-nation conference to mediate the Cyprus conflict.

Western diplomats at the United Nations dismissed the Soviet move as a propaganda manoeuvre.

And Pentagon sources say the United States purposely withheld shipments of planes to Greece and Turkey during the fighting on Cyprus.

Pentagon spokesman William Beecher, Thursday confirmed there had been "brief delays" but refused to say whether the United States had ordered them.

6 Claim Fraud In Gold Deal

VANCOUVER (CP) — Six persons filed suit in British Columbia supreme court Thursday claiming they were fraudulently induced to invest in a gold mine.

They are seeking withdrawal of a share purchase agreement and repayment of their money, or in the alternative, damages for fraud or misrepresentation.

Defendants in the action are Joseph Ritlop of Stave Falls, B.C., and Arnold Roraph of Pitt Meadows, both directors of Huner Mines Limited.

One of the plaintiffs, Ida Schlick of Pitt Meadows, B.C., said she invested $45,000 on representations made by both defendants that a property she was shown in Agassiz was rich in gold ore deposits.

She said Ritlop told her that the company was about to go into operation. She said also that Ritlop made the statement knowing it to be false.

The other plaintiffs are Norman McQuade of Vancouver, who says he invested $2,000, John Inglis of Vancouver, Fred Hojas of Delta, Verena Lotscher of Port Moody and Victor Bennett of Ruskin.

Hojas, who also claimed he invested $2,000 said he was shown an assay report and ore samples and was told that the site contained great quantities of such ore.

Strike Looms At UBC

VANCOUVER (CP) — University of British Columbia library and clerical employees say they will close the university during the second and third days of registration if their wage demands are not met by then.

The selective strike was approved Thursday by members of the association of university and college employees, who are seeking a first contract with UBC.

Emerald Murphy, chairman of the union's bargaining committee, said the 1,300 employees will go out on strike Sept. 4 and 5, unless the administration advances registration week (Sept. 3-6) in the face of the threatened work stoppage.

The party leaves Sept. 7 on the 35-day trip, which will take them to Canton for seven days, as well as Peking and other cities.

Most going have relatives in Canton to visit, Quon said.

He said the trip was arranged by the Chinese-Canadian Friendship Association, who spoke about it to Chinese Ambassador Chang Wen-Chin when he visited Victoria last May.

Quon last saw his family in 1971, when he visited Canton.

YOUTH KILLED

A Ladysmith youth was killed Thursday when he fell 1,600 feet while trying to roll a rock over the edge of a canyon with a friend.

RCMP said Robert Record, 17, was trail bike riding with a friend, Craig Olin, 18, on the Comox Logging Company road about 12 miles northwest Ladysmith when the pair stopped to roll a large boulder into Haslam Creek Canyon 1,600 feet below.

As Olin, grabbing a nearby cable, pushed with his feet, Record shoved at the rock with both hands.

The rock came loose, Record lost his balance, and went over the embankment.

Olin scrambled down a steep slope at the top part of the drop, calling for his friend; but hearing nothing, returned to Ladysmith for help.

the weather

On the coast, skies are expected to remain cloudy. The blanket of cloud kept the province fairly warm overnight with temperatures early this morning in the sixties in the Okanagan and parts of the south coast and in the fifties in the northern regions. The cloud cover should keep southern interior temperatures from climbing as high as Thursday but maximums will still probably be in the high seventies. Temperatures in the central areas will be in the low sixties while on the coast they will range from near 60 at Prince Rupert to near 70 on the lower mainland. Saturday will see a little less cloud on the coast and more sunshine and drier weather in the interior.

Engineers Out at 1 Mill, But Working in 8 Others

Powerhouse workers at the Canadian Forest Products hardwood mill in New Westminster walked off the job today, but engineers in eight other B.C. coastal sawmills continued to work.

Bill Kadey, business agent for Local 882 of the International Union of Operating Engineers, said the 12 engineers in New Westminster left the job this morning, shutting down the mill.

The only mill in Greater Victoria where the engineers' union has members, Victoria Plywood on Hollowell Road, was not affected.

The engineers were left in a strike-free position several weeks ago after mediation officer Ken Albertini submitted his report to the provincial labor department.

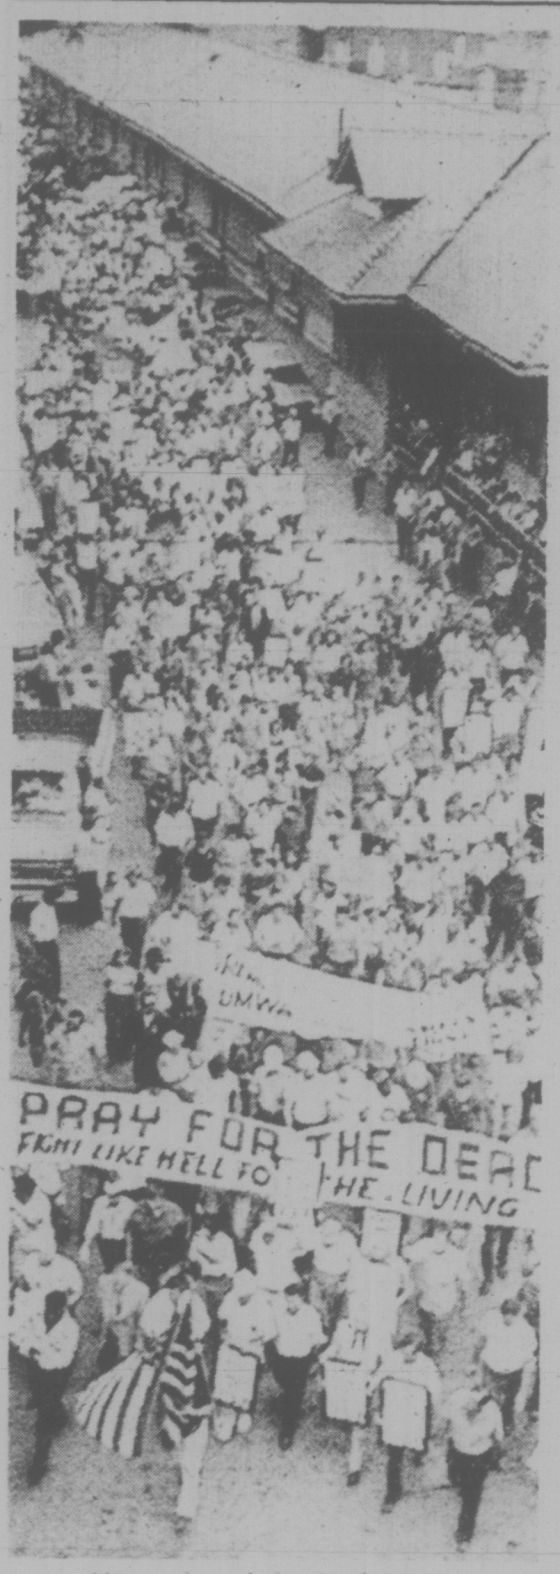
Kadey indicated the strike at Canfor was unsanctioned by the union executive.

He said the negotiating committee had come up with a recommended contract package late last night and was now in the process of having the proposed settlement printed up for mailing to all members.

He said he expected a vote on the settlement would be taken by a mail ballot, which would take seven or eight days to complete.

Kadey did not give details of the proposed settlement, but he said earlier his union used to be 35 cents ahead of some IWA tradesmen rates and the recent IWA settlement has left the engineers 11 cents behind those rates.

Kadey said his union wanted to recover its previous position.



Miners march in Harlan, Ky.

MINERS HONOR THEIR DEAD

HARLAN, Ky. (UPI) — A week-long memorial walkout of coal miners entered its final day today with United Mine Workers president Arnold Miller warning a full-scale national strike could start this fall.

The gravel-voiced former coal miner told a cheering crowd Thursday he had put "responsible people in government on notice that something better be done before Nov. 12 or they will have a lot more than five days to worry about."

This week's walkout was to call attention to miners who have died or been maimed.

A parade and rally in this rugged southeastern Kentucky mountain town drew an estimated 2,500 miners, their supporters and top UMW officials.

The national shutdown by miners is seen as a warning that the union is willing to stage a national strike if their demands are not met by the Nov. 12 expiration of its contract.

For the last two months, the situation has been tense in Harlan Country, with stepped up action by the union or ganize mines owned by the Eastover Mining Co., a subsidiary of Duke Power Co., of Charlotte, N.C.

Miller, when elected in 1972, said one of his main objectives as head of the UMW would be the organization of non-union mines in eastern Kentucky.

The miners' parade and rally took place almost without incident. Two men distributing what UMW secretary-treasurer Harry Patrick called "Communist literature" were attacked by miners, but escaped serious injury.

Miller, addressing a rally which was forced from a high school football field into the school gymnasium by rain, said, "I want to tell those who object to our way of doing things that tolerance is gone.

"Things have changed and the change in the mining industry is going to be for the better," he said.

Miller said the UMW had taken the five-day memorial leave to "put the government on notice that coal will be mined safely or it will not be mined at all."

Prices Too Low, Cattlemen Cry

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia consumers can expect unsettled meat prices for some months, beef industry officals predicted Thursday during the annual Pacific National Exhibition cattle and sheep auction.

Spokesmen from both the packing and cattle segments of the industry said in interviews that the beef industry is probably in the worst shape today than it has been during the last 30 years.

"For the cattlemen the question is who is going to survive," said Morrie Thomas, president of the B.C. Cattlemen's Association.

"The big rancher is better off but the small operator is generally in real trouble because of depressed prices."

Ron Tolton, western field man for the Meat Packers Council of Canada, said the Canadian packing industry is particularly worried about the type of cattle they will be forced to buy in coming months.

Ralph Towsley, head of the B.C. division of Intercontinental Packers Ltd., said United States predictions of a 10-percent increase in feed costs over the record U.S. prices of last year, plus a poor grain crop in the Canadian prairies this year point "to real problems in the cattle industry in coming months."

Towsley added that another big question is what will happen to livestock prices when U.S. cattle start moving back into Canada about the middle of September.

Present U.S. prices are about $5 to $6 a hundredweight lower than in Canada, he added.

Thomas said the situation is so bad that the Cattlemen's Association is considering entering the provincial government's income assurance scheme.

Waiting for the Morning

Reduction of established services by landlords—such as discontinuing janitorial or caretaker work, cutting off heat or water supplies—will undoubtedly be viewed as a breach of contract. A remedy for the afflicted tenant lies in application of the city by-law which prohibits such withdrawal of services; or in resort to the small debts court, as advocated by Attorney-General Macdonald.

Action by the city's enforcement staff may be more easily initiated than a court case, but the fact is that many tenants—elderly, infirm, fearful of retaliation by a landlord—will hesitate to use either form of aid. With the present extreme shortage of rental accommodation in Greater Victoria, many tenants dare not risk a confrontation with an erring landlord; they will suffer many deprivations rather than be forced out of their homes because there is simply nowhere else for them to go. The normal "freedom to move" does not operate under today's conditions. Some residents may fear blacklisting as "bad tenants", regardless of the rightness of their cause.

It should be realized that the number of landlords who try to take advantage of tenants in the present extended emergency situation is comparatively small. The great majority of landlords are mainly interested in retaining good tenants for as long as possible. There is little profit in a frequent turnover of occupants. And some landlords are themselves hard-pressed victims of the present squeeze between rising costs and allowable rent increases.

The only real answer to the present situation, of course, is to encourage an increase in the number of adequate rental accommodations. But there will be little building under the existing circumstances. Few developers will take the gamble of a large investment or a big loan at high interest rates if they can not see a viable future for the venture. The uncertainty as to the extent of rent controls, the uncertainty of being able to sell the building at a reasonable profit if desired, the uncertainty regarding the government's future policies, and particularly the policies of the Rentalsman who shortly will assume very sweeping powers in the whole residential renting field—these are enough to persuade any potential apartment builder to wait until the situation clarifies.

A great deal hinges on the operation of the new Landlord and Tenant Act, which is being put into action bit by bit. Many of its provisions promise to effect needed reforms, and the institution of the Rentalsman could solve many of the problems of disadvantaged landlords and ill-used tenants.

Without doubt a large number of cases are building up for the Rentalsman to handle, and the backlog could well delay a settlement of any given case for some time. At the moment many landlord-tenant problems are on ice, awaiting the opening of the Rentalsman's office. Eventually many of the basic problems will be solved, for there is a great deal of duplication in the queries, demands and protests that arise.

With more settled investment conditions, and removal of the uncertainty which now pervades the rentals business, the way may be cleared for a resumption of apartment construction for middle and low-income residents. Certainly, that should be high on the priority lists of both the government and the industry.

Poor Harvest For Canada

Grain exports are one of the most decisive factors in Canada's balance of payments yet a wage dispute between five grain companies and their employees which has simmered for nearly three months is ham-stringing an important source of national revenue and alienating our overseas customers. In this case management and labor must equally share the responsibility.

Last May a conciliation commissioner recommended a settlement which the union agreed to but management refused to ratify. The union claims the settlement amounts to slightly more than 30 per cent while management contends it is upwards of 60 per cent. As this stand-off continued the grain workers instigated a deliberate slowdown which has reduced grain exports from Vancouver by as much as 50 per cent. Now management is laying off employees and threatening a lock-out if the workers picket waterfront elevators.

Labor Minister John Munro and Wheat Board Minister Otto Lang are still making attempts to solve the dispute, but have had little success to date. If nothing comes of next Monday's meeting between the ministers and the grain companies the federal government may have to recall Parliament earlier than the proposed September 30 date and legislate a settlement.

Another month of delay and frustration could do irreparable harm to Canada's export trade, not to mention that new grain will be flowing from prairie elevators causing a further problem at Vancouver. It is time for the government to remove its gloves and lean a little more heavily on both parties in Canada's best interests.

JAMES RESTON

The President and the Papers

WASHINGTON — One of these days the moving vans will be backing up to the White House and carting off all of President Nixon's personal and official papers to San Clemente. This is the way it has been since the beginning of the republic: by tradition, which now has the force of law, the departing president decides what papers he wants to take away, and these are regarded as his "private property."

This means that these papers, which are the memory of the nation, are very largely under the control of the president and his heirs, who can edit them selectively, or even destroy them, or under the will of the President upon his death, arrange to conceal their contents for as long as he chooses.

For example, the papers of John Adams and John Quincy Adams were locked up for over a hundred years until in 1956 the Adams family transferred title to them to the Massachusetts Historical Society, which finally made them available to scholars.

So this is not a new problem. The papers of most major Presidents have been preserved fairly well, and even the official records of Presidents Fillmore, Tyler, and Harding, which were meager and dispersed, still keep turning up, despite all the stories that they were lost or burned by their families.

Awkward Questions

Nevertheless, the principle that presidential papers "belong" to the departing president and can be trucked away, and disposed of as he and succeeding generations of his family see fit, raises some awkward questions.

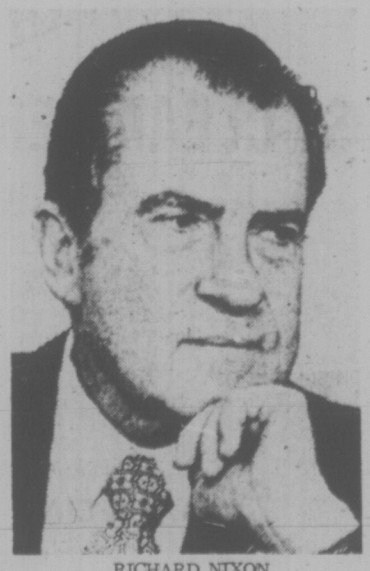
For example, the White House has just announced that all the tape recordings of Nixon's conversations, those published and those still secret, are his "personal property." Is he, therefore, free to lock up the still secret White House tapes for a hundred years, like the Adams' papers, or burn them as Warren Harding's widow is reported to have destroyed some of the records of the Harding scandals?

Also, the modern presidency, since the invention of the transoceanic telephone and the tape recorder, now contains official records of conversations that are vital to an understanding of foreign relations.

President Nixon bugged not only his political "enemies" and members of his own staff, but also his conversations with visiting presidents and prime ministers, without their knowledge. What promises or commitments, if any, did he make to foreign governments in these talks, which succeeding presidents have to recognize? And how will President Ford know what promises were made if the records are under the sole control of Nixon?

It is important to be clear about what is not at issue here. The question is not whether the president has a right to the records of his administration — of course he has — but whether he has the sole right to take them away under his own and family's control, without leaving either the originals or copies behind.

In some cases he does have this right. For example, in his private correspondence about appointing members of his Cabinet or members of the Supreme Court, there will undoubtedly be letters opposing his appointments on the ground that his nominees were drunks or womanizers. This could be inaccurate, vindictive gossip, harmful to the characters of the people concerned, so obviously the president has the right and duty to edit out scurrilous personal attacks.



RICHARD NIXON
. . . sole right?

But issues of policy, official conversations with other heads of government, tapes of conversations that produced the first resignation of an American President, are quite different. These have to do with the history of the country, and should not be entirely under the control of the departing President.

Since Franklin Roosevelt, the papers of the Presidents have gone back to memorial libraries in their hometowns, and the system has worked very well. The libraries have been built by the financial contributions of their friends and supporters. They have been maintained by the Federal Government, which has paid professional librarians and archivists, who have organized, Xeroxed, computerized, and, in the Lyndon Johnson Library in Austin, even captured the voice and pictures of the former president.

Under this system, students and scholars have available to them the records of the presidents in the communities where they lived, but everything depends on what the students and scholars see and hear.

The way things are now in San Clemente, what the students and scholars see and hear depends entirely on what the ex-president and his family, not only in this, but in the next and succeeding generations, wants them to hear. It is all up to him and his heirs to decide: to turn the record over to the National Archives, to leave the whole record to history and succeeding generations or to edit it, or fiddle with it, or burn it.

Personal Property

Nothing in the law obliges Nixon to turn all his papers over to the Federal archives and let the government maintain a Nixon library in San Clemente. By tradition and present law, he can keep them to himself and turn them over in his will to his children and grandchildren. They are his "personal property," as things now stand and, on the record, nobody is full of trust about what he will do.

The chances are that, like the presidents from Roosevelt to Kennedy and Johnson, he will want that library in San Clemente, and submit to the vague rules of what papers now belong to him and what really belong to the nation, and from his point of view, it's a good deal.

Like Ike, Kennedy, and Johnson, he will get both his papers and his memorial library, to do with as he likes, but the integrity of the nation's record will still be in trouble.

Giving the president all the papers he wants to take home is okay, letting him and his family control them, and exploit them is understandable, but in the end they are not really personal papers or private property. They are the record and memory of the nation, and should be preserved in the original or by copies for that purpose.

NDP's Worrisome Dilemma

OTTAWA—David Lewis, partly on the basis of certain public opinion surveys, has revised his interpretation of the recent general election which resulted in a "very serious setback" for his party.

Shortly after the election, and perhaps before he had been able to give very serious study to the results, Mr. Lewis saw the vote as evidence of a desire for majority government. The electorate, he explained, "rejected the program of the Progressive Conservatives and the Conservatives lost our votes to the Liberals, while our vote remained the same."

This was a rather comforting analysis from an NDP standpoint; the reinterpretation is decidedly less so. The desire for majority government was attributable, according to Mr. Lewis, to fear of the Stanfield program for a freeze followed by a period of controls. What happened was that large numbers of working people, who normally support the NDP, voted Liberal in order to prevent a Stanfield victory.

Unpalatable Conclusion

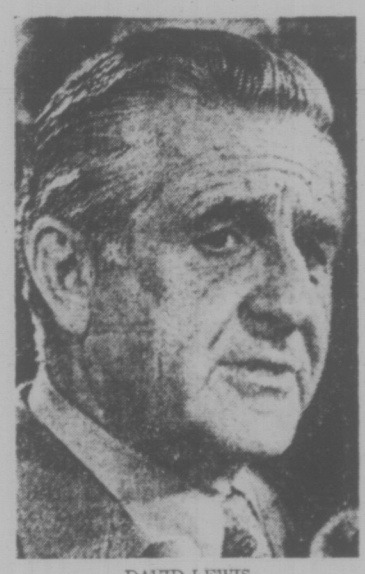
It is to the credit of the NDP leader that he has not shrunk from an unpalatable conclusion. If what he now believes is correct, the New Democratic industrial base is less secure than he formerly thought. Mr. Lewis, by implication, is also shouldering much of the blame for the setback since he was an important contributor to the fear of controls which, in the revised theory, motivated the voters.

From the outset of his campaign Mr. Lewis assailed the Stanfield program as a plan "to freeze the wages of working people." He also ridiculed it as unworkable, "either folly or fraud or both." Indeed, he pressed the attack on the Conservatives with such vigor that he found himself attempting to meet the criticism that he was largely ignoring the government.

Mr. Lewis explained this by saying that the Liberals had no policy and could therefore be dealt with shortly, whereas it took more time to convince workers and their wives that the Stanfield policy was dangerous and would not work.

By his reinterpretation of events Mr. Lewis obviously exposes himself to the reproach that if his campaign had been less effective, the New Democrats would have elected more members. It is a post-election irony that in the east the two Opposition parties are now in rather unhappy agreement since the NDP attribute their misfortunes partly to Conservatives weakness while the Conservatives attribute theirs partly to the NDP slump.

Further study may show, however, that neither of the versions offered by Mr. Lewis is adequate to explain what happened.



DAVID LEWIS
. . . revised analysis

The New Democrats sustained a net loss of 15 seats, losing 16 and picking up one. That solitary gain can probably be explained in terms of personalities; a popular Conservative miner, Donnie MacInnis retired and the NDP found a popular local candidate, Father Andy Hogan. There was certainly no decisive change in the Liberal vote.

Of the 16 lost seats, only three were in Ontario while 13 were in the West. But in that region the Stanfield Conservatives were not losing; they were gaining; and so, outside Manitoba, were the Liberals at NDP expense. Mr. Lewis seems to recognize that his general theory does not fit B.C. very well. There may, he concedes, have been some kickback against the Barrett Government whose policies were "either not explained or not understood by the voters." Mr. Barrett and Mr. Stanfield seem to have similar problems.

It seems to me that election post-mortems concentrate too much on the campaign and not enough on what preceded it. The New Democrats had no easy time in the last Parliament. Although elected in opposition to the Liberals, they found themselves sustaining the Liberals in power. When they could stand this no longer, they precipitated an election for which, naturally, they were blamed by the government. In reverting to the opposition role, however, they faced a problem of credibility for how were they to attack a record which they had largely made possible?

From an NDP standpoint the setting of the last election was altogether unfortunate. Evidently, despite fine theories about parties co-operating to make Parliament work, the role of junior partner is unrewarding. The NDP has fared reasonably well when it was unambiguously an opposition party; badly when it could be attacked as a party to an unofficial coalition.

Hampers Protest

To the extent that Mr. Lewis is right about the impact of the Stanfield proposals, it would also appear that the NDP is most attractive when no very clear issue divides Liberals from Conservatives. In this sense an "issue election" is bad because it monopolizes public attention and handicaps a third group seeking to mobilize protest votes against both major parties.

Mr. Lewis doubts that the election setback will mean a diminution in the future influence of the NDP. Presumably, he is thinking of the long term: 16 members in a Parliament with a majority cannot very well have the immediate impact of 31 in a Parliament of minorities.

But the NDP, in reverting to a normal opposition role, will escape the embarrassments of 1972-74 and should in time be able to regain at least some of the seats lost in the unusual circumstances of July of this year.

What has happened, however, points to the unresolved problem. A minor party with no early hopes of forming a government is almost bound to appeal on the strength of what it may be able to secure if it is given the power balance. But indirect power, once won, becomes a threat to the party. At least to some members of the NDP this is a worrisome dilemma as they attempt to rethink the role of the party in a changing Canadian society.

Military Mementoes

The National Museums of Canada seeks to strengthen its collection of military artifacts and at this time especially wishes to acquire uniforms, weapons, medals, insignia and photographs concerning the military history of North America from 1604 to the present. Artifacts relating to the allied and enemy forces from the First and Second World Wars are also of interest.

These are for display, future reference and research in the Canadian War Museum (National Museum of Man) in the national capital. Own a Home

I would like to congratulate Al Forrest for his article entitled "Rent a Home or Own One? A Look at Arithmetic." It appeared on Page 17 of the issue of Aug. 16. He is to be commended for his continuing interest in the subject of moderate-priced housing and for his very clear and simplified presentation of what can be a very complex subject.

I am particularly pleased that Mr. Forrest's "arithmetic" confirms that the changes to the National Housing Act regulations announced by Mr. Trudeau during the recent election campaign were correct and have been effective in making more housing available and within the financial reach of additional medium-income young families.

It is gratifying to note also that the residents of Vancouver Island are applying for and using the federal money earmarked for this part of Canada. There have been times in the past when available federal funds have been ignored in British Columbia and subsequently have been used by the more aggressive provinces.

I hope that Mr. Forrest will continue this excellent type of reporting and will highlight the advantages in the National Housing Act for the benefit of those not now aware of what is possible. Also I agree with the article that there will undoubtedly be further changes as conditions dictate.— Frances H. Elford, 3045 Larkdowne Rd.

'Oddangles'

I would like to avail myself of your columns to congratulate those members of the O.F.Y. group who assembled and presented the recent slide show featuring unusual aspects of Victoria's historic buildings. "Oddangles", for those fortunate enough to see it during its too brief three day showing at Open Space, was both informative and stimulating. Congratulations for a job well done.—Martin Segger, curator, Maltwood Art Museum.

60 YEARS AGO

From The Times of Aug. 23, 1914:

CPR officials have informed Col. Roy, D.O.C., that they cannot supply trains to move the Victoria Volunteers to Valcartier until next Wednesday (Aug. 26) so that the earliest moment the men are likely to leave the city is Tuesday night. The Vancouver contingent will pull out of the CPR depot this evening 1,000 strong. Lieutenant Colonel Currie is of the opinion that there will be one or two battalions of Highlanders so that the volunteers from the 50th will be permitted to wear their kilts through the campaign instead of being compelled to don khaki trousers.

Iron Curtain Fuel High and Dry

By MARK GAYN

For the travel-mad Hungarian motorist, Sept. 1 will probably be known as the "Black Tuesday," for on this day the price of standard gasoline will jump from 61 cents an imperial gallon to 73 cents.

This may not be much by comparison with Italy and France, but it is an awful lot for a Hungarian who earns less than $200 a month.

The Hungarian housewife, too, will damn the day, for on that Tuesday it will cost her much more to cook her meals, keep her house warm, or take a hot bath.

The price of firewood, which many Hungarian women still use in their kitchens, will rise by 18 per cent; of hot water and steam piped into Budapest homes from a central plant, by 20 per cent; and of heating oil by a whopping 40 per cent.

The world fuel crisis will have at last caught up with Hungary, and it will cost her 10 million people an extra $100 million a year — including $60 million more for the boost in the price of heating oil alone.

On this same "Black Tuesday" the government will try to cushion the blow by introducing a special bonus of $2 a month for the workers, soldiers, policemen, pensioners, war cripples and mothers with children (though not for the peasants). Whether this $2 will meet the increased cost of living for the average family is, to put it mildly, very doubtful.

No one could blame the Hungarian government for the raise. It had put it off as long as it could, meeting the deficit out of the budget. But this could not be kept up forever, and now, like the capitalists, the Communists must begin to pass on to the consumer the cost of the Arab oil squeeze.

But the oil is not the only imported item that now costs more. From cotton to machine tools, the Communist states must pay more for nearly everything they buy. As a result, they must, like us, tighten their belts.

Inflation has been creeping across eastern Europe like a cholera epidemic, breaking out here today and there tomorrow.

In an effort to limit its impact, and perhaps to prove that their economies are something unique, the Communist states have been dipping into their treasuries. They paid more for their oil and shoes and machinery, but they charged their own people the same prices as a year ago.

This, of course, was a game one could not play indefinitely. Thus, one after another, the Communist countries have been facing up to the problem of inflation. From Poland to Yugoslavia, the prices have been soaring on items that both the housewife and the factories need.

In all these countries, there have been appeals since late last fall to use less of the imported items, and especially of fuel. Here and there, gasoline and oil have been rationed, severe limits have been put on speed limits, bus and plane services have been curtailed, street lights have been dimmed and limits put on the number of electric lights in the official buildings.

Three weeks ago, the Polish government, for instance, issued an appeal to the planners and industrial managers to "draw conclusions" from the inflation in the West and begin to economize on raw materials and energy.

Of all the Communist states, none has been hurt as badly by the world inflation as Yugoslavia.

Late last month, it raised the prices on the widest range of essentials yet seen in eastern Europe — wheat, flour and bread, sugar and cigarettes, coffee and edible oil. The price of brown bread went up by 39 per cent, "half brown" by 46 per cent, and white by 51 per cent. No other Communist state has yet dared to make bread more costly.

Rumors of the impending raise have been circulating in Yugoslavia for weeks, with predictable results. The hoarders have been buying up sugar, coffee and tobacco.

In the Montenegran republic, flour has been bought by the truckload, until the police stepped in. Shopkeepers emptied their shelves in anticipation of the higher prices. Many bakeries raised their prices in advance of the state.

This was a harsh blow to the people with fixed and low incomes... The government controlled trade union federation warned that something must be done to ease the impact, but so far nothing has been done.

In the Croation republic the new raises, official said, would boost an average family's cost of living by 6.5 per cent. This was on top of what officials estimated as an 11 per cent rise in the first six months of this year, and other informants put at more than 20 per cent.

The problem for the Yugoslavs is both simple and cruel. All they have to buy abroad — energy, raw materials and food — is more expensive.

In the first five months of this year, they have had to spend 54 per cent more on their foreign shopping. While their own sales abroad have brought in only 34 per cent more. As a result, Yugoslavia's foreign trade deficit this year will total $720 million, of which $600 millions will be a ransom to the oil sheiks.

The Soviet Union alone has seemingly been immune. It has paid more for its purchases abroad. But it is lucky enough to have oil and gas to sell, and this has helped to soften the blow. The state simply continued its policy of subsidizing all, or nearly all of, the things a housewife needs.

But there is really no black — or red — magic that can somehow make a Communist country immune to the world-wide inflation. Sooner or later, the budgetary remedies become as useless for Moscow as they have already been for the allies.

And when that day comes, oddly enough, it will only help to prove that the world is one. What hurts the decadent capitalist must inevitably hurt the virtuous Communist. And this, perhaps, may be the best argument for co-operation in battling that devil, Inflation.

Yugoslavia: a $600 million ransom to the oil shieks

VISA DENIED SOVIET BRIDE

By PETER OSNOS

MOSCOW — Woodford D. McClellan is a bearded 40-year-old professor of Russian history at the University of Virginia who is so fond of this country that he has been here 10 different times to travel and study.

On one of those trips he met, and has since married, a Russian woman named Irina Igorevna Astakhova, a school teacher. They would like to leave together now, but the Soviet authorities won't let her out. Her request for a passport was denied last week on the grounds that she has been engaged in "secret" work, which she says she hasn't.

McClellan says he is deperate. On Aug. 28 he has to leave. Soviet authorities have told his wife that he can visit her, and in a year they will reconsider the case, if she resubmits all the paperwork. "How do I know they will ever let me see her again," asks the professor.

At the present time, the consular section of the U.S. embassy here has about 20 cases in its files like the McClellans' — mixed Soviet-American couples in which the Russian has been refused permission to leave. The number has been increasing at a faster rate recently, probably, the embassy believes, because improved relations between the U.S. and the Soviet Union have brought more Americans here in contact with the Soviets.

The Soviets do not prevent all Russians who want to emigrate to the U.S. from doing so. In the past year, according to American officials, about 900 exit visas have been given, mostly to persons who already have relatives living in the U.S. A few Soviets who have married Americans have gotten out, but invariably with difficulty.

Why do couples like the McClellans have so much trouble? Why do the Soviets risk adverse publicity in the U.S. on such a straightforward humanitarian issue at a time when they are seeking support in Congress for improved trade legislation? No one seems to know the answer for sure.

Some Americans speculate that the Soviets want to discourage too many Russians from leaving by making the process unpleasant and occasionally even dangerous. (The prospective groom of an American woman was attacked on the street last spring and receive a fractured skull.) That has been the usual explanation when Jewish immigrants have run into problems.

Perhaps, it is suggested, the delays are not a matter of policy, but merely the decision of a middle-level bureaucrat. Or perhaps, there is some good reason.

The McClellans' story is a complicated one, but these are the highlights:

They met in the summer of 1972 in the Caucasus where she was on vacation and he was leading a travel group. They fell in love. At the time, Mrs. McClellan, who is 35, was working in the protocol section of the Institute of World Economics and Foreign Relations where she handled visitors. She never had access to sensitive material, she says.

That fall, Mrs. McClellan was summoned to a superior and told to stop seeing McClellan or else she would be demoted. She left instead and now works at Moscow School No. 348.

McClellan made two brief trips to the Soviet Union subsequently and eight months ago came here to do research on an exchange program with Russian professors. McClellan's field is 19th Century Russian history. In May, the couple was married at a Moscow registry.

Mrs. McClellan then applied for a passport and says that it never occurred to her that she would have any problem. Her mother, after first expressing reservations, agreed to look after a 15-year-old child from Mrs. McClellan's first marriage. In early August, she was informed over the telephone that her application had been denied.

At two meetings with higher officials after that, she was told she had handled secrets and needed a year "to clear her head." It was also noted that her first husband, who teaches at a military academy, was also engaged in secret work. Mrs. McClellan says that as far as she knows her husband teaches English. She denies any further knowledge.

And that is where the situation rests now. McClellan has sent a letter to Soviet leaders. He has met with U.S. Ambassador Walter J. Stoessel and the embassy has made a diplomatic representation on the professor's behalf. The McClellans acknowledge that their chances for a last-minute reprieve are very small, but they prefer to hope.

Movies: Appeasing the Panting Public

By TRENT FRAYNE

As everybody knows, a film censor is a sharp-nosed ogre in a pincenez and swallow-tail coat hunched in the dark snipping anything he finds faintly titillating from all movies whose casts include more than one sex...

And then there is O. J. Silverthorne. O. J. Silverthorne has been the all-powerful Ontario film censor for 40 years during which this province has undergone less movie censorship than any province in Canada and most countries anywhere. Not all countries; most countries. There's still a lot of stuff coming into Ontario that never finds its way to the giant screen.

The fascinating thing about it, though, is that Silverthorne, who reluctantly goes into mandatory retirement next month because he's 65, goes far beyond the bounds of his own conscience with a lot of the films he and his censorship board turn loose on the panting public.

"If we went any farther," he was saying the other day, shaking his head. "I think the morality squad would come and pick me up. I'm ashamed at some of the things I pass."

He was raised by a strict Baptist family in the tobacco country of western Ontario near Simcoe. "My dad didn't even believe in shining his boots on Sunday," Silverthorne remembers. He still finds going to church on Sunday morning one of the most enjoyable things he does.

All right. Here we have a church-going man raised in severe religious surroundings; how can a man of these circumstances have become one of the more liberal of censors? With all of his autonomous power, why isn't the cutting-room floor awash in discarded film of the violence and sex of the well-known permissive society that's leading us all to hell in a basket?

"The church was an almost daily part of my life as a youngster;" Silverthorne says in a roundabout answer. "There were prayer meetings and mission band and Sunday school and church itself. When I got away from home I didn't want to go to church as often. There'd been too much of it.

"So, in this job, I didn't want to force other people into the repression I'd had. I didn't want to force my will upon things they apparently wanted. My wife's been shocked and I've squirmed myself at some of the pictures we've seen, but I feel if other people want to see it, they have a right to.

"That's what happened when Last Tango in Paris came along, a breakthrough movie in its way as Ulysses had been a breakthrough movie in language. We held up Ulysses for six months. I was scared to death of it, but we finally released it. With Last Tango, we just closed our eyes and ears and let it go. Who am I to tell people they can't see something?"

In putting his judgment ahead of his moral sense in this fashion, however, Silverthrone does not carry his philosophy to endless reaches. He was asked about Deep Throat and The Devil in Miss Jones, the latter a movie described by some critics (Judith Crist in New York magazine, for one) as the meeting-ground of art and pornography.

Silverthorne bristled mildly at the question.

"They've never been submitted," he said edgily. "The distributors know that if they sent me Deep Throat I'd take it and throw it out and I'd call the police."

He recognizes that he's a liberal critic, however. "We have not removed one inch from any film made by the major companies in nearly three years," he says. "The film industry is happy with our work even though we control them and license them."

The problems these days come from small companies producing explicit sex and blood-curdling violence, the companies who produce what Silverthorne call "the garbage."

"There are eight or 10 theatres in Toronto that specialize in this stuff and have a clientele that keeps them going. If the film industry makes a good family picture and these houses screen it, the public won't go near them; they'd go broke. So we try to give them what they need to stay alive and still not bring in the morality squad."

Silverthorne has a deep-rooted awareness of the Metro police department's morality squad. "I don't think I could stay on this job if the morality squad ever walked in and seized a picture we'd passed," he says earnestly. "I'd just feel it meant we didn't know our job."

Silverthorne, who is called O. J. or Silver by friends, is in considerable pain these days. He has undergone operations on both hips over the past year for insertion of steel and plastic joints to replace bone crippled by osteoarthritis. The second operation, last June, still has him on canes which he alternates with a single crutch.

He became the Ontario censor in 1934 with no qualifications for the job. His brother-in-law, Pete Birdsall, was city editor of the St. Thomas Times Journal and a friend of the area member of parliament, Mitchell Hepburn. When Hepburn made a speech in Collingwood in 1933 he chatted with Silverthorne, who was running a commercial college there, not very successfully in that Depression year.

"If you ever enter provincial politics and become premier," Silverthorne remembers saying to Hepburn, "I'd like a job."

In August of 1934, six weeks after Hepburn did indeed become premier, he sent Silverthorne's mother a wire telling her he was looking for young people to take to Queen's Park and to tell her son wherever he was, to contact him. When Silverthorne did, he expected he'd be assigned to the treasury department. Instead he was introduced to an old gentleman in his 80's named Hardwick. "Go along with him," Hepburn told Silverthorne. "You're the new censor."

Over the four decades in the job there've rarely been periods when Silverthorne and his six-person board haven't been under fire. It's come from all sides; from film distributors protesting cuts and from religious leaders critical of what he's passed.

"When Dr. James Mutchmor was moderator of the United Church and Father M. J. McGrath headed the Catholic Legion of Decency, scarcely a week went by that they weren't on the telephone or in here pounding the table, insisting we withdraw some picture or other," he says.

"The chiefs of police and the mayors of Ontario towns used to come in and see the premier or my minister insisting that they wanted to choose what films their towns could or could not see. But they were given a flat no. I've never had any interference from anybody in or out of government in my 40 years."

Well, had there ever been bribe offers, little nudges from distributors anxious to get an okay on a controversial movie?

"None. Never," the censor said. "Oh, the board accepts passes to the theatres, if that's what you mean. But nothing else. We don't even accept anything at Christmas, gifts of candy or whatever. Greeting cards, yes; but nothing more. The government simply won't permit it."

What about film that winds up on the cutting-room floor? Is that ever pieced together for private parties or favored groups?

"Nope. We keep cuts for six months in case the distributor wants them to put back into film for submission in other provinces or other countries. If they don't come in for them we destroy them."

As he heads for retirement Silverthorne contends he is not convinced there ought to be a successor. For that matter, he says he can't argue with critics who believe nothing should be censored.

"As I said before, who am I to tell people they can't see something?" he says. "I've often thought the classification system would handle the situation. You get the board to view a film and rate it either as general, as adult entertainment or as restricted. We do that now, of course, but we have the added power of veto."

It's hard to escape the notion that Silverthorne in these last weeks in office thinks the public ought to make up its own mind what it wants to look at. This isn't a heretical notion for a radical, certainly, but for a censor? For a Baptist? O. J. Silverthorne, heading into retirement, is something special. Mark him R for recommended.

U.S. East Coast Refinery Killed By Threatened Canadian Action

PORTLAND, Maine, (UPI) — The Pittson Co. proposal to build a $350 million oil refinery at Eastport "is for all practical purposes dead," the head of a group which opposed the project declared Thursday.

Horace A. Hildreth, Jr., chairman of the Coastal Resources Action Committee, said the Canadian government would put the final "nail in the coffin by legally closing Head Harbour passage to supertankers."

He predicted the action by the Canadians would take place long before there "is any definitive action by the Federal Aviation Authority to release the Eastport airport."

Hildreth's comments came in the wake of a board of environmental protection decision Tuesday to suspend hearings on the controversial project.

The board, acting on an opinion by Attorney General John Lund, found Pittston had not acquired sufficient ownership in the Eastport airport to take jurisdiction.

Pittston Wednesday began the process of appealing the board's decision in the Maine supreme court. It is expected the legal hassle will continue for many months.

While Pittston has an option from the city of Eastport to buy the airport in the middle of the refinery site, the airstrip cannot be sold without sanction from the FAA.

The Portland attorney termed the board's action "correct but a cliff-hanger. It was the only one it could properly make."

"Canada has been opposed to the refinery from the outset and for very good reason," he said.

Hildreth said the Canadian government realized the danger posed to marine resources of very high value by the traffic of large tankers in narrow passages where tidal currents exceed five knots.

"The Canadian government has termed the risk unacceptable and I don't blame them," he said. "Now that Maine has dealt with this matter, Canada may move to close her own waters in Head Harbor passage to supertankers.

INFLATION, WIVES THWART TRANSFERS

CHICAGO (AP) — Inflation and wives who are taking careers more seriously are beginning to thwart some corporate plans for employee transfers, a moving industry survey shows.

Corporations aren't as generous as they once were in paying for employee transfers, and employees are responding with a reluctance to move, said the survey of 286 companies.

It also shows an increasing tendency for employees to balk at relocation because of their spouse's careers.

Transfers may slow more, said J. J. Thorne, vice-president of marketing for Atlas Van Lines, who conducted the survey.

Thorne said that throughout the moving industry he hears rumors of declining business.

Van Line rates have risen 15 per cent in the last year, boosting average per-move cost for Atlas corporate customers to $1,494 from $1,318.

Cost-conscious firms have responded by slicing "moving extras" such as reimbursement for motels, house hunting and transportation.

Thorne said he has conducted the survey for the last seven years but hadn't seen the need to ask about the problem of wives until a year ago. He said this year he found that 67 per cent of the companies responding had problems talking wives into moving because of their own jobs.

First City

First City Financial Corporation has reported net profits of $430,122 or 29.9 cents a share for the six months ended June 30, 1974. This compares with net profits of $575,035 or 41.5 cents a share for the same period in 1973.

Revenue rose to $11 million this year compared with $6.4 million in 1973, and assets increased to $235 million from $133 million last year.

President Samuel Belzberg said he was disappointed with second quarter results. He said he is not optimistic that a high level of earnings can be achieved in 1974, although improvements are expected in the third and fourth quarters of this year.

Sales increased 22.6 per cent to $422,069,000 from $344,217,000 in 1973, excluding furs sold on consignment.

Hudson's Bay said that despite strong merchandising operations during the first half, upward costs cut into earnings.

Bramalea Realty

United Trust Co. of Toronto has announced it has purchased for an undisclosed amount the business of Bramalea Consolidated Developments Ltd., both of Toronto.

Bramalea Realty is a real estate broker currently employing over 200 representatives throughout south-Ontario.

United's real estate sales organization has over 1,500 licenced agents across Canada.

Bramalea Consolidated said the sale will permit it to concentrate on land development, house building and the production of revenue-producing properties for its investment portfolio.

Hudson's Bay Co.

Hudson's Bay Co. reports earnings for six months ending July 31 are up slightly to $4,309,000 or 31 cents a share from $4,020,000 or 30 cents a share in the corresponding period in 1973.

Andre Charron, president of Levesque, Beaubien Inc., said the action increases the firm's total staff to more than 350 employees, making it the largest in Quebec Province.

The integration is effective Sept. 1 and is subject to approval by regulatory authorities.

The expanded sales force of Levesque, Beaubien will operate through eight branch offices in Quebec, branch offices in Toronto, Ottawa and Moncton and offices in Paris, Geneva and Brussels.

Last week, the New Montreal firm of Brault, Guy, O'Brien was formed through the merger of Brault, Guy, Chaput Inc. and O'Brien and Williams.

Charges in Shooting

VANCOUVER (CP)—Thomas David Cogley, 26, was charged Thursday in connection with a holdup and shooting incident on a downtown street here Tuesday.

Cogley was charged with attempted murder, robbery, confining and possession of an offensive weapon.

The charges arise out of an incident in which a man held up a branch of the F. W. Woolworth company and fled with $200. A florist from a nearby shop who chased him was shot and wounded. The gunman then ran onto the street and hijacked a camper truck.

City Buys Key Land On Waterfront

The city of Victoria has concluded a deal with the Navy League of Canada to buy the league's key Victoria West waterfront property for $320,000—$30,000 less than the price tag set on the property in recent negotiations.

The sum is also nearly $100,000 higher than the city would have paid had it accepted an offer in 1972 to buy the land for $225,000.

At its regular meeting Thursday city council approved the purchase, although only the previous day both Mayor Peter Pollen and zoning committee chairman Ald. Mike Young told reporters the city was still negotiating with the Navy League.

(Young explained that the $320,000 offer was authorized by council's in-camera meeting Tuesday afternoon, and the offer accepted on Wednesday, some time after his denial that the property had been purchased).

Aldermen and officials are apparently delighted that the site is now under public ownership, as it enables the city to implement some of the key proposals and policies enunciated in the Victoria West study.

Perhaps most importantly, it provides the opportunity to guarantee public waterfront access with a parklike promenade that ultimately could stretch from Catherine Street to link the three acre Barnard Park which the city bought from the federal government three years ago.

Community facilities could also be established—probably under the federal Neighborhood Improvement Program for Victoria West—and the city is eyeing the possibility of developing tiny Kimta Road as an alternative route to busy Esquimalt Road, for the many apartment dwellers in the Princess Patricia highrise and neighboring apartments who daily use Johnson Street Bridge.

Young said residual land would probably be developed for higher density residential accommodation, in some form of townhouse concept.

OIL SPILL JIBE BRANDED A HOAX

OTTAWA (CP) — Portions of a magazine on Arctic offshore drilling, published by the northern affairs department and circulated to some members of the media, were branded as false Thursday by the department.

The offending portions in Dialogue North were contained in a stamped insertion on Page One of the magazine. The insertion quoted the department as saying it could not include any material on oil spills in Arctic waters. The publication was prepared for free distribution to northern communities and that issue focused on offshore drilling operations in the North.

"It is anticipated that an oil spill edition will be published after the first major spill occurs in Arctic offshore waters," said the authentic-looking stamped addition.

Officials of the department said that only a handful of copies among thousands printed contained the addition. These were mailed in departmental envelopes to some reporters.

One such edition was mailed to The Canadian Press in Ottawa and was the basis for a story last Monday containing the bogus paragraphs on oil spills.

Northern Affairs Minister Judd Buchanan said efforts probably would be made to track down the guilty party.

Kangaroos Killed

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Three kangaroos were killed and a fourth injured when a pack of stray dogs wandered into the St. Louis Zoo and attacked them. Two of the dogs were shot to death by zoo rangers, three were captured and two escaped. Zoo director Robert Briggs said the Australian government doesn't permit the exportation of kangaroos, "so these animals are valuable."

United Church Approves Union After 'Bitching'

By R. J. ANDERSON

GUELPH, Ont. (LP) — The general council of the United Church of Canada, after a day filled with what a head-table speaker called "tension, discord and downright bitching," approved church union Thursday night.

There were three dissenting votes and a number of abstentions among the 450 commissioners.

A motion that the action be approved unanimously was withdrawn when one delegate said:

"We are pressing our luck a little. We've got an 99-per-cent vote, so why not let those who voted against it or abstained have that right?"

The issue had not been expected to rise at this general conference.

The goal of the plan of union accepted in principle last year by the national executives of the United Church, the Anglican Church of Canada and the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ), is one church, called Church of Christ in Canada with more than three million members and adherents.

The plan is the result of more than 30 years of discussions initiated by the Anglican Church.

Under the step-by-step procedure laid down by the committee and approved at this general council, this is the timetable:

—That each of the negotiating churches make known to the committee on church union and joint mission by Nov. 30, 1974, the exact nature of any revisions to the plan of union.

—That there be a joint meeting of the national executives of the three churches to consider such revisions in the week of Feb. 3, 1975.

—That the general synod of the Anglican Church consider the plan at its February, 1975 session.

—That by April 30, 1975, the national executive issue a revised plan of union.

—And that this 26th general council meet in adjourned special session in June 1975, to vote on the revised plan.

The plan will then go before the various bodies of the churches in plebiscites in 1976 with re-submission of the final plan to the church memberships if approval has been gained in previous votes.

Under current plans of the United Church, only those with full membership would be able to vote, but already some churchmen have demanded that adherents have the right to express their opinions.

The United Church has about 2.2 million persons under what it terms pastoral care, the Anglican Church 1.5 million members—it does not list adherents—and the Christian Church about 7,000 members.

The vote came near the end of a hot day of frayed tempers.

But differences were forgotten in the church-union vote and a closing hymn. The commissioners sang The Church Is One Foundation.

Lion of Judah Loses His Teeth

ADDIS ABABA (WP) — The Ethipian military is allowing its war of attrition against the 2,000 year-old monarchy to reach Emperor Haile Selassie, apparently preparing the nation for his removal from power.

For the first time in the 46-year reign of the King of Kings, newspapers are publishing interviews with Ethipians who voice criticm of the monarchy as an institution and the emperor as a leader.

He has even been accused in slightly veiled terms, of complicity in the 1935 Italian invasion.

Such public attacks are unprecedented and can only happen with the approval of the military reform movement, which now controls the state-run radio and press.

Ethioppians are even beginning to draw parallels between the corruption and abuse of power that marked the Nixon Adminstration and that are being unearthed here.

"We now have our own Watergate," said one Ethiopian official. "We have watched with interest the way President Nixon was brought down."

Probably no African leader is better known to the American public or evokes more sympathy than Haile Selassie, the Conquering Lion of Judah.

His unheeded plea to the League of Nations in 1936 to save his country from the invading Italians left an impression on generations of Americans.

Selassie is now a lonely figure, left in his last years to watch the crumbling of the monarchy he built into a formidable centralizing power.

Practically all his close aristocratic allies and personal friends have been arrested by the military.

Yet he continues to maintain a brave facade of dignity, acting as if nothing has changed in his mountain realm.

He still drives periodically through the streets of Addis Ababa, handing out dollar bills to the poor. Recent foreign visitors to the palace say he is bright, alert and apparently in very good health for his 82 years.

Scientist Indicted In Hash Haul

SEATTLE (AP) — A University of Washington scientist has been indicted on charges stemming from the discovery of 1,000 pounds of hashish at the University of Washington, federal authorities say.

A federal grand jury in San Diego indicted Dr. Robert Clutter, 48, who for the past two years has been doing research under a federal grant at the university.

Also indicted was Robert Bower, 36, Del Mar, Calif., equipment manager for the Scripps Institute of Oceanography of the University of California-San Diego.

The third man was identified only as Jeffrey Hogen, 28, of Encinado, Calif.

None of the three has been arrested.

The trip is charged with possessing hashish with intent to sell, importing hashish and two counts of conspiracy.

Federal narcotics agents found the hashish in a warehouse at the university's oceanographic docks at Portage Bay after receiving a tip. Agents said the tip came from a university oceanographer who had been promised $50,000 if he would help get the drugs to San Diego.

Agents valued the haul at $4.5 million.

TTC Dispute Talks Go On

Times News Services

TORONTO — Bargainers for striking transit workers and the Toronto Transit Commission got down to the key issues in their dispute Thursday.

With a host of ancillary articles largely cleared out of the way, negotiators began tackling the fundamental questions of wages and hours, on which they have been widely separated.

The switch in emphasis was marked by the first face-to-face meeting between TTC commissioners and the bargaining committee of the Amalgamated Transit Union.

The union's 5,700 members employed by the TTC have been on strike since Aug. 12, tying up subway, bus and tram service and throwing the core area of the two million-population region into a daily snarl of automobile traffic.

The Downtown Council, an association of 350 firms, called on Ontario Premier William Davis this week to legislate a halt to the strike and impose compulsory bargaining, but the premier refused to talk about it Thursday.

TTC chairman Karl Mallette also said he did not think compulsory arbitration was necessary at this time, an the union is on record as being opposed to it.

Such a move would require a special session of the Ontario legislature, not due to meet until October.

The 16-day subway strike in Montreal has cost the Montreal Urban Community Transit Commission an estimated $1.5 million, a commission official told the Quebec Superior Court Thursday.

Jean-Jacques Bouvrette, MUCTC Secretary-Treasurer, was testifying at a contempt of court hearing for 71 members of the Montreal Transport Union, who are charged with refusing to obey an Aug. 8 back-to-work injunction.

Empress Employees Vote Strike

Empress Hotel employees voted 97 per cent in favor of strike action to back up contract demands in negotiations with CP Hotels, a union spokesman said today.

The spokesman said no strike notice would be served by the Transport Workers Union hotel division unless negotiation talks scheduled for Sept. 3 broke down.

About 360 of the 400 eligible union members voted Wednesday.

Negotiations have been going on over the past eight weeks. Both sides in the dispute have agreed not to discuss contract negotiations publicly.

Clues Support Bering Trip

STORRS, Conn. (AP) — A team of Soviet and United States archeologists said Thursday their discovery of 9,000-year-old artifacts of an Aleutian island is the "first direct link" that the first men in North American came from Siberia.

The archeologists said several kinds of tool blades unearthed in Anangula Island this summer matches blades previously discovered in Siberia.

"This is the first direct link we've had that the Aleuts came to the United States via the Bering land bridge that connected Siberia and Alaska" about 9,000 years ago. Dr. William Laughlin told a news conference at the University of Connecticut.

A. P. Okladnikov, head of the five-member Soviet team, said Soviet archeologists have found similar tools in the Gobi Desert in central Asia.

"With this recent expedition, we have now found all three links: the skeleton of the Aleuts who killed the whale, what he killed it with and the bones of the whale," said Laughlin, head of the eight-member U.S. team.

The current project began five years ago, but this was the first summer in which scientists from the two countries worked together.

The two-month expedition was financed with a $60,000 grant from the University of Connecticut, the National Science Foundation and the New York based Wenner-Gren Foundation for Anthropological Research.

Loughlin said the artifacts were found on two sides on the tip of Anangula, located in the middle of the Aleutian Island chain that extends more than 1,250 miles southwest from the tip of the Alaskan peninsula.

The artifacts were buried under an estimated six feet of earth, Laughlin said.

He noted that one site was about 50 feet above sea level and the other about 150 feet above sea level.

An Aleut specialist since 1936, Laughlin said the sites show that a village of about 100 persons at the lower elevation moved to the higher site between 6,000 and 7,000 BC because of glacial melting.

Nations Squabble Over Means Of Raising Living Standards

Times News Services

BUCHAREST — Population control or economic development?

Have and have-not nations have turned the World Population Conference into a debate over which method is best for raising living standards.

The United States is leading the industrialized nations of the west in calling for a global target to limit long-tern population growth.

Argentina and India are heading the developing countries of Africa, Asia and Latin America is calling for a new world economic order to combnat poverty.

The third world countries make up a majority at the 149-nation, UN-sponsored conferenee and seem likely to block or water down the U.S. call for population limits.

An Argentine amendment to the conference action plan says the main hindrance to "economic and social advancement of developing peoples is not population growth but an inequitable international economic order."

The chief U.S. delegate, Caspar Weinberger, secretary of health, education and welfare, said, however, America could not be blamed for the world's poverty.

"We have nothing to apologize for and a lot to be proud of," he said. "We have allocated several billions from our treasury on foreign aid. I don't think there's anv need to feel the slightest guilt."

In one of the strongest attacks against the U.S. plan, Jusuf Ali Eraj, a Kenyan delegate, called on the rich nations to "kindly wake up" to the world's economic woes.

"It's a myth that family planning will solve the problem," Eraj said.

Several prominent female social scientists suggested other reasons for the problems of the Third World.

Restricting women to the "cradle and ladle" role deprived these countries of invaluable talent and economic output, they said at a forum of non-governmental groups at the conference.

Rounaq Jahan, a social scientist from Banbladesh, said that women in rural areas or developing states must take up professions beyond "just making dolls and handkerchiefs."

She said her country and others of the Third World are not yet ready for militant women's liberation movements such as in the West.

"We are too few and we do not have the support of much of our women, never mind the men."

T. A. Manuwa, a women's rights leader from Nigeria, said her country had accepted "equal pay for equal work" in principle, but there is still widespread discrimination against women.

Williams: Base for Talks With Seattle on Skagit

Resources Minister Bob Williams said today there is a basis for talks on constricted grounds between B.C. and the city of Seattle toward settling the Skagit Valley flood-dispute.

But Williams said he is "not prepared to elaborate" and that there is no definite proposal for a meeting.

The minister was commenting on reports Thursday that the B.C. government had sent a letter to Seattle Mayor Wes Uhlman suggesting direct discussions.

"There would obviously have to be exploratory talks," Williams said.

He added the government has had a consistent strategy on the issue since the party came to office and has no plans to change.

B.C. refused to even talk to Seattle officials before the recent exchange, which the Vancouver Sun says "raise(s) the possibility of a financial settlement wiping out a 1967 agreement."

The original agreement would allow the Ross Dam to be raised and therefore flood the Skagit Valley in B.C.

The United States Federal Power Commission has been conducting public hearings in Washington, D.C., on Seattle's application for a permit to raise the height of Ross Dam.

Th hearings were adjourned Wednesday until Oct. 7.

Farm Income Figures Slammed

VANCOUVER (CP) — Statistics Canada figures indicating B. C. farmers' net incomes increased 50 per cent in 1973 are misleading and incomplete, the president of the B.C. Federation of Agriculture said Thursday.

Robert Reynolds said the statistics do not inlcude return on the farmer's investment, labor costs for the owner-operator and his family, depreciating machinery and unpaid family labor.

"Further, they attribute all the income to one person, when in fact it's a whole family," Reynolds said.

He said although the figures show commercial farm families' average incomes have risen from $8,000 to $12,000 the 50 per cent figure is insignificant considering the investment, farm management charges and labor income for at least three working people the income has to provide.

"An increase of 50 per cent over a little figure is still a little figure," he said. "If it were the income of one person it would be reasonable, but it's for several people."

Reynolds said inadequate incomes are the main reason for the rapid decline in the number of family farms. He said the incomes must be improved if increasing food needs are going to be met.

Students Face 2nd Choice

Students looking for a place to live may have to settle for their second choice this year, University of Victoria housing manager Shirley Baker said today.

Baker's office has 150 to 200 accommodation listings, a big improvement over 10 days ago, but it still needs many more, she said.

"Students are having to compromise what would be their first choice of accommodation," Baker said. Many are settling for room and board instead of self-contained units, and many are much farther from the campus than they had hoped to be.

Aerial Ferry Closing Sept. 4

The aerial ferry over the Fraser River between Boston Bar and North Bend will be closed for 30 days starting Sept. 4.

Highways Minister Graham Lea said the closure is necessary for extensive renovations and improvements to the machinery.

A substitute foot-passenger service by water transport will be offered in the interim from 6:30 a.m. to dusk.

3 Victorians On Audit Board

Three Victorians are included in appointments to the Auditor Cerification Board.

The appointments for three-year terms and approved by a cabinet order are Donald G. Campion, Maurice Jorre de St. Jorre and William S. Irwin. Other members are Brian F. Adams, Cranbrook, and W. J. Fedorak, Kamloops.

Board members receive $150 a day when sitting.

TUNA BOATS CRASH

Two American tuna boats fishing in Hecate Strait, 40 miles south of Queen Charlotte Islands, collided Thursday afternoon.

A spokesman for the Pacific Rescue Centre said the bow of the 36-foot Gem was shoved in and, for a time, was in danger of sinking.

A Canadian Forces Buffalo aircraft from Comox dropped a pump, and the crippled boat with three men aboard made it into Rose Harbor, near the south tip of Moresby Island, under its own power.

The other boat, the 100-foot Betty H, received minor damage.

The spokesman said there were about a dozen tuna boats in the area.

There was a swell, but no wind, and visibility was good, at the time.

TOD-HACKETT CONSTRUCTION LIMITED

"BUILDING A BETTER WAY WITH LOVE"

Give two children each a hammer, some nails and a stack of scrap lumber. One child has a new puppy but the other child doesn't. Tell them to build a doghouse.

The child with a puppy builds the most beautiful, tight, spacious little doghouse he can. The other child slaps something together. Identical materials, different doghouses.

Somehow, the child with a puppy to occupy his creation puts something extra into his doghouse. Maybe he thinks about it a little longer beforehand. Maybe he cares about the life of that doghouse a little more.

We like to think we build our homes the way a child would build a doghouse for a new puppy. With love. No bones about it.

Custom Plans and Quality Designed Homes in Choice Locations

Through our association with Henderson Realty Ltd. we can build a house, sell your present one or arrange mortgages and secondary financing. Many houses already under construction carry excellent 1st mortgages.

Tod Hackett is an established builder. We have expanded rapidly only because we have an excellent reputation with Banks and mortgage companies . . . people who know construction.

Because of our volume buying we can purchase materials for less. We bought subdivisions and developed our own raw land before prices rocketed this spring. We can therefore afford to sell to you for less money. Less than any competition.

How Citizen Nixon Can Raise Cash

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — Richard Nixon may sell his Florida houses and renegotiate the mortgage on his San Clemente estate to ease personal budget problems confronting him as a private citizen. And big money may lie ahead if he contracts to write a book.

Those financial options for the former president were outlined by Nixon associates, although there is no firm word on what he will do. One adviser said he expected no quick decision on future financial arrangements, his aides intend to "let the gentleman rest until he's rested."

Nixon's resignation made more immediate the money problem that began four months ago with a ruling that he owed nearly $500,000 in back income taxes, penalties and interest.

While the documents of his presidency are potentially worth millions, Nixon's problem is ready cash.

Without public funds to pay his legal fees, Nixon will need private lawyers to advise him on a pending Watergate trial subpoena and perhaps other Watergate matters.

Here is Nixon's present financial situation:

— His cash savings were virtually wiped out by a payment of $284,706 for back taxes and penalties from 1970-72, plus interest.

— He has promised to pay an additional $148,081 for 1969 back taxes.

— He was to pay $243,000 in principal and interest July 15 as the final payment of his San Clemente property, but received a six-month extension in return for agreeing to pay higher interest.

— His principal assets are his equity in the San Clemente property and two houses at Key Biscayne, Fla. He owns no corporate stocks or bonds.

— His income, instead of $250,000 as president, now is $62,950 in presidential pension, plus about $18,000 for other past government service ranging from military duty to the vice-presidency. For the first six months's out of office, he's also entitled to $450,000 in transition office expenses, then will get $96,000 a year for aides' salaries, plus other benefits such as office space.

The simplest quick step Nixon could take to raise significant money probably would be the sale of his two Florida houses, which might net him $150,000 or more.

Within six months, he'll also have to revamp his mortgage arrangements for the San Clemente property.

He might make a financial comeback by writing a book or selling his papers and tapes, potentially worth millions.

There has been no indication he will sell them. He has said the materials will be placed in a Nixon presidential library.

And no one has said Nixon intends to write a book. After his vice-presidency, he wrote the commercially successful Six Crises, but publishing experts say that paying him a big advance for a book would be highly speculative. They say that it is impossible to tell now what the public interest in a Nixon book would be in 1½ to 2 years, the minimum time before a book could be in bookstores.

BOOZE EFFECTS STUDY

TORONTO (CP) — A recent survey by Manpower Temporary Services Ltd. shows that 41 per cent of companies and organizations approached by the agency consider alcohol and drugs a problem.

A total of 127 companies and organizations across Canada answered the questions on the effects of drugs and alcohol on industry and commerce.

The survey showed that 87 per cent of the respondents feel industry has an obligation to its problem-drinker employees and 94 per cent feel the responsibility should be shared by unions.

The survey found that of those experiencing trouble, 58 per cent think employees paid on an hourly rate have more problems with alcohol and drugs, and 27 per cent think employees on salaries are more affected.

The survey also shows that 59 per cent of the respondents consider addiction to be a disease, 26 per cent think it is a behavioral disorder and seven per cent blame the problem on moral weakness.

All respondents think addiction is treatable, the survey shows.

The survey also shows 37 per cent of the companies or organizations have made use of an addiction-treatment facility or institution, and 53 per cent found the facility to be good.

More Delay Asked in Trial

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — The United States Supreme Court has been asked to delay the trial of former top Nixon aides until next year because of adverse publicity caused by Nixon's resignation.

A lawyer for former presidential adviser John Ehrlichman filed an appeal with the Supreme Court. Thursday a few hours after U.S. District Judge John Sirica reset the case to Sept. 30 from Sept. 9.

The appeal asked that the trial be blocked until at least Jan. 1, but the court appeared to reject the plea.

Sirica postponed the trial because of the volume of White House tapes to be used as evidence.

Defendants in the case include Ehrlichman, formerly Nixon's chief domestic adviser; John Mitchell, former attorney-general and Nixon campaign manager, and H. R. Haldeman, former White House chief of staff.

Ehrlichman's appeal to the Supreme Court said the publicity surrounding Watergate in general, the recent impeachment proceedings and Nixon's resignation have created an atmosphere which would make a fair trial impossible for the former president's aides.

The Watergate special prosecutor's office had joined defence lawyers in telling the Court of Appeals that the mountains of tapes and transcripts being delivered to them after screening by Sirica made it difficult to prepare for a Sept. 9 trial. Sirica had set the date six months ago, before the tapes issue arose.

The appeals court responded Thursday, saying: "We suggest to the district judge that a continuance for further trial preparation by all parties of perhaps three to four weeks would be appropriate in this case."

In another development, a judge has ordered Charles G. "Bebe" Rebozo's lawyers to turn over financial records relating to the alleged use of campaign funds for improvements on former president Richard Nixon's home and earrings for Nixon's wife.

Paddy the Bull Horns In On Hunt for IRA Fugitives

LONDON (CP) — An extensive military and police search in the Irish republic for 19 IRA members who blasted their way out of the country's top-security prison has hit several unexpected snags.

First there was an encounter with an imposingly-large and much-surprised bull, predictably named Paddy.

Paddy had been grazing contentedly in a Wicklow meadow earlier this week when a band of heavily-armed police began swarming through his pleasant domain in search of the escapees.

He tolerated their presence for two minutes before lowering his hefty horns and pawing the ground in preparation for a charge. The charge, say eyewitnesses, was executed brilliantly and the red-faced force was routed.

Fortunately, the police were able to outflank Paddy by jumping the fence into a neighboring pasture and the search resumed. One officer commented later—much later—that the incident had been overplayed by the press and said: "We have no reason to suspect Paddy's loyalties."

A couple of days later, two policemen spotted six of the fugitives in County Wexford. But the officers were quickly beaten up, tied, gagged and left struggling by the roadside.

The six men, including Kevin Mallon, a top Provisional IRA leader who has escaped from at least three jails in his career, then turned up at an isolated bungalow five miles away near the village of Ballmoney.

They were allowed to enter by Ethna Colclough and offered tea and food. They declined the food but as they sipped their tea, the crafty Mrs. Colclough escaped through a back window and ran to a house a mile away to raise the alarm.

However, just as a combined police-army force prepared to surround the bungalow, the IRA men drove hastily away unhindered—in Mrs. Colclough's car.

An army helicopter gave chase—but only for a few minutes until it ran low of fuel and had to land.

The car was then abandoned undamaged in the village of Tinahealey and a second car was promptly hijacked, this time with some difficulty. The vehicle belonged to London bus driver John Crotty and his wife, Mary.

John, however, turned out to be an Irishman, too, "and I talked to them in their own kind of language," he says, "and made it clear we were on our way to catch the boat to England and were not to be disturbed."

But disturbed they were. One of the escapers brandished a pistol and informed the Crottys the men not only wanted their car but their luggage as well.

John and Mary missed the boat, watching wistfully as their car drove away into the rolling Wicklow hills.

N.Y. Bank Robbed

NEW YORK (Reuter) — A bank robber escaped with between $100,000 and $200,000 here after placing a leather bag on the desk of a bank official and telling him there was a bomb in the bag, police said. But when police arrived at the bank they found the bag contained only two flares. They said the man walked into the Manhattan Bank for Savings on New York's fashionable East Side and threatened an assistant manager with the supposed bomb.

Water Drink With Flair Opens Scientists Meet

WINNIPEG (CP) — Manitoba Lt.-Gov. W. J. McKeag found a unique way of opening the world conference of the International Association of Limnology here Thursday.

To mark the beginning of the week-long meeting of scientists who study the properties of the world's inland waters, the lieutenant-governor swallowed a glass of water with great ceremony.

"Often there is something to do at an opening — cut a ribbon or shoot a puck," he said. "What could be better than drinking a glass of sparkling Manitoba water . . ."

The conference, said to be the largest scientific meeting ever held in Winnipeg, has attracted about 1,000 scientists from 38 countries. More than 450 scientific papers will be presented during the conference.

Beer Price Hike Looms

WINNIPEG (CP) — Manitobans, who are already facing increases in the price of liquor, may soon be facing higher beer prices as well.

The Manitoba Liquor Control Commission has recommended increases in beer prices to the provincial public utilities commission, which controls the wholesale price of beer.

The amount of the increases recommended is not known.

Nick Pyrch, president of the Manitoba Hotel Assn., says an increase in the price of a 25-cent draft or a reduction in size from the present 7½ ounces is "inevitable."

"We must get more money for the product we are selling . . . our backs are to the wall."

Women's Suffrage Leader Dies

CALGARY (CP) — Alice Riggs Hunt, a leader of the women's suffrage movement and a war correspondent during the first world war, died in Calgary Wednesday at the age of 90.

Miss Hunt was a leader of the New York Suffrage Movement from the early 1900's to the 1920's. She had been in ill health since 1967, when she moved to Calgary from Hawthorne, N.Y., to be with her family.

She led a successful career as a reporter for 15 years before she devoted to writing in 1924. She was a foreign correspondent for New York papers during the First World War and covered the Versailles Treaty and the organization of the League of Nations.

Judge Raps Court's Bungling

EDMONTON (CP) — Bungling and an overwhelming volume of work in the court system resulted in Provincial Court Judge George Forbes dismissing 35 charges against four teen-agers Wednesday.

Judge Forbes said he was dismissing the charges of breaking, entering and theft and possession of stolen property because of "the sad difficulty under which the crown operates."

"The same number of persons we had 10 years ago are handling three times the volume of cases now.

"The courts are subject to such a volume of cases we have control of nothing."

He did not level the bungling charge against any specific department but noted that the crown could only produce three of its seven witnesses.

Crown counsel Don Ralston said notices to appear had not been served personally on the witnesses. He immediately charged the men again based on new information.

The charges date back to March 21 and Judge Forbes said should there be further foul-ups in the case he would "regard it as an abuse of the process (of law). It's approaching that now."

CLEANING WOMAN FINDS LOOT BAG

REGINA (CP) — A cleaning woman has found $3,900 of the $65,000 stolen recently from a Brinks armored car in Regina.

The money was found in a plastic bag inside a wastepaper container in the women's bathroom in Simpson's downtown department store.

Officials of the department store said they believe someone may have tried to flush the money down the toilet, since it was torn and the toilet had been plugged earlier in the day, perhaps with more of the money.

Police had no official comment but it was learned the serial numbers of the torn money matched those of the Brinks shipment which disappeared during a weekend delivery earlier this month. Three men were charged in connection with the theft.

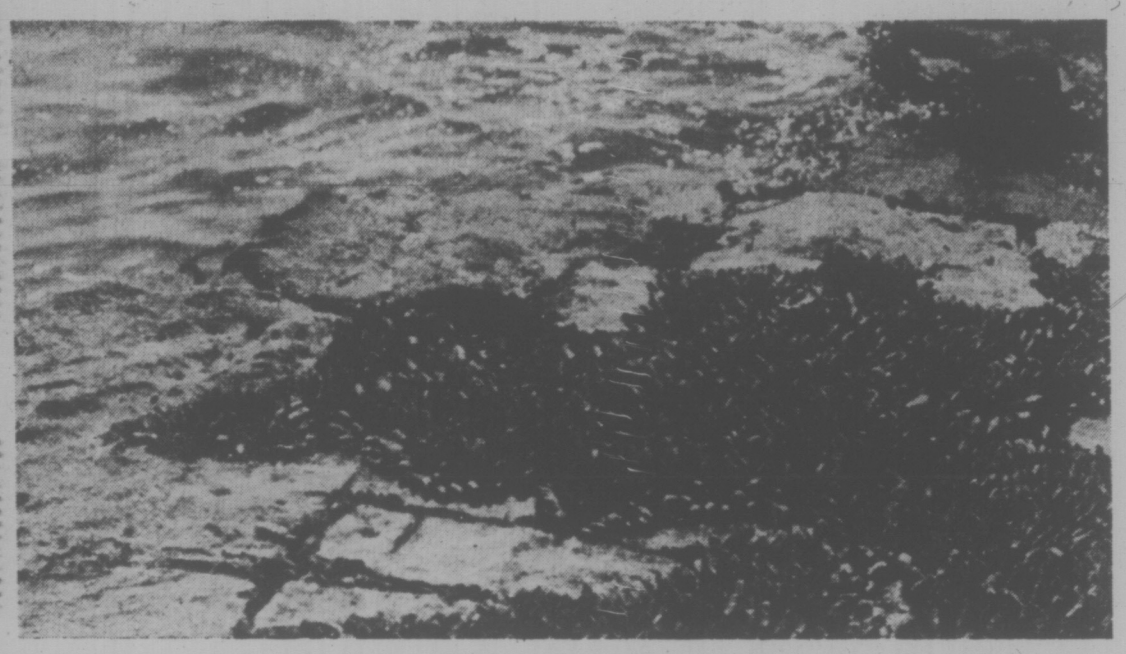
THE PARKS AROUND US

'Undiscovered' French Beach

By HUMPHRY DAVY
Times Staff



A mile-long sandy beach on the West Coast Road purchased by the provincial parks branch last September is one of the best in the capital region.

Known as French Beach, it is 14 miles west of Sooke, and has yet to be discovered by the majority of Victorians. It is ideal for picnics and a good spot to watch spectacular winter storms.

The 138-acre park includes three creeks, woodland and a marsh. The area abounds in bird life in spring.

This spring the parks branch established a temporary parking area in a small gravel pit at the entrance to the park. A beach trail has been constructed and toilet facilities installed.

On the west end of the beach are sandstone shelves with colonies of mussels. The bi-valves look like little people, grouped together for safety as they wait for the returning tide. Don't touch them. They are living things and add interest to the park.

The government paid the French family $250,000 for the property. It is the only park in the 23 miles between Sooke and Jordan River.

The park is important because the West Coast Road is becoming more and more an escape route for weekending Victorians.

The property was originally owned by James French, a pioneer Victoria naturalist, who pre-empted the land in 1894. He died in 1952.

French, with an eye to the future, hoped that a much larger section of the coast between Jordan River and Port Renfrew would be made into a provincial park or preserved as a greenbelt.

While this was never accomplished, his favorite beach and surrounding property now has been preserved for future generations to enjoy.

Farm Vacations

British Columbians will have easy access to "family farm vacations" under a new provincial scheme.

The department of agriculture has listings of farmers and ranchers willing to accommodate vacationers this year and suggests that fall would be "an excelent time" to visit farms.

The listings brochure gives approximate accommodation rates, type of farm, available facilities, possible activities, location and telephone numbers of prospective hosts.

'Shirt-Sleeve' Tax Talks Set

The legislative committee studying property taxes will meet the Union of B.C. Municipalities Sept. 17 for a "shirt-sleeve" discussion on taxation problems.

Committee chairman Carl Liden (NDP-Delta) said the meeting in Vernon will hopefully "be the kind of meeting that we can examine problems and explore ideas in a very informal manner."

The committee is charged with making recommendations for legislation to ensure an equitable distribution of real property taxation in B.C. and Liden said the members will have their report complete before the fall session of the legislature.

A seminar on the subject with provincial staff will also be held in Victoria Sept. 23, 24 and 25, and the committee will hold public meetings later.

Liden said the committee has already received some 120 briefs and letters from various groups and private citizens interested in taxation problems.

Defence counsel David Lisson said a conviction could harm her future chances of playing with the naval reserve band.

Prosecutor Bruce McConnan did not oppose the application.

Old Foes Work Side by Side In Clearing Mozambique Mines

By MARTIN DICKSON

LOURENCO MARQUES, Mozambique, (Reuter) — Four months ago the sight would have been unimaginable: Portuguese soldiers and African national guerrillas working side by side to remove land mines planted along the dirt roads of rural Mozambique.

But such scenes of co-operation are taking place in several former battle-zones as the guns of Mozambique's 10-year guerrilla war fall silent and the territory prepares itself for independence after 400 years of Portuguese rule.

No official truce has yet been signed between the Portuguese government and the Frelimo (Mozambique Liberation Front) guerrilla movement, but an official ceasefire exists over most of the East African territory.

Last April's Lisbon coup committed Portugal to decolonization in Africa, and with the Frelimo aim of independence now assured, both sides seem eager to end hostilities.

In some areas, active co-operation has replaced gunfire. Apart from clearing mines, guerrillas and troops together have been carrying out policing activities.

Conflict continues in only two areas: The extreme northeast Cabo Delgado district, which borders Tanzania, and the Inhaminga area of north-central Mozambique.

In several areas, many of Mozambique's 200,000 whites have responded warmly to the cessation of hostilities: Portuguese men have escorted a group of guerrillas into the northwest town of Tete and given them a heroic reception.

In the rich central farming area of Vila Pery, local white farmers have been inviting guerrillas home for dinner.

However, the delay in reaching an official ceasefire is reported to be having a bad effect on soldiers' morale.

FEAR DELAY

Army sources and government officials fear that a long delay in reaching a settlement might allow opponents of Frelimo—both black and white—to rally their followers in an attempt to create a potentially violent third force.

Andriao Rodrigues, a prominent Frelimo supporter here, claims that in some areas bands of armed men falsely claiming to represent Frelimo are making raids on African homesteads in an attempt to stir up troubles for the liberation front.

The military authorities have also received reports of agitators attempting to foment anti-Frelimo feelings in Beira, claiming that the organization would ban religion if it gained power.

Frelimo and the Portuguese government are understood to have held a series of secret meetings in Dar es Salaam and Rome to thrash out a blueprint for Mozambique's future, but so far no agreement has been forthcoming.

The main issue seems to be the role Frelimo should play in a provisional government to lead Mozambique to independence.

There has also been speculation that the liberation front wants to see Portugal disarm Mozambique's tough force of special African soldiers—who might provide a potential opposition—and close the protected villages for tribes people which were erected during the guerrilla war.

Just what is holding up a complete ceasefire is not known, but one high-ranking military officer said: "The sooner a ceasefire comes the better it will be for Mozambique—and for Frelimo."

Fierce Uprising At Indian Trial

ST. PAUL, Minn. (UPI,—Accusations flew in all directions in the Wounded Knee trial Thursday and the atmosphere finally grew so emotional that court had to be recessed.

It was the second day of testimony for Louis Moves Camp, a former member of the American Indian Movement who has turned witness for the prosecution.

Moves Camp testified Thursday that AIM leaders Russell Means and Dennis Banks had two meetings with representatives from China, Czechoslovakia, the Soviet Unoin, East Germany and the Communist parties of West German and Italy.

Defence attorneys said the statement was so outrageous it proved that none of Moves Camp's testimony can be believed.

The defence was to resume cross-examination of Moves Camp today.

Moves Camp, 22, also gave testimony connecting the two AIM leaders with all five charges still remaining against them in connection with last year's 71-day takeover of Wounded Knee, S.D.

During testimony Thursday Moves Camp's mother, Ellen, one of AIM's negotiators during the occupation, ran from the audience to the front of the courtroom screaming at her son "You're lying, you're lying."

After the woman was removed from the courtroom, U.S. District Court Judge Fred Michol called defence attorneys back to his office and reportedly accused them of "staging" the incident.

Sources said the judge could be heard in the hallway shouting and pounding his desk.

Later the judge adjourned court for the day after assistant U.S. Attorney R. D. Hurd told him Moves Camp was too upset to continue to testify.

After court was adjourned, a clinical psychology professor at the University of Minnesota, Mary Hall, who had been sitting near Mrs. Moves Camp told the judge she was convinced the incident was not planned.

Judge Nicol then visited with Mrs. Moves Camp and returned to say he should not have assumed so quickly that the incident was staged.

Mrs. Moves Camp said she thought the government was "bribing" her son to testify by offering an arrangement on two assault charges pending against him.

Spokane Approved

KELOWNA (CP) — The British Columbia Junior Hockey League announced Wednesday that the B.C. Amateur Hockey Association has tentatively approved the league's expansion into Spokane.

BCJHL executive director Bryan Couling said final approval is expected at the BCJHA's annual meeting in Vernon, next month, but the league is confident that Spokane will be accepted as a full league member.

Couling said that the tentative approval hinges partially ona split of playing dates between the junior Jets and the Flyers of the Western International Hockey League.

No 'Gun-Barrel' Diplomacy: Buchanan

OTTAWA (CP) — Judd Buchanan, the new minister of Indian and northern affairs, said Thursday he would absolutely refuse to negotiate with Indians, "down the barrel of a gun."

That was a prime reason he didn't become involved in a dispute over ownership of a city park in Kenora, Ont., the minister said in an interview 10 days after being named to his portfolio.

"I am extremely distressed by the element which to date has been absent in negotiations with Indians—the introduction of firearms," he said.

"I see that as a slopover of techniques used in the United States, tactics that are alien to our way of dealing with problems.

"I find it most disconcerting, a retrograde step because it can cause both Indian and non-Indian people a great deal of unhappiness and discomfort and the ultimate, bloodshed."

Buchanan also said he was anxious to deal only with Indians who had been elected to positions by their bands.

This was a policy vigorously pursued by former minister Jean Chretien and Buchanan said:

"If I dealt with anyone who came along and made threats or demands, it could mean the destruction of a policy Chretien tried to build up for half a dozen years."

If he had ignored the Grand Council of Treaty 3, the elected group covering the Kenora area, he said he would have "undermined all of the elected people from Vancouver Island to Nova Scotia."

He remained "quite happy" to sit, deal and negotiate with duly-elected Indians. "That is our policy."

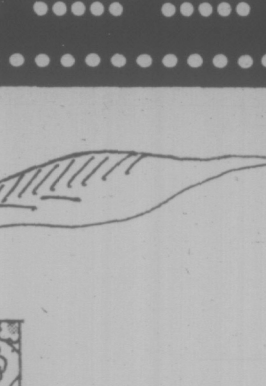
Tall and youthful looking, Buchanan, 45, was first elected to Parliament in 1968 in London West, where he worked as an insurance agent.

It almost appears as though he were being groomed for the Indian affairs portfolio.

He was named parliamentary secretary to Indian Affairs Minister Chretien in October, 1970, and in January, 1972, was transferred to the same position in the finance department. He was elected chairman of the Indian affairs committee in February, 1973.

He said he dismisses sit-ins by Indian people as "not an effective way to deal with problems."

And going back to the Kenora situation, he added:



"My stance basically is that these people by their actions and conduct put themselves in the position of being common lawbreakers."

It is up to provincial attorneys-general to deal with such actions, whether committed by native or white lawbreakers, he said.

He would continue Chretien's policy of urging a negotiated settlement in James Bay, he said.

Confrontation through the courts "is not the happiest way to deal with such problems."

He also would continue the policy of waiting to hear from Indian people before attempting to rewrite the Indian Act, which has sparked many court cases lately.

U.K. Minister Slams Strike-Break Plan - NETWORK SUSPECTED

LONDON (Reuter) — Defence Minister Roy Mason made a scathing attack Thursday against two groups which were reported to have plans to provide vital services if Britain is threatened by crippling strikes.

In a statement, Mason spoke of a near-Fascist groundswell which, he said, wants to act "as a catalyst for all those extreme and, indeed, Nazi-like functions, to band together and overthrow our well-established parliamentary democratic procedure for national government."

Mason was referring to the two groups known as Great Britain 75, or GB 75, and Unison.

The statement followed reports in London newspapers earlier in the day that GB 75 would use helicopters to jump picket lines and bring supplies too strikebound factories, or to take specialists in to maintain essential establishments in case of labor strikes.

GB 75 is the brainchild of Col. David Stirling, founder of Britain's Special Air Service who came to be known as the Phantom Major during the Second World War because of his exploits behind Nazi German lines.

The newspaper, Daily Express, says GB 75 is supported financially by leading British businessmen and industrialists with legal experts on hand to ensure that it stays within the law.

An extract from a GB 75 planning document, reported written by the 56-year-old Col. Stirling, visualizes the establishment of "the Greater Britain League," with a big, popular membership.

The document expressed Col. Stirling's belief that "GB 75 and the impact of its nationwide campaign to identify with ordinary people represents the only course open to us to help restore Parliament's authority over the unions."

Unison, the other self-proclaimed "law-and-order" organization, was founded by Sir Walter Walker, former NATO commander. It also has as its aim the manning of essential services by volunteers during a general strike.

GB 75 and Unison are not connected.

ROME (Reuter)— Police investigating neo-Fascist violence in Italy believe a "Munich connection" may lead to a trans-European network of extreme rightists possibly involved in this month's bombing of a Rome-Munich express train at Bologna, informed sources said Thursday.

The sources said authorities are investigating the relationship between Italian rightists and their counterparts in Greece, Spain, Portugal and West Germany.

Inquiries were reported centring on a neo-Fascist "summit" believed to have been held recently in Munich, West Germany, where attacks such as the Aug. 4 train bombing which killed 12 people may have been planned.

A top secret service official said the "Munich Connection," may be a key to Italian investigations. "It is well known that there are many active neo-Nazi cells in Bavaria," he said.

Police are also sifting reports that a former Italian secret service informer now being questioned in connection with a 1969 Milan bomb attack may have had links with the so-called "Paladin" organization, an umbrella body made up of right-wing terrorist groups around Europe.

Tugmen Rescued

Believing the captain of a sinking tug was trapped inside the craft, a deckhand dived from a barge Thursday night in a rescue attempt.

The incident happened in the Inner Harbor involving the 36-foot tug Seaspan Rival.

A Seaspar spokesman said John Wilcox, 33, of 247 St. Andrews, jumped in to rescue Bobby Wilson, 41, of 3219 Loledo Place, master of the Seaspan Rival.

However, unknown to Wilcox, Wilson had jumped clear as the boat went down. Both men were subsequently rescued by a nearby tug.

The vessel went down in 20 feet of water off MacLaughlin Point at about 8 p.m. as it was preparing to enter Lime Bay terminal.

Moments before it had taken over a rail barge which had been towed from Seattle by the larger, Seaspan Challenger.

Company officials have not yet determined the cause of the accident though they believe it was a mechanical failure.

The Rival was raised four hours later.

Lease Scheme Defended

A spokesman for the leasing agency Pacific Strata Services Ltd. today denied that his firm is trying to circumvent provincial legislation by selling assigned 99-year leases on suites in the Orchard House apartment in James Bay.

The firm's manager, Bud O'Connor, said the transfer of leases from Westsea Construction Ltd. to another company, Capital Construction Supplies Ltd., was completed earlier this year and therefore "pre-dated any government action."

He was referring to the new Landlord and Tenant Act, a section of which proclaimed Aug. 9 requires prior municipal approval for any lease agreement exceeding three years.

The firm has received a letter from Victoria city solicitor Jakob de Villiers, pointing out that it is a "criminal offence" under the section for the firm to enter into long-term leases without first obtaining authorization from city council.

But O'Conpor told the Times: "It appears the city was not aware that these are assigned leases we are selling. It's not a loophole because it preceded the government action."

De Villiers said he understands the solicitor for Pacific Strata Services is writing to him explaining in detail what the firm has been doing, and meanwhile he can only assume that "they are not breaking the law."

The firm is offering 99-year leases at Orchard House. It discontinued advertising the suites until the matter is cleared up to official satisfaction.

City Couple Killed

A Victoria couple died as a result of a two-car collision Wednesday, 18 miles north of Prince Albert, Sask.

Dead are James Wilson Annett, 54, and his wife Marilyn, 41, of 307 King George Terrace.

He was killed instantly; she died on Thursday.

Two Prince Albert teen-agers Robert Markling and Paul Manvieux, both 16, also died in the mishap.

Annett, a retired stockbroker, was attending University of Victoria studying law.

A neighbor, Mrs. J. M. Elliott, said the Annetts had long wanted to visit the Wood Buffalo game park near Prince Albert and decided to go this summer before Annett resumed classes next month.

Annett's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Annett, live at 360 Douglas.

Ferry Worker Talks Starting

Wage negotiations for unlicensed B.C. ferry workers start today and tentative wage agreements have been reached by three other branches of the B.C. Government Employees Union.

The three branches — corrections officers, clerical workers and hospital and allied service employees — will vote on the proposed settlement in two or three weeks, a union spokesman said today.

The union bargains jointly for all 27,000 provincial workers in matters of general working conditions, but each of the 13 branches of the union bargains separately for wages and fringe benefits.

The over-all contract was signed June 28.

Details of the proposed wage settlement were not released.

Ferry officers will start wage bargaining Saturday and negotiations for the other eight union branches will be carried on over the next month.

PARENTAL APATHY IRKS SIDNEY RCMP

"Public apathy" has raised the ire of the head of the Sidney RCMP.

Sgt. Alan Tomlins is irked by the poor response by parents to a bicycle training program slated for Sidney Elementary over the next three weeks.

"We have been plagued with calls from citizens moaning there were no courses offered here," he said. "So we, in support of the Capital Regional District Safety Council, went out and arranged not one, but three."

Despite the publicity only eight children registered.

Though 10 is the normal minimum enrolment, police and safety organizers went ahead and held a three-day session this week as planned.

"Would you believe it . . . out of the eight, only seven showed up."

He called the people's concern for the course "a lot of hogwash" and said "we have no support from the home in this thing at all."

He decried the public's attitude: "It is a really good program the Safety Council offers, with top-notch instructors. It should concern us all."

Residents, however, have one more chance for redemption.

Another course will be offered Aug. 28, 29 and 30 . . . provided at least 10 youngsters . . . and their parents, are interested enough to sign up.

Registrations are being handled at the RCMP office in Sidney.

N. Saanich Name Game May Be a Terminal One

Choosing a new name for North Saanich municipality may soon be a taxing problem, hinging on a decision by council Sept. 3.

Mayor Paul Grieve and aldermen will first decide whether there is need and support for a change from the unwieldy District of North Saanich to something more facile and appropriate to the historical and natural qualities of the northern end of Saanich Peninsula.

There is no pressure afoot to make a change, Grieve said, but he had been asked by a number of people to consider it and would leave it to council whether to proceed.

Originality counts, along with popular acceptance and suitability.

Grieve said only two names had been put forward for discussion . — Tsaykum (or Tsehum as Shoal Harbor also is known) and Arbutus, which follows from the distinctive tree abounding in the area.

There could be as many suggested names as there are topographical, marine and geographical features in the municipality, such as Coles Bay, Deep Cove, Towner-Park, Mount Newton, Ardmore and Lands End.

Residents may want to draw notice to the great recreational potential of their community and choose something like McDonald Park or Marinaland.

However, they are unlikely, in view of the large retired population, to accept Terminal City, despite the presence of Victoria International Airport and two mainland ferry routes.

Ask The Times

Q. Please explain the origin of the slang "tanner", used to identify an English sixpenny piece. A.B.

A. According to both Brewer's Dictionary of Phrase and Fable and the Oxford English Dictionary, the origin of "tanner" is unknown, but has been in use for more than 100 years.

Busload Of Books

A busload of Canadian books will be in Victoria next month as part of a western tour sponsored by the Independent Publishers Association.

The display of 2,000 books written and published by Canadians is expected to reach Victoria Sept. 19 and will be outside the Victoria Public Library from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

As Expected, Carl Is America's Best

Carl Buchan, 17, of Seattle, is the new North American single-handed champion.

Buchan never relinquished his lead in the North American Yacht Racing Union's George O'Day series since racing began Monday off Esquimalt

By the time the series ended Thursday evening Buchan was 39 points ahead of second-place winner Rick Kern of Sherman Oaks, Calif.

Ten points behind Kern was Don Trask of San Francisco.

Only Canadian in the championships, Tony Rose, 18, of 3898 Cadboro Bay ended 12th. Only .7 of a point behind him was the oldest competitor in the championships, Les Chirlwin, 56, of Stamford, Conn.

Final standings, using minimal point Olympic scoring, were:

WOMAN SHAKEN BY TV EXPLOSION

The morning news was a blast for an elderly Victoria woman today.

Victoria fire department spokesman said an old black and white television set exploded in the apartment of Mrs. F. N. Cookson, No. 608, 620 Toronto.

Firemen, who received the call at 8:15 a.m. quickly controlled the fire. Damage was minor.

A spokesman said Mrs. Cookson was "shaken up quite badly," but not injured.

She told firemen she had just had the television set repaired a week ago.

Scholarship for Every Student

Nearly 100 teenagers from more than 30 countries will arrive in Victoria next month to become the first students at Lester B. Pearson College of the Pacific.

The world's third United World College will open Sept. 25 at its 75-acre site on Pedder Bay.

The students, aged 15 to 17, will live and study at the college two years, and leave with an international baccalaureate which assures them entrance into virtually any university in the world.

College administrator John Davis said Thursday 100 student scholarships have been donated to the college, so all students attending will have their tuition, room and board paid for.

Aim of the scholarships is to make the college something more than a private school for rich kids, but instead a place where any able student can hope to attend.

Only Victorian known to be attending this year is Frances Jones, who won a $4,750 Capital Regional District scholarship.

The one provincial government scholarship went to Michael Scott of Castlegar.

Winners of three other B.C. scholarships, donated by Crown Zellerbach and the Koerner Foundation, are to be announced Sept. 9.

Construction is still continuing on the one and two-storey red cedar buildings which will house students and staff, but Davis said all should be ready for opening day.

The teaching staff of 12, chosen from 2,200 applicants from a variety of countries, is already in town and will move into its quarters on the college site Sept. 15.

Furniture, laboratory equipment, sailboats and other sports equipment are all on their way. Books for the school have also been readied, and many are now stored in Davis' basement.

Official opening of the school will be delayed until next April 19, he said, when the international council of United World Colleges will meet at Pearson College.

Council president is Lord Mountbatten.

Tribute to Tarasov

TORONTO (CP) — Anatoli Tarasov was described Thursday night as a great man who brought hockey out of the wilderness in Russia to top calibre.

The former coach of Russia's national hockey team was the first man from the Soviet Union to be named to Hockey's Hall of Fame.

Fred Shero, coach of the Philadelphia Flyers, Stanley Cup champions, delivered a tribute to Tarasov, who was unable to attend the induction ceremonies.

He said Tarasov played a great part in Philadelphia's success.

"In 1967 I read his book on hockey, The Road to Olympus, and I've read it over 100 times since. It's the greatest book on hockey ever written."

Others inducted were Dickie Moore, former star forward with Montreal Canadiens; Charles Hay, late president of Hockey Canada; Carl Voss, referee-in-chief of the NHL; Ray Coulter, a defenceman with New York Rangers of the 1930s; Billy Burch, leading scorer in the 1920s with New York and Hamilton; Thomas Dunderdale, an all-star with Victoria at the turn of the century; and Tommy Ivan, Stanley Cup-winning coach with Detroit Red Wings and now general manager of Chicago Black Hawks.

MONROE ELEY

Riders Topple Lions In Defensive Battle

VANCOUVER (CP) — Bill Baker, a defensive end for British Columbia Lions who's been named All-Canadian twice, figured he was involved in one heck of a football game Thursday night.

Trouble is, 26,803 fans who watched the Lions' Canadian Football League 9-4 loss to Ottawa Rough Riders here probably won't agree with him.

The game, a defensive struggle from the opening whistle until the final play, was hardly the most exciting thing in the world to watch, with Ottawa's defence proving a little more stingy than the Lions. The two clubs' offences spent a frustrating evening managing just 11 first downs apiece.

The one big play of the night, a 52-yard scoring strike from Ottawa's starting quarterback Rick Cassata to Jim Foley midway through the second quarter would have provided enough points for Ottawa to win.

"I've never seen three better quarters of defensive football," Baker said of the last 45 minutes of the interlocking contest.

Ottawa gained a mere 90 yards on the ground with Art Green their leading ball carrier totalling 45 yards on 12 carries. His backfield partner Jim Evenson, a former Lion, got the ball 13 times and advanced just 38 yards.

Lions ran for 120 yards with Munroe Eley's 92 yards on 11 carries the bulk of that total. Take away one 43-yard draw play by Eley and there's little left.

Things weren't much better in the air. Cassata completed five of 14 passes, including the game's only touchdown pass, for 92 yards. Jerry Keeling, who replaced Cassata in the third quarter, was good on four of six attempts for 42 yards.

B.C. starter Don Moorhead completed four of 21 attempts for 59 yards while Karl Douglas was good on two of the six aerials he tried while replacing Moorhead in the second quarter.

One fellow who didn't enjoy the game much was B.C. assistant coach Dick Zornes—the touchdown pass to Foley the subject of his ire.

"The referee (Sid Bercov) made the worst call in the history of football by not calling clipping on Hugh Oldham on that play," Zornes said. He claimed the Ottawa receiver had clipped defensive back Barry Ardern.

"I don't care what happens," Zornes continued, "I'll pay a fine if I have to.

"It was so blatant it was unbelievable. The referee was staring right at the play and never called it."

One thing the officials definitely didn't miss were three wide field goal attempts by Lions' placekicker Ivan MacMillan. All three were left of their target and resulted in three conceded points.

Lions' other point came on a 62-yard single from a Slade Willis punt.

Gerry Organ accounted for the Riders' other three points with a field goal in the first quarter.

Ottawa was ahead 3-2 after the first quarter, led 9-3 at the half and 9-4 after three quarters.

The Ottawa victory was in keeping with the pattern of play between the two clubs. In 14 league meetings, Ottawa has come away with wins 11 times and tied two others.

The win boosts the Rough Riders into a first-place tie in the eastern conference with Montreal Alouettes. Riders' record now is three wins and three losses.

In Memoriam, Softball A Toast To 'The Hawk'

A short-order day, and a few years back, several in fact, it was always a pleasant visit to the office of Dr. Art Webster, "Doc," to his closer associates; and he would either talk first and work afterwards, or vice versa, on all facets of sport. And when an eager youngster was breaking into senior baseball, he was always helpful in lending a hand, offering advice and, if there was a flaw in a swing, he could sometimes pick it out. In later years there was always that pleasant word in greeting, and sympathy is extended from this corner to the family.

And the late Joe Casey, too, is another who, besides dabbing in municipal politics, got his baptismal by managing baseball teams in the city in years gone by and was a prime force in senior baseball before the war. Now Joe has gone to that big outfield in the sky, but will be remembered here for his part in one youngster's life . . . Speaking of baseball, commissioner Bowie Kuhn put it squarely on the line a week or so ago when he said: "Now is the time for the major leagues to have a black manager" and warned "I could not function as a commissioner" if a decision is long delayed . . . Kuhn can't order anyone to hire anyone, but it is a fact that he and two league presidents are working together and exerting pressure on some of th clubs to think "black" when managerial change time rolls around, which it does every fall. And players most prominently mentioned are Maury Wills, Bill White, Larry Doby, Dave Ricketts, Ernie Banks, Hank Aaron and Frank Robinson.

With the Canadian senior men's softball championship opening here Sunday, Victorians will be able to see the best in the land. Besides, it may not generally be realized but Canada (Richmond Hill Dynes) is the reigning world champion. Dynes also won the 1973 national championship, but this year never made it out of the province. Oshawa Tonys are Ontario champs, obviously a power to be reckoned with, but as late as yesterday little was known here of the team makeup. For some reason there has been a lack of communication from the Ontario camp. Oh well, their strength will be known soon enough . . . and for those who may have forgotten, Dave Ruthowsky of Bates was the top pitcher in last year's nationals. In three games in the round robin he won all three, allowed 10 hits, no earned runs, no wild pitches, only two bases on balls. And he struck out 28 batters, the tournament high. Ruthowsky incidentally shares a record, unique perhaps for a pitcher. He drove in four runs in one game, the easy way. His only hit in the finals last year was a home run, and it put him in the record book. So what will it take to win the 1974 batting title? Well, last year, Andre Fauvelle of Hull had 9 for 16 and a .563 mark. Meanwhile, Manitoba at least has the oddest name "St. Vital Flocking Ducks." "Everybody always drops the word "flocking" complains manager Frank Clark, who really shouldn't wonder why. The Ducks (Flocking, that is) also have four players who were members of the Molson's Canadian team which were silver medallists in the 1967 world tournament. They are Don Schiedowitz, catcher, Ted Waytowich, second base; Buzz Lamonde, third base, Bob Klassen, first base. And may be heard from again.

Pitching heroes of the Ducks' playoff win were Pat Coffey, who pitched one-no-hitter, and George Archibald. Coffey is a nephew of city curler Jim Coffey . . .

Back at Gorge Vale, the guests at last week's dinner for "the hawk," Leo Derman . . . "k-e-r-r-a-g-h" are probably still snickering (they should be) at some of the stories told as Leo was roasted by the head table. People have been jailed for less if some of the stories were true. But there some deserved bouquets too, and should be preserved. Matter of fact it was Derman who got Bill Wakeham to make the switch from Uplands to Gorge. "I was a junior," Wakeham recalled, "and Leo said, 'you're not going to get anywhere on that flat course,' so I joined. And I've never regretted it, nor my association with Leo." It may not have been generally known either there was a time when Leo couldn't cash his pay cheque, the Gorge was in such dire financial straits; but now, said president Hugh Reid: "We are probably in a better position than any other club in Canada." Leo, too, is the type of walking encyclopedia, whom every media type should be endeared to. He has the happy faculty of instant recall, and I think for many people at the Gorge, and elsewhere too, former Willingdon Cupper Dave Mick said it best:

"He's one of my favorite people."

Well done Leo.

City Little-Leaguers Win in Extra Innings

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. — Esquimalt-Victoria West rallied to tie the score in the bottom of the fifth frame this morning to force three extra innings before posting a 3-2 decision over Athens, Greece to finish seventh out of eight teams at the Little League Baseball World Series.

Mike Bull, who otherwise had an outstanding day on the mound for Esquimalt, suffered a lapse in the third inning and walked two Athens players. Both later came home on a single to give the European representatives a 2-0 lead.

Esquimalt came back in the bottom of the fifth to tie it up 2-2.

Leadoff batter Guyle Cornett and Bull grounded out to put the Canadian champions in a precarious position.

David O'Brien then singled, stole second and advance to third on an error. Mike Bitten smacked a hard double to score O'Brien and Derrick Sitar received a free ride to first base when hit on the shoulder by a wild pitch. Jim Sharpe, the next batter, lined a single to left field to drive in Bitten for the tying run before Ben Christie struck out to retire the side.

Bull, who struck out a total of 15 batters and allowed only two hits, also played a key role in the winning play, in the ninth inning.

Leadoff batter Cornett stuck out, Bull was safe at first by a narrow margin on an infield single and O'Brine tapped out another single to put Bull on second.

Bull, who said later that he "liked to run" then stole third and sprinted home for the inning run on an overthrow when the Greek squad attempted to pick him off at third.

Wayne Fugett, the Athens' pitcher, also struck out 15 and both hurlers, who went the limit distance in Little League for pitchers, allowed three walks.

Athens was left with three stranded players and Esquimalt, who had runners on in every inning except the eighth, had 11 players left on base.

"We're very proud of the boys today," said manager Bob Bull, who added that the Canadian champions played excellent defensive ball behind the standout pitching.

Jim Uhren the coach, simply said:

"They showed today why they represent Canada."

Red Bluff, Calif., which dropped Esquimalt 3-0 in their opening game Wednesday, advanced to the final against defending-champion Taiwan by slipping past Maracaibo, Venezuela, 4-3 in another Thursday game.

Taiwan, seeking its third consecutive crown, had earlier thumped Tallmadge, Ohio, in the other semi-final contest.

In championship-round action, Red Bluff scored three unearned runs in the fifth inning by combining a hit with three Maracaibo errors. Boyd Hedden picked up the pitching victory as he struck out 13 batters while yielding only two bases on balls and two hits.

The team from Taiwan won last year's event with three no-hit, no-run victories including a perfect game and so far this year has collected two one-hit shutouts.

Pete Landers Makes Return

The Canadian men's softball championships will be a homecoming of a sort for one Ontario pitcher.

Southpaw Pete Landers, a pitcher picked up by Oshawa Tony's for the 12-team tournament starting Sunday, is perhaps the best-known player Victoria fans will recognize among visiting teams.

Landers pitched for Campbell River Tyees and was picked up in 1971 by Bates when the Victoria team captured the B.C. title and played in the Canadian championship at Halifax.

Fredricton Alpines of New Brunswick were the first of the 11 visiting teams to reach Victoria. The team arrived Thursday night.

Yukon All-Stars, Don's Fawcetts of Charlottetown, P.E.I., Saskatoon Merchants, Lethbridge Miners, Yellowknife (N.W.T.) Twins, Oshawa and Dartmouth Dairy Queen from Nova Scotia were to arrive today.

The remaining teams are scheduled to check in early Saturday.

★ ★ ★

All players, officials of the Canadian Softball Association and members of the national tournament committee will be guests of the provincial government at a banquet at Holyrood House Saturday.

Official opening ceremonies for the tournament itself will be held before the Bates-Alberta game Sunday evening, starting at 6:45.

★ ★ ★

The tournament's final game next Saturday will be televised nationally by CBC, with former Victoria Ted Reynolds anchoring the TV crew.

In addition, CJVI will broadcast all four games Victoria will play in the preliminary round-robin as well as playoff games Aug. 29 and 30.

Most Salmon Fishermen Happy With Conditions

Killer whale visits are still dampening action in a couple of spots but most salmon fishermen around Vancouver Island have had little to complain about during the past week.

Some limit catches of chinooks up to 33 pounds and a few coho averaging seven pounds have been landed in Finlayson Arm waters although the number of coho seems to be tapering off.

Further north in Saanich Inlet, killer whales have scattered most of the salmon but fair numbers of jacks and grilse along with the odd coho have been taken along the Ardmore shoreline north of Coles Bay and between Bamberton and Mill Bay.

Deep Cove fishermen have been boating chinooks up to 16 pounds trolling fairly shallow near Wain Rock and a few coho nearing the seven pound mark have been taken in the vicinity of Moses Point.

Interest in buzz-bombing is picking up off Oak Bay this year for the first time and the small polar-bear version of the casting lure is nailing chinooks up to 15 pounds and coho in the five to eight pound range around Trial Island and Fiddle Reef.

★ ★ ★

Roughly a fifty-fifty catch of small chinooks, with the odd one weighing as much as 27 pounds, and coho up to eight pounds is coming in from the kelp bed areas off Pedder Bay. Strip, minnow and buzz-bomb have proved to be the best producers.

Sockeye in the nine to 10 pound range, chinooks up to 30 pounds and a few coho have been picked up between Church and Bedford islands in Becher Bay.

Out Sooke way, Chuck Gregor reports any type of lure or bait is working at "all depths" for chinooks up to 27 pounds and coho up to 11 pounds near Secretary Island and Otter Point. Catches of coho, particularly, have been building up in the last week.

Again, killer whales depressed returns in Cowichan Bay after a weekend visit but there are indications this trend is well on its way to mending.

Norm Christman of Victoria landed a 36 pound, three-ounce chinook there recently and teenager David Gunn boated a 30-pounder while mooching during the middle of the week. Very few coho have turned up yet.

Catches of both chinooks and coho appear to be slackening off in Porlier Pass.

"Fantastic" is the word most often used to describe the coho fishing now being experienced off Nanaimo, where green and white or yellow and white flashtails and hootchies are landing big northern-run fish up to 11 pounds. Best spots have been the Brickyard and Five Fingers.

★ ★ ★

Chinooks in the 20 to 30 pound range are still coming in from Jack's Point, Neck Point and the Red Marker.

Franklin River is the hottest spot to snag into a tyee (ranging up to 44 pounds) in the Alberni Inlet area but some action has been noted as far up as the city. Anyone wanting to try trolling an action flashtail in hopes of catching a coho up to 14 pounds, however, will have to make the down-Inlet trip to Swale Rock or Kirby Point.

Numberous jacks are also being caught in the same places as the coho.

Other hot-spots for coho, this time up to 7½ pounds, have been Hornby Island, Little River and Bates Beach — wind permitting. Most success has been on white and grey bucktails trolled very fast on the surface of the water.

Fishing is getting picky off Campbell River but catches are great if you can find the fish. Best spots to try might be Frenchman's Pool, Big Rock and the south end of Seymour Narrows for large chinooks and Cape Mudge or Butler Point for coho. Stubby plugs, large spoons and mooched herring have produced action on chinooks while the green 1½-ounce Stringsilda is deadly for coho.

City Golfers Right on Top

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Niakwa Golf and Country Club course was easy playing Thursday for young British Columbians Robert Watson of White Rock and Dave Roxburgh of Vancouver.

Watson, a 22-year-old Seattle University student, needed fewer than 25 putts to card a four-under-par 67 for the first round lead in the Canadian amateur golf championship.

Roxburgh took full advantage of lofty approaches to sticky greens for a two-under 69.

James Fair of Daly City, Calif., William Wellman of Huntington, W. Va., Barry McKenzie of Winnipeg, Ken Doig of Seaforth, Ont., and Bob Beauchemin of Victoria were all three strokes off the pace with 70s.

"The course played relatively easy," Watson said after taking six birdies his first time competing in the national championship.

"It's not the best I've shot. I once did a 63."

The opening round was postponed Wednesday by heavy rain and a lightning storm. Play began Thursday and the low 70 and ties face a double-round 36 Saturday, the final day.

For Beauchemin, the trip to the 6,154-yard Niakwa course was a return home of sorts. His father, Emil Beauchemin, won the 1942 Manitoba junior title here and Bob was born in Winnipeg. The family later moved west.

"The pin placements, generally to the left side, are a little harder for me being a lefty," said the 20-year-old Gorge Vale Golf Club greenskeeper. "But the birdie on that par-three 15 made my day."

Beauchemin kept his drive off the tee low and into the slight crosswind that shifted often during the early part of the day. He landed less than 15 feet from the pin for an easy putt.

"This is really a great course, especially after the rain. It was my father's favorite spot."

Matching the par 71 were Cecil Ferguson of Victoria, John Johnston of Vancouver and four-time tournament winner Nick Weslock of Mississaugua, Ont.

One stroke over were John Russell of Vancouver, Michael Zichey of Sidney, B.C., Eric Hanson of Scarborough, Ont., Graham Cooke of Dorion, Que., Brian Bamford of Saskatoon, William Newcomb of Ann Arbor, Mich., and Jim Nelford of Burnaby, B.C.

Victoria's only other entrant, Dave Mick of Gorge Vale, also loomed into contention with 36-37—73.

B.C. Defeats Ontario To Capture Team Title

EDMONTON — The "foreign element" remained in control at the Canadian women's golf championships but British Columbia put its mark on the interprovincial team title Thursday.

B.C.'s team of Dale Shaw, Marilyn Palmer, Gail Moore and Val White forced into a playoff by Ontario, took the team title on an extra hole.

Ontario and B.C. both posted an aggregate of 467 for the 36-hole competition, one stroke ahead of defending champion Alberta. The four B.C. girls all came up with pars on the first playoff hole, a 344-yarder. Susan Wickware and Liz Hoffman, two of the four Ontario girls, each took a bogey.

The low net competition was won by Prince Edward Island at 448, six shots better than Ontario.

In the individual competition, foreign players held down five of the first eight spots.

Debbie Massey of Bethlehem, Pa., who wrecked the par-75 Edmonton Country Club layout with a course-record 70 on opening day for a three-shot lead, increased her margin to five strokes with a "casual 73" on the second day.

The only player who appeared to be within reach was Amy Alcott, 18-year-old student from Pacific Palisades, Calif., who had a 73 for a 148 total, as the field was cut to the low 60 and ties.

Four shots further back was another American, Peggy Conley of Spokane, tied with Betty Cole of Edmonton, who soared to a 79 after an opening 73 had left her in sole possession of second spot.

American Katie Falk of Milwaukee, and British visitor Mary Everard, also were in the leading group. Miss Everard had a 75 and tied Marlene Streit of Toronto for fifth place at 153. Mrs. Falk was tied with Liz Hoffman of Toronto at 154.

Miss Shaw, Victoria champion who plays out of Glen Meadows, appeared to solve putting difficulties that plagued her opening-round effort and came up with a par 75 and a 155 total.

She trails the leader by 12 strokes.

FERGUSON SETS PACE FOR JUNIORS

A countback gave Jim Ferguson of Cedar Hill top honors in the third round of the Victoria Junior Golf Tour competition.

The countback was required when Ferguson, Darryl Fink and John Graham, both of Gorge Vale, and Cedar Hill's Dave Rands all scored four-over-par 76s at Gorge Vale Thursday. The countback helped Fink take runnerup honors.

Steve Leung of Uplands came in with a net 70 to take low net honors.

Arnie Not Happy

HARRISON, N.Y. (AP) — A two-foot putt that wouldn't drop—followed by an 18-inch putt that missed—kept Arnold Palmer from possession of first place in the $250,000 Westchester golf tournament.

The 44-year-old Palmer, who has won only one individual title since taking the Westchester title in 1971, three-putted from two feet in Thursday's first round, but still got out with a 68.

That's four under par on the 6,614-yard course and just one shot back of the group of four tied for the lead at 67. They were former Tommy Aaron, Miller Barber, Dale Douglas and Larry Ziegler.

"I was not happy," said Palmer after his three-putt that cost him a double bogey on his sixth hole.

He rallied soon after that lapse, however, birdied six of his last 10 holes he needed only 13 putts on the small, undulating greens on those last 10—and romped home with a 68.

Also at 68 were Jack Nicklaus, Bob Murphy, Tom Watson and eight others, leaving 16 players locked within one shot of each other at the top of the standings.

Leading money-winner Johnny Miller and defending champion Bobby Nichols were two strokes out of the lead at 69. U.S. Open champion Hale Irwin, coming off a seven-week break, birdied his last two holes for a 70 and was tied with Tom Weiskopf.

All That Water But No Support

AROUND OUR SHORES

By Pat Dufour

The blind spot local government show, toward sailing was brought home to me this weekend when I called in at Schooner Cove near Nanoose to visit Brian MacLeod and Chris Brosnanson.

Brian, who once worked as a copy boy for the Colonist, opened a sailing school in May, with Chris, a knowledgable New Zealander who's done a fair stint of deep-sea sailing, giving him a hand.

Brian, who spends his winters as a ski instructor, reports the demand for instruction is tremendous and he's hoping to get some racing started in the area soon.

For $25, students get 15 hours of instruction, most of it afloat, and free membership to the Pacesetter Sailing Club, which entitles them to cheaper boat rentals, as well as offering the chance for more knowledge through workshops and buzz sessions.

Even at that modest fee, Brian is confident his school will prove a profitable venture because of the rising popularity of the sport.

★ ★ ★

He uses a fleet of well-kept German-designed Kolibri dinghies for most of the float training, finishing up with a session on Long Trick, a 41-foot ketch off John Brandelmyr's drawing board.

Brian's success story is repeated over and over again in many areas yet, here in a region considered one of the finest for sailing on the coast, not a single municipality has even considered providing a sailing school as part of its recreation program.

Unlike youngsters who are interested in ice hockey, baseball, swimming and other sports which are heavily subsidized by municipal tax dollars, youngsters who want to learn how to sail must do so through a commercial outlet or through paid lessons offered by yacht clubs.

About 104 youngsters were taught sailing by the Royal Victoria Yacht Club this summer are winding up the school with a regetta Saturday, using the club's Flying Juniors.

Commendable as such programs are, they are too few and far between.

They also exclude youngsters whose parents haven't the extra bucks to throw around.

The Kiolibris that Brian uses are built in Calgary, a city far more progressive in its attitude towards sailing, even if it is in the middle of the prairies.

Calgary runs a sailing school on Glenmore Lake, providing boats, shore facilities and instructors — producing a brand new corp of "rag haulers" every summer.

I was really impressed by the calibre of the youngsters I saw at the Calgary school, many of whom would never have known the thrill and discipline that comes with handling a boat well if municipal dollars were not pumped into the operation.

Who knows, some day some of those beginners may be competing in the North American single-handed championships, raising the odds of a Canadian becoming champ.

Youngsters in our own water-girt area should be given the same chance.

★ ★ ★

Perhaps Victoria Mayor Peter Pollen, who a few years ago, enjoyed getting away from it all on the sloop Triad, could be persuaded to include sailing on the city's recreation priority list.

Perhaps Saanich, the largest municipality with a recreation program second to none, may take the lead.

With so much water within its boundaries and the fastest-growing population, Saanich could well consider the feasibility of starting a sailing school. An obvious choice would be Elk Lake.

More and more Canadians are making it to the top in other sports, thanks to the boost given them by civic government in their beginnings.

It's about time those who want to sail got the same break.

AUSTRALIA LEADING SERIES

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — The Australian yacht Southern Cross defeated French challenger France by seven minutes and 32 seconds Thursday in the first of seven races to determine which country will challenge the United States for the America's Cup.

Southern Cross opened up a 2:26 lead at the first mark and continued to widen the gap in winds that ranged from six to 10 knots on Rhode Island Sound.

Southern Cross held leads of 4:33 on the second leg, 5:01 on the third, 5:14 on the fourth, and 6:01 on the fifth leg.

The winner of the series will face either the Courageous or The Intrepid of the U.S.

And at Presqu'ile Point, Ont., Hank Jotz and mate Mark Heckman of Berkley, Calif., won the North American 505 class sailing championship, defeating 104 competitors.

Dave Zanks and crew Chip Robeson of Virginia placed second while Phil Leitch and Peter Salisbury of Vancouver were third.

Six races were originally scheduled to decide the title, but two were cancelled during the week because of light winds on Lake Ontario.

Kershaw Clinches Driver Title

Gerry Kershaw has clinched the super-stock driver points championship at Western Speedway.

He did it last weekend by winning the main event, his 12th in a row and 13th for the season, and stands to make up to $600 depending on the size of the gates between now and the end of the season in September.

But instead of sitting back and counting the house, he'll be behind the wheel this Saturday night in another super-stock feature and if anyone can beat him, it will be worth $400. The pot will continue to swell by $100 every time Kershaw wins.

Time trials Saturday at 7 with racing at 8.

Dare To Be Great?

NEW YORK — "The Great Manzini" summoned newsmen and TV cameras Thursday to watch him handcuff himself and jump off the Brooklyn Bridge but ended up in another pair of handcuffs — attached to a policeman.

The escape artist, (right), whose full name is Martio Manzini, was mistaken by police for another of those would-be suicides from the bridge.

A police launch and seven emergency units responded at top speed.

Manzini, like any other would-be jumper, was handcuffed and carted off to Bellevue Hospital for mental observations.

Silver, Gold the Only Protections people

VANCOUVER — Economist Harry Browne says gold, silver and foreign currencies are the only hedges against the depression which started in North America 12 months ago.

Browne also said in a public lecture Thursday he would not be surprised to see Canadian and U.S. stock exchanges crash before the end of the year.

Browne said the inflation spiral actually started in 1934 when governments started pumping paper money into the economy to create employment. Governments were able to control this inflation until a few years ago but are now powerless to act.

ROCHESTER, Minn. — Novelist Erskine Caldwell was reported in satisfactory condition Thursday in hospital where he underwent surgery for removal of a growth on a lung.

The 70-year-old author of Tobacco Road, God's Little Acre and other novels, was here for a routine checkup at the Mayo Clinic when physicians diagnosed the growth.

MONTREAL — Mrs. Jacqueline Meunier-Aube, 48, has yielded to requests by her doctor and three children to halt a hunger strike she began Aug. 15 to protest Quebec's recently-adopted language legislation.

In announcing her hunger strike a week ago, Mrs. Meunier-Aube said: "I cannot live in a society which tolerates Bill 22 and I have decided to fast despite the objections of one of my children."

TEWKESBURY, England — Mary Connors, 21, hurtled out of a cannon Thursday in an attempt to vault the River Avon. She made it halfway. "Not enough gunpowder," Miss Connors sputtered as she dog-paddled to a waiting rescue boat. "I'll have another try on Sunday. I hope to make it then."

NEW YORK — Dan Rather, White House correspondent for CBS News, has been named anchorman of the CBS Reports documentary series. CBS News President Richard Salant, who announced the appointment Thursday, said it was the first time since the death of the late Edward R. Murrow that a single correspondent will head all broadcasts of the series.

WASHINGTON — State Secretary Henry Kissinger is planning another one of his marathon foreign journeys, a trip in late October that will take him to the Soviet Union, Pakistan, India, Bangladesh, the Middle East and Italy. No dates have been fixed for the trip, but Kissinger wants to address the world food conference that opens in Rome on Nov. 5. Kissinger has been promising to visit India since the first of the year, but crises in the Middle East, on Cyprus and in the White House prevented the journey.

TROY, Mich. — A Troy police officer, responding to a bomb scare at the Oakland Mall shopping centre, apparently destroyed somebody's lunch.

Patrolman Curtis Reynolds said he was called to check a suspected bomb at a shopping mall, took the "bomb" to a vacant lot behind the mall and fired at it with his shotgun.

"The shotgun slug splattered a sandwich and some pudding," Reynolds wrote in his official report.

LOS ANGELES — The latest girl entertained at Hugh Hefner's hillside mansion said she was very impressed — not with Hefner but with the "Zoo" in his yard with "monkeys, chimpanzees and all kinds of things."

Robin Autiero, 13, of Los Angeles was chauffeur-driven to Disneyland Thursday, courtesy of Hefner, including an evening rendezvous with the Playboy publisher. "He was there," Robin said, "But I didn't get to see him. He was busy playing some kind of game or something."

Robin has been confined to a wheelchair since a shooting accident paralyzed her three years ago. Hefner arranged for the day at Disneyland after a friend in Illinois contacted him about Robin. The trip to the mansion was an unexpected bonus.

TREE CARE CORNER

Quest: What is the purpose of using tree paint?

Ans: Tree paint applied to wounds and cuts acts much like a bandage to exclude moisture, insects, and disease, giving the tree time to heal itself. Ensure that anyone pruning your trees carries out this very important operation.

Three Lives Worth Just a Scant $68

Times News Services

Three people died and two others were seriously injured in two separate robberies in the U.S. Thursday.

Total loot in the two incidents amounted to $68.

In New York, Anthony Chiarantano, 39-year-old father of six, told four knife-wielding thugs who dragged him from his car that they could have his money if they spared his life.

They took his $7 and killed him anyway.

Chiarantano, a telephone company foreman, had just returned home from a family vacation and was driving a rented car alone on a dark street in Brooklyn's Brownsville slum, a mile and a half from his home.

Police said he was apparently on his way to return the car.

The four young thugs stopped the car somehow, dragged Chiarantano from it, and marched him into a darkened alleyway.

There they stabbed him eight times in the neck, chest and stomach. Police said several knives were used.

In Des Moines, two persons were killed and two others were seriously wounded because a robber wanted to leave no witnesses to a $61 robbery.

Assistant Des Moines police chief Tom Teale termed the shootings "brutal execution."

Authorities said the robber took $269 from the downtown Holiday Inn, on the city's near North Side, then started shooting. He fired five or six shots. Everyone in the motel lobby was hit. The gunman then scurried to his car, dropping $208 as he fled.

Killed in the shooting spree were Danny Peters, 21, a security guard at the motel, and Luis Trujillo, 22, assistant night auditor and bell captain.

Ted Nolte, 28, the night auditor, was shot in the head and listed in serious condition today. A guest, John Stewart, 23, of Lincoln, Neb., was listed in fair condition with wounds to the chest and wrist.

Police said the gunman entered the motel by a side entrance, and surprised Trujillo and Nolte at the main desk. Stewart apparently was in the lobby visiting or registering for a room at the time.

EVEL KNIEVEL may not have got his start this way, but if Danny Blair, of Myrtle Beach, S.C., isn't ready for the Snake Canyon, he at least can handle a lawnmower, a garbage can and some old tires.

PWA MEN REALLY HIGH

YELLOWKNIFE (CP) — Six Pacific Western Airlines groundworkers here have been suspended pending dismissal after admitting to a company investigation team that they smoked marijuana.

The six, two of whom have not completed their six-month probationary period, have launched grievance procedures against the company.

One of the six, Rick Powell, 26, of Calgary, said the investigation team inferred in their questioning that the six were involved in a drug-smuggling ring, and accused one of the four ramp workers of stealing groceries to support his "habit."

He said nine employees were called in one at a time by a three-man investigation team that flew up Tuesday from Edmonton and returned the same day. Before the interview, the nine were advised they would be questioned about their involvement with drugs.

The employees knew prior to the interview that the company's policy manual forbid employees to use unprescribed drugs. Such use is grounds for dismissal.

"Nobody sold dope or brought it in," Powell said. "It's not as if we were smoking-up in the back of the freight shed."

An RCMP spokesman said no charges would be laid against the men.

The results of the grievance are expected within 10 days.

PWA in Edmonton has issued a "no comment" statement on the incident, calling it a private company affair.

U.S. Medical Bills Zoom

WASHINGTON (WP) — Doctors bills and hospital charges are once again fueling U.S. inflation. They have increased 50 per cent faster than the rest of the consumer price index in the three months since controls were lifted.

Economists at the U.S. department of Health, Education and Welfare reported Thursday doctor's bills are increasing faster and hospital charges almost as fast as they did following the introduction of Medicare in 1967.

Those increases — which approached 20 per cent a year for hospital charges and 8 per cent for doctors' fees—created much of the political pressure for national health insurance.

That pressure subsided in 1971, when wage and price controls dampened the increase in health care costs. HEW experts have predicted that new increases in the cost of medical care could bring renewed pressure for Congress to pass a national health insurance plan—which appeared Wednesday to have all but died for this year.

Federal officials, who warned Congress in March that health costs would skyrocket if controls were not extended for them, estimated that the price increases for medical care would cost the public $4 billion this year and $9 billion next year.

According to the current consumer price index, released Wednesday by the Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics, medical care costs increased 1.3 per cent from June to July compared to .8 per cent for the price index as a whole.

Hospital service charges and physicians' fees increased 1.5 per cent.

This is the third straight month of above-average increases in hospital charges, and HEW economist Albert Baker estimated that hospital charges are now increasing at an annual rate of 17.7 per cent compared to 12.5 per cent for the price index as a whole.

Doctor bills have also increased faster than the price index during the past five months. Dr. Stuart Altman, HEW's deputy assitant secretary for health planning, said that doctors started unfreezing prices befor the freeze ended.

At the rate they are rising, Baker estimated that doctors' bills are increasing at a rate of 19.1 per cent a year.

While the fees for office visits increased only 1.3 per cent in July, the fees for obstetrical services and the most common operation — tonsillectomy — jumped even more.

Obstetrical services went up 2.2 per cent on top of a June increase of 1.4 per cent and a May increase of 1.1 per cent. Baker estimated the annual increase at more than 20 per cent. "It ran off my chart," he said.

Despite these increases, both the American Hospital Association and the American Medical Association denied that hospitals and doctors have raised charges unnecessarily since controls were lifted. Both said they had to catch up with increased costs during the time medical care was under control and most of the rest of the economy was not.

Rhodesia Atrocities Claimed

SALISBURY (AP) — Rhodesian church leaders have accused security forces of atrocities which they say resulted in three deaths and two suicides.

The ministry of law and order said the allegations will be investigated if the persons concerned are identified. The churchmen said they have withheld dates, names and places of the incidents because they fear reprisals.

The ministry spokesman said an initial examination of the charges positively identified three cases but the "allegations of ill treatment have not been substantiated."

A letter accompanying the churchmen's document was signed by three Anglican and three Roman Catholic bishops, the Roman Catholic archbishop of Salisbury and two leaders of the Methodist Church.

Drug Search By Dogs Okay

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — A federal judge has dismissed a suit against the use of dogs to detect illegal drugs at Anchorage International Airport.

U.S. District Court Judge Raymond Plummer ruled that two Anchorage residents lacked standing to seek an injunction against the drug-sniffing dogs. Melissa Middleton and Claire Shapiro had claimed the use of dogs violated constitutional guarantees against unwarranted searches.

CANADA-U.S. TRAVEL DECLINES IN YEAR

OTTAWA (CP) — Travel between Canada and the United States declined in June compared with June 1973, preliminary figures released by Statistics Canada indicated.

"In June 4.1 million U.S. travellers entered Canada, 5.3 per cent fewer than last year," the report said. Canadian travellers returning from visits to the U.S. increased four per cent to 2.9 million.

Travel between Canada and other countries increased with foreign visits to Canada up by 12.6 per cent to 158,000 and Canadians re-entering up two-tenths of one per cent to 95,000.

Seaboard Silenced

Randy Jackson slipped the silencer on Seaboard Construction's bats and a bit of rain helped put the plug in the team's hopes of a sweep of the Stuffy McGinnis Men's Softball League final.

Jackson, who yielded seven homers, in the first two games of the best-of-five series, came up with a four-hit shutout Thursday to spark Century Inn to a 3-0 victory.

The Heywood Avenue Park contest was called after five innings because of rain.

A two-run homer by veteran Mike Cox provided Jackson with all the runs he needed.

Seaboard now leads the series 2-1 with the fourth game scheduled Monday evening at Heywood.

WENDY SNAPS RECORD

CONCORD, Calif. (CP) — Wendy Cook of Vancouver broke the listed world record in the women's 200-metre backstroke Thursday night in the United States Amateur Athletic Union swimming championships.

Her time was two minutes, 18.81 seconds as she finished almost three seconds ahead of Florida's Ann Marshall.

However, her time was four-tenths of a second over the pending world record set in July by Ulrike Richter of East Germany.

California teenagers Shirley Babashoff and Tim Shaw turned in world-record efforts in 400-metre freestyle events. Miss Babashoff finished with a time of 4:17.77 and Shaw was clocked in 3:54.69.

Shaw erased the 3:58.18 mark set by Rick DeMont, who did not qualify for the final.

Fast Start by Pakistan

LONDON (Reuter) — Pakistan mauled England's bowlers on the first day of the third and final cricket test, piling up 317 for two wickets in front of 20,000 fans at the sun-baked Oval Ground Thursday.

Pakistan won the toss for the third successive time and made every use of their advantage with a succession of blistering strokes on a perfect pitch.

Zaheer Abbes led Pakistan with an unbeaten 118 while opener Majid Khan unluckily missed his first test century in England when he was dismissed for 98.

Boy Scouts Adventure Planned for Overseas After Year of Work

Twelve Boy Scouts and leaders from Victoria plan a $10,000 adventure nearly a year from now.

It may take them that long to raise the cash.

John Fear, a leader from 2nd Fort Victoria Troop, said he and one other leader will fly 10 boys to Britain about the second week of July 1975, then tour eight countries on the continent for four weeks in a minibus.

It will be an "adventure of understanding" to help the group appreciate the cultures, customs, careers, communications, characters and other complexities of people abroad.

But basic cost will be $708 plus food and incidental expenses. Fear hopes the latter can qualify for government and corporate grants. He needs public support for the rest.

The Scouts will be raising money in a variety of ways in the next 11 months — selling papers, washing cars, gardening and offering services such as rent-a-Scout for $1-$2 an hour.

Fear said he wants the boys to see what other cultures are like first-hand, although a similar opportunity will exist for Scouts from all over the world to attend the international jamboree at Norden, Norway, July 29 - Aug. 7.

"It is better to see what life is like in other countries than to just spend 10 days at the jamboree," he said.

The Victoria minibusers will stop at the jamboree three days as part of their journey through Scandinavia before leaving on the Bergen-Newcastle ferry.

They plan to pick up their vehicle in the UK, then tour France, Switzerland, Austria, Germany, Holland, Denmark, Sweden and Norway.

Air fare is estimated at $450 each; fuel cost $165-$20 each; minibus rent $26 each and sundry ferry charges $65 - $70 each.

Cost of groceries has been estimated at a conservative $50 each, but Fear appreciates already the high cost of living in Britain and Europe and will look for ways to cut costs.

Possible sources of aid for cultural development are the federal government's Opportunities for Youth program and the B.C. Cultural Fund. Fear will also knock on the doors of such companies as MacMillan Bloedel, B.C. Forest Products and Shell Canada for special donations.

Participants are asked to sign up by Sept. 7 and make a $50 deposit by Dec. 14. Fear may be contacted at 2528 Graham, 386-7282.

Newton Garden Residents Create a New Awareness

By LIZ HUGHES
Times Staff

A pilot project of the department of human resources has helped provide the 200 children at Newton Garden Village Apartments with a full-fledged program of fun and games.

The department has provided the funds for the group of tenants to hire a full-time recreation co-ordinator for two months to help get the project off the ground.

The Newton Recreation Program started in early August and co-ordinator John McIntosh says it's still going strong.

McIntosh, a university student who used to live in the mammoth apartment block on Newton Street, knows the problems of children there.

"There is a pool there, but the kids couldn't use it unless they had their parents with them and there is a playground, but until the program started there were no organized activities."

The complex is separated into five blocks, four for families and one for adults only. Many of the people who live in the family blocks are single parents who have trouble finding the time to organize outings for their children and look after the apartment and themselves at the same time.

Several of the project's initiators belong to the Parent Encouragement Program another community group for single parents set up under the department of human resources.

Those people who decided the apartment complex needed a recreation program set out to get one.

Since its inception, the program has been an example of co-operation from everyone who has come in contact with it.

The tenants have been helped along by Arch Erickson, a human resources social worker who works out of the neighborhood office on Shelbourne and who is now acting as a consultant to the project.

"The department is interested in the creation of any community program," Erickson said.

"We will probably see and hear more of this type of program in the future. If this project gets really going it could be used as a pilot for similar programs in other complexes.

"It's a good program," Erickson added.

McIntosh has organized a car wash to raise money for the group, a hiking expediition in Goldstream Park, a bottle drive, drama club, crafts instruction, a supervised swim program and various sports activities.

Throughout the project, the tenants have received full co-operatin from the apartment manager Floyd Cordick who has given the tenants the use of a room for crafts classes and meetings.

Cordick also donated plywood sheets for a bulletin board which is now up outside the office, laden with messages telling of the group's activities.

The whole project appears to have been successful in its start and all indications are that it will thrive as time goes on.

In a letter, Velma McIntosh, vice president of the Newton Recreation Program said: "We, the tenants, have a new awareness of ourselves; the kids have something to do, something to talk about and look forward to; the manager is joining in and helping us and there is a new common denominator that makes conversation with your neighbors an easy thing now."

INDIAN MATING CUSTOM ADAPTS

OTTAWA (CP) Suitable match for an educated Sikh gentleman clean-shaven, 42, well-paid job and well-established in Montreal . . .

Twice monthly, matrimonial ads like that appear in The Canadian India Times — a modern version of the ancient Indian custom of arranged marriages transplanted with immigrants to Canada.

Some of the ads, similar to notices placed in every paper in India, still specify caste and sub-caste,: "Wanted match for a North Indian Garg gotra girl, 19 . . ."

But even when the ads say caste is no bar, they usually express particular tastes and stress the status of the advertiser.

That clean-shaven Sikh gentleman, for example, said in his recent ad that "an educated girl about 30 years, five-foot-five, slim, beautiful, well-mannered, should correspond."

Engineers, doctors and lawyers appear especially in demand by women. But one ad seeking matches for two sisters said they would also consider politicians.

Baby Switch Clarified

OSHAWA, Ont. (CP) — Officials at Oshawa General Hospital say they have proven beyond doubt that a baby released from the hospital last week wearing another baby's identification band is in the right home.

However, they do not know how the wrong bracelet "found its way" onto the infant's wrist.

The baby, Cheryl Ann Farrow, was born Aug. 9 and released from hospital Thursday. Her mother, Linda, discovered Friday that the baby's identification bracelet bore another baby's name.

Danny Farrow, the baby's father, sought an investigation into the incident.

Talk of Doom Discounted

By BOB DOUGLAS

TORONTO (CP) — Despite "prophecies of doom" the world can support a much larger population — aided by better farming methods says Roger Revelle, a Harvard University population expert.

Revelle discounted predictions that the world will succumb either to extravagant waste of resources or runaway population growth.

He told the world congress of sociology that all resources are renewable. The sun is an inexhaustible source of energy, he said.

The main problem facing the world is food production — not population growth.

The Harvard professor said high-yield seeds and more machinery might increase farm production in underdeveloped countries.

But first these nations need to be developed economically to handle the expense of transforming agriculture.

Until that happens, Revelle suggested a world food bank be built up by developed countries to supply poorer countries with food when famine strikes.

He said that a world population of 38 billion to 40 billion might be supported if adequate farming methods are adopted round the globe. That's 10 to 13 times the current world population.

Roy Burman, deputy registrar-general of India, objected to Western moralizing about population growth in poorer countries.

He said Western countries have a huge hunger for consumer goods, gobbling up world resources rapidly. This is at least as serious a drain on resources as galloping population growth in developing nations.

Burman was pessimistic about population control in developing countries. He said birth control programs in India have so far failed to halt the population climb.

Alan Powell, a University of Toronto sociologist, said in an earlier interview that the outlook for most Canadian cities is bright. He doubted American urban unrest will crop up in Canada.

But he suggested Montreal is an exception. Some of the "mistakes and tragedy" of American cities were being repeated in Montreal.

Downtown areas have been bulldozed and public housing erected on a broad scale — an approach now discredited in many cities in the United States.

CANINE CAMP

MARGARETVILLE, N.Y. (NYT) — At Camp Lindo near here, a camper named Dino is "scared of thunder," according to a note from his home. Winston must be fed corn flakes with milk every morning, and a snack before bedtime preferably an Oreo or a chocolate chip cookie. And Sandy has to be watched closely so she doesn't snatch food from the other campers' dishes.

Although Campo Lindo may sound like every other summer camp in the country, it really isn't. It's a camp for dogs.

More specifically, "It's a camp for dogs whose owners want to get them out of the hot city for the summer," Ron de Strulle the camp's 24-year old owner, said the other day, perhaps a bit tongue-in-cheek.

He then added that most of the campers' parents (dogs are always referred to as "campers" at Campo Lindo; their owners as "parents") send their pets to the camp when they are going on vacation themselves.

This canine camp in the Catskills is about 160 miles from New York City on a picturesque, 75-acre rented farm set a quarter of a mile off a winding, mountain road. The farm has a pond for the campers' daily swims, plus two exercise pens and a training area. Each camper has his own red dog house, called a "bunk".

Alvarez-Welch Medical Report

DR. WALTER ALVAREZ

Recently, television programs and magazine articles have shown that oftentimes, women who have been raped have suffered terribly, not only because of fear, humiliation and sometimes physical harm, but also as they were unkindly questioned by police and shabbily treated in court. Often a woman was treated as if she were the crininal, not the victim.

Recently, I heard of a man who is known to have raped some 20 women and girls in one neighborhood, but he has not been convicted of his crimes because there were no "witnesses," and the police only have the woman's word against the man's. Yet the police have seen the man identified definitely by 19 women.

Even if one of the women did find a witness willing to testify against the man, the raped woman might decide against going to court, knowing that she is likely to be disgraced, while the rapist would probably go free.

Another thing that bothers me about this problem is that time and time again when in the paper I see that a woman or girl was raped and perhaps badly beaten up, I read that the man who had raped her had been to prison on other rape charges, and only a short time before, had been paroled. Clearly, keeping a rapist in jail for a while does not offen cure him.

I am glad to see that steps are being taken to improve our handling of rape. For example, I read that three Baltimore hospitals have taken the job of examining all alleged rape victims for the city police department. The hospital people help the girls and women with psychiatric, gynecologic and social service counseling.

Now, there comes to my desk a book entitled "Rape, How To Avoid It, And What To Do About It If You Can't," by June Bundy Csida and Joseph Csida.

Every woman should know about rape, especially since that in 1972, somewhere between 150,000 and 450,000 women were raped in America, and the incidence of rape seems to be increasing.

Some experts think that one reason for the increase in figures is that more rapes are being reported. However, it is still thought that for every rape reported, between three and 10 are not.

The authors of the book explain what a woman can expect to go through if, after she has been raped, she reports the incident to the police. She will be questioned extensively by a number of people, she will be examined and photographed, and later the photographs are likely to be used in court as evidence.

If a man is caught and she can identify him, and there is enough evidence for a trial, she will have to go through a further gruelling and often humiliating experience, and afterward, the jury may, and often does, find the man innocent. He may, in turn, sue her for false arrest and damages, or he may threaten her life.

Yet if she decides not to report the rape, and if other rapes are not reported, the problem will continue to grow as men get the idea that they can rape women without having to suffer any consequences.

The authors have a number of good suggestions for women. Women must at all times be careful where they go, and should be continually on their guard, especially walking at night. If they must walk, they should plan their route through well-lighted mainstreets, avoiding alleys, parks, vacant lots and dark parking areas.

A woman has to be especially careful in a supermarket parking lot; many rapists look for unlocked cars and hide in the back seat until the woman comes out.

If you are a woman driving alone, and you think a man is following you, do not drive into your driveway; go to the nearest police station and report the incident. If you become stranded on a highway somewhere, raise the hood, get into the car, and keep the windows up and the doors locked until the police come. Do not open the window or door to talk to a stranger.

Never accept a ride from a stranger in a car, and never thumb a ride. Hitchhiking college girls are very often raped. At home, a woman must have especially good locks on her doors and windows. A small peep-hole in the front and back doors is also a good idea.

Children should be taught that they must not open the door to anyone they do not know. Never use your first name in the telephone directory, and don't give information over the phone to a stranger.

The book "Rape, How To Avoid It," is filled with valuable and helpful information for women. It is published by Books for Better Living, 21322 Lassen St., Chatsworth, California 91311, and cost $1.50.

Ancestry Becomes A Hobby

TORONTO (CP) — Horse thieves or noblemen? Who at sometime doesn't wonder what sort of people he or she is descended from?

Don Wilson, an instructor on marriage and family life at Sheridan College in nearby Oakville, started pondering his own Scottish ancestry 20 years ago. He became so skilled in the hobby of digging into the past that he now is one of Canada's top genealogical researchers.

For the last five years he has been chief librarian at the Toronto branch of the Genealogical Society at the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. It is one of 100 branches of the world's largest genealogical library located at the Mormon church's headquarters in Salt Lake City, Utah.

Wilson says most families can trace their lineage back to the 15th and 16th centuries, when the collection of church records became widespread in most European countries.

But he cautions would-be family-tree tracers not to jump in without professional guidance.

"Many beginners lose time and money by duplicating research which already is available," he said. "You have to learn to evaluate your evidence or you may find yourself barking up the wrong family tree."

Wilson suggests that budding genealogists begin at home in tracking down their ancestors. The opening pieces of what may seem a gigantic picture puzzle can often be filled in simply by asking relatives when and where grandparents and, if possible, great-grandparents were born.

SERVICE IS GREAT — Self-service gas stations are great providing you know where the gasoline tank of your car is located. Carol Bain is determined to find the tank, while friend Jim O'Neill seems to have given up. The two were trying out Cambridge, Ont., self-service centre. Self-serve stations are on the increase in the Greater Victoria area and more are planned — a direct example of "auto"-mation.

Three's A Crowd

DEAR ABBY: I think my new husband (age 39) has more than a fatherly interest in my daughter. Lisa is 22. I am 45, but I look about 35.

It all started when I invited Lisa to come along on our honeymoon to make her feel like "one of the family." She is my only child and we've always been very close. She has been away at college, but now that she's graduated she is home, living with us.

Shortly after our honeymoon trip, my husband started taking Lisa out for lunch and buying her new clothes. Then I noticed that Lisa had lost interest in friends her own age. Maybe it's just my imagination, but I've seen some of the looks that have passed between them and I think something is going on.

I don't want to make a fool of myself, but I'd like to clear the air. I don't even know how to bring up the subject. Should I question her? Or him? What if all of this is just in my mind?—Not Sure.

DEAR NOT: If you're not sure, don't question anybody. Keep your eyes open. If there is something to your suspicions, it will come out. In the meantime, you might ask Lisa if she ever considered having her own pad. Three's a crowd.

DEAR ABBY: This will probably throw you. My husband is the best! He's a good provider, we have a nice home, he loves our kids, and spends his time and money on the house and family. The problem is MY frustrations. Our sexual relationship has dwindled to practically nothing.

He gives me the usual goodbye and hello kisses, but they're completely without feeling. He never really holds me, or caresses me. He kisses me like I was his sister.

Should the honeymoon be over after 12 years? Maybe I'm oversexed, but I don't think so. I'd be happy with a once-a-week treat, but it doesn't happen. I'm no sex-bomb, so don't suggest I meet him at the door in a see-through apron.

I mentioned a counselor once, but he couldn't understand why he needed one. Sometimes I'm so frustrated I could scream. I don't want to hurt his masculine ego. Must I learn to live with this, or is there a solution?—Frustrated.

DEAR FRUSTRATED: Don't worry about hurting his masculine ego. Tell him what you've told me. But also ask him if he thinks you're doing your part in the "treat" department.

DEAR ABBY: I met a man four months ago and I fell — but hard. He guessed my age to be "about 65," but I am 72. I guessed his age to be "about 70," but I really don't know how old he is. He acts crazy about me and is giving me a rush. There are a lot of younger women after him and I am afraid if I tell him my right age I will lose him.

If we should ever go for a marriage license do I have to give my right age? Please help me, Abby. I want this man. He makes me feel like sweet 16.—In Love.

DEAR IN: Forget about age. Yours and his. And don't mention it unless he does. Then it's truth and consequences.

To look at a close-up movie is fascinating and can be quite exciting — especially if you made it yourself.

The 12-page folder "Close-up Movies" points out that most 8mm movie cameras don't allow you to take a sharp picture closer than 3½ feet from your subject. However, with an inexpensive close-up lens you can go considerably nearer. Close-up lenses are available in various strengths. The higher the number the closer you can get to your subject.

The folder stresses that when you make a close-up movie, it is very important to measure the distance to your subject accurately, because when the camera is very close to the subject, the range within which the subject will appear sharp is rather small.

Fortunately, you can make a simple cardboard device with which you can measure the distance as well as the picture area. Illustrations show you how easy it is to make such a gadget.

The folder also contains helpful close-up lens tables for different kinds of movie cameras.

The Allotment Garden: Supplying Winter Needs

As August yields abundant crops from the vegetable plots some are wondering just how many more weeks these idyllic conditions will continue.

First a cheering note—there need be no definite end to the productivity of your plots. If you made the last recommended sowings in mid-July of carrots, peas, bush beans, lettuce, spinach, these continue producing during a normal mild fall, except the beans.

From earlier sowings you will have several vegetables on which to depend after the first frosts finish off beans, squash, tomatoes and such tender plants. The hardier ones should be looked after but not used until you have need of them when you more frost tender kinds are finished.

Parsnips, brussels sprouts, kale and leeks are not only resistant to fall frost, but are improved by several early morning frosts below 30 degs. F.

When these have occurred, begin a gradual use of these vegetables, taking a mixed supply home with you for the period lapsing before you expect to return to the plot.

Swiss chard, the green leafy vegetable with a thick white midrib, will endure a number of light frosts, so don't strip the plants now. Take some of the large leaves allowing the others to grow on for another three months or so. Even then, the roots will usually escape winter harm and continue yielding small pickings through a mild winter and keep you in fresh green next year until your first new spinach is ready to use.

Kale and leeks are the two hardiest of all. Snow, frost and hail or freezing rain — you'll still have kale leaves to cut and leeks to dig even though you must chop them out of frozen ground with a pickaxe.

Before Labor Day, try to locate a few Flower of Spring cabbage plants. A half dozen will be enough to try out. They are a chance worth taking, for if they escape a hard freeze they yield soft green heads next April or a small firm head during May just as you need a real spring boost.

Your other cabbages growing now will not keep outdoors during winter. Those with heads must be used. Red cabbages too must be taken in before hard frost.

Cabbages keep if hung upside down by their roots in a cold place — but where do you find that in an apartment?

Broccoli which has not yet produced green bud clusters should be left in the ground. Some varieties have been known to stay all winter, then put up plentiful pickings of green clusters the following spring, a most welcome sight and taste.

Yellow turnips take a little frost. Begin to use as they size up to three-inch diameter, leaving the remainder in the ground to enjoy in cool days of October and November. Yellow turnip has a warm flavor and smell to my senses.

This weekend sow a few more seeds from packets left from spring, but only the following: leaf lettuce such as Early Curled Simpson or English Cos; curled endive; green onions; parsley and chervil; Swiss chard.

Sow only a few lettuce, about 50, and do space the seed an inch or so apart. Transplanting is not so successful in late September unless we get a prolonged mild spell. The same with endive which is hardier and can take the place of lettuce.

SOLUTION MONDAY

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

If statistics were ever compiled, it would be revealed that the vast majority of the world's bridge players do not make sufficient penalty doubles. Whether this is due to their defensive inability, or to their understandable reluctance to tip off declarer as to the location of the outstanding high cards, or to their unwillingness to gamble for double stakes, will probably never be known.

At the other extreme, there are those eternal optimists who make penalty doubles on a wing and a prayer. Today's deal features one of these "trigger-happy" doublers in action. His double forewarned declarer that a finesse which would normally have been taken, would lose. Declarer heeded the warning, and ended up by collecting a staggering amount of points.

3 ♠	Pass	4 ♠	Pass
4 NT	Pass	5 ♡	Pass
6 ♠	Dbl.	Redbl.	Pass

Opening lead: Jack of ♡.

After West had opened the heart jack and the dummy came into view, declarer concluded that West, for his double, was a cinch to possess both the spade and club kings. Hence the trump finesse was bound to be a losing play.

The opening heart lead was taken by South's king, after which the ace of trumps was cashed, both defenders following suit. Next came the ace and queen of hearts, South discarding his three of clubs. The ace and king of diamonds were played next, and this was followed by the ruffing of dummy's remaining diamond.

West was now put into the lead with his king of trumps — and he was end-played. If he returned either a heart or a diamond, it would be trumped in dummy as South discarded his ten of clubs. Hoping that his partner had the club queen, West led his seven of clubs. A low club was played from dummy, and South's ten of clubs became his slam-going trick.

Had West not doubled, declarer almost surely would have taken the trump finesse — and lost his contract. East-West would then have scored 100 points, instead of losing 2220 points which North-South secured for fulfilling their vulnerable, redoubled, contract.

"$1.99?" asked Chralie. "Is that all you've got left?"

"Come on, Dad. I bought a lot in those three stores," replied Joe. "But it's funny. In each of them I spent exactly one nickel more than half what I had when we went in."

How much did he spend in all?

(Answer Monday)

Yesterday's answer: PEPPER was 121128.

Trottier Stays In Junior Ranks

LETHBRIDGE (CP) — Lethbridge Broncos of the Western Canada Hockey League have signed Bryan Trottier, 18, Marie, Saskatchewan, a winger who played the last two seasons with Swift Current Broncos before the team was moved here.

He was the second-round draft choice of the New York Islanders in this year's amateur draft. Islander coach Al Arbour said the New York club thought one more year of junior hockey would benefit Trottier.

NEWS BULLETIN

MOTOR TREND MAGAZINE, January 1973, says "HONDA CIVIC was chosen "CAR OF THE YEAR" by an overwhelming majority of our voters. Its bright design and practicality give it the potential to be a worldwide people's car. Its function and economy make it a masterpiece of its kind."

HONDA CIVIC is incredibly stingy with gasoline. Of all U.S. cars tested by the U.S. Environment Protection Agency the 4-speed HONDA came in first at 34.9 miles per Canadian gallon.

PONIES AND PARKING

VANCOUVER (CP) — Horse rides, snacks and soft drinks were offered for sale on Phyllis and Ferriccio Alfeld's front lawn Thursday as they and some neighbors protested relaxation of parking bylaws in the area around the Pacific National Exhibition grounds.

Mayor Art Phillips announced the relaxation last week and lawns and yards in the area have turned into home-grown parking lots for exhibition patrons.

The Alfelds called their effort "The Triumph Street Mall." Mrs. Alfeld said: "I understand the mayor doesn't want cars on Granville Street mall but he wants them on our lawn."

If commercial operations like parking can be conducted on front lawns, so can other commercial activities, she claimed.

"They can't prosecute us without prosecuting the people down the street," she said.

Interior Farmers Oppose Rail Line

SALMON ARM (CP) — A Kamloops lawyer representing a group of farmers in B.C. interior said Wednesday about 100 people will speak at a public hearing next week on a CP Rail application for an extra line in the Tappen Valley near here.

Jarl Whist, who represents 100 farmers in the valley who oppose the new line, said 200 other land owners have supported the farmers in a petition against it.

The Canadian Transport Commission's hearing on the applications begin here Monday.

Whist said the line would cut through a number of farms in the valley and cause hardship to the owners.

Smiliar objections were made Wednesday by Salmon Arm Mayor Martin Budziak.

"It will cut the farming are into bits," he said. "A lot of the people in the area are really bitter.

"Tappen is a very peaceful place and all of a sudden the railroad wants to put a train through it."

Revelstoke will also hold a meeting of the CTC but the atmosphere there appears more unsettled.

Revelstoke Mayor Sidney Parker said most people have decided only to sit in at the hearings and see what happens. He said he could not see it causing any problems there.

A CP Rail spokesman said that although the Railway Act allows for expropriation under specific cirumstances, "We would hope to negotiate with the owners before it ever came to that."

He said negotiations would begin with the owners if the CTC approves the applications for four new stretches of line.

Applications to build the first two stretches were filed in 1973. They cover construction of 11 miles of new track from Tappen near Salmon Arm to Notch Hill, and four miles between Revelstoke and Clanwilliam.

Third and fourth stages of the program envisage construction of six miles of new track betwen Lake Louise Alta., and Stephen, B.C. and 19 miles east of the Rogers Pass.

Estimated cost of the proposal is $42 million.

b.c. briefs

VANCOUVER (CP) — Granville Mall, this city's $2.8-million downtown pedestrian mall, was officially opened at noon Thursday, even though not all the concrete had yet been poured. Work crews frantically patched and cleaned up in a vain attempt to complete the project in time for the opening, but construction superintendent Bob Brown had to admit that it "wasn't quite finished."

It will take a few more days to pour the rest of the concrete to fill in boarded-over portions of the sidewalk, he added. However, celebration of the mall's opening, scheduled to include performances by dancing and singing groups, a loggers' breakfast and square dancing, went ahead.

VANDERHOOF (CP)—Provincial development of 100 building lots in this central B.C. village is not necessarily related to possible expansion of the government-owned Plateau Mills sawmill, Housing minister Lorne Nicolson said Thursday. His department would like to see a surplus of building lots in every community to help keep housing costs down, he added.

★ ★ ★

KELOWNA (CP)—A 1,400-acre recreational subdivision plan proposed by Capozzi Enterprises Ltd. has been rejected by directors of the Central Okanagan Regional District. It was felt insurmountable problems would result from the development, which would have had 900 lots about 20 miles east of here.

VANCOUVER (CP)—Mayor Art Phillips Thursday appealed to Vancouver residents to open their homes to University of British Columbia students this year. There is a "desperate" lack of housing for students this fall, he said. "They're even talking of such desperate things as a tent city."

The student housing office has a waiting list of 3,000 names which would have undoubtedly been much longer, but many students have apparently given up hope of finding accommodation.

Poland-Canadian Fish Venture Eyed

CARACAS (CP) — Poland is ready to provide a large factory trawler for a joint fishing venture with a Newfoundland company and is interested in a similar arrangement with British Columbia firms, a senior Polish official says.

"We need an umbrella agreement with the Canadian government to allow us to go ahead," Jerzy Vonau, head of the Polish department of maritime administration and fishery policy, said Thursday in an interview in this Venezuelan capital where he is attending the United Nations Law of the Sea Conference.

Vonau said his government is seeking open access to the profitable Canadian and United States fish markets.

He said the Polish proposal was made some time ago with a Newfoundland company which he declined to name, and received favorable reaction in Ottawa.

He said he tried for two months earlier this year to arrange a meeting with federal officials in Ottawa, but despite apparent Canadian willingness to discuss the matter there was a series of postponements.

"But we're going to ask . . . again for a meeting as soon as I get back home from Caracas."

Vonau said the postponements by Canada may have resulted from Ottawa's uncertainty about the outcome of the federal election, but now that the Liberals have been returned with a majority Vonau said he hopes the government will be willing to set up a meeting.

Under the plan Poland's stateowned deep-sea fleet would charter a factory trawler and crew to the Newfoundland company. Registry of the ship, probably one of the 250-foot vessels now fishing the northwest Atlantic, would be changed to St. John's from Gydnia and she would sail under the Canadian flag.

The Poles would undertake to train Newfoundlanders in the operation of a factory-trawler, never before been used by Canadians.

The average Canadian trawlers in the Atlantic are about 175 feet long and deliver their catches to fish plants ashore. Polish and Soviet factory ships process, cook and package their catches on board before transferring their products to cargo ships at sea.

Vonau said he hopes a bilateral agreement might be worked out with Canada to allow fish from the Polish-owned vessel to be landed in Canadian ports and to provide for his country's high standards of crew accommodation, recreation and food to remain in effect aboard.

Despite the opposition within Canada, Vonau said he understands some B.C. firms are willing to discuss joint fishing ventures with Poland. He said this possibility will be investigated if a general agreement is reached with Ottawa.

SANDEMAN SIDELINED

GREENVILLE, S.C. (AP) — A slipped disc has disabled Atlanta Falcons' first-string offensive tackle Bill Sandeman for the season.

NOW A MAN WANTS TO JOIN GALS' TENNIS

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "You're gonna think this is a little crazy," said the male voice at the other end of the telephone line, "but I'm gonna join the ladies' pro golf tour."

One-time Las Vegas sports writer Mike Schleef wasn't fooling when he said last week that he plans to challenge the Ladies' Professional Golfers' Association rules regarding who can play on its tour.

"They are preventing me from making a living on their tour," he said.

Schleef, 31, now works as a public relations director for a land developer. He said he applied six weeks ago for membership on the LPGA tour in a letter to E. M. (Bud) Erickson, executive director of the LPGA.

"He has indicated to me that he will turn down my membership application.

"And if he does, I'll file suit in U.S. federal court on the basis the LPGA is breaking the federal law which eliminated job discrimination because of sex.

"I can win a lot of money on the LPGA tour, despite being only a 15-handicapper against men. I'm not doing this for the money, however, but for the gal players who for years have been made to play for second-class prize money and have been forced to play in small towns which can't provide for a class tournament."

Schleef said he saw a great disparity between the women's tour and the men's tour. He said he was challenging the LPGA to dramatize his efforts to organize women players into a strong group to make a demand for more prize money.

"If I was allowed to play, any prize money I would win would be turned back into prize money for future LPGA tourneys.

Salt Spring Ferry Runs Aground

The B.C. Ferries' Bowen Queen ran aground in thick fog in Knapp Channel, between Piers and Goudge Islands at 7 a.m. today.

She was five minutes out of Swartz Bay on her regular run to Fulford Harbor on Salt Spring Island.

The tide was rising and she floated free at 8:30 a.m.

She returned to Swartz Bay where skin divers examined her hull and recommended she be put in drydock for repairs.

The Salt Spring Queen made the 9:30 a.m. run from Swartz Bay to Fulford and will act as substitute while the Bowen Queen is out of commission.

Vic West Responds

Sixty per cent of 1,300 Victoria West households canvassed have completed questionnaires on what improvements the residents would like to see in their area.

The questionnaire is designed to probe how residents would like to see a $1 million Neighborhood Improvement Program grant spent.

The Victoria West Community Association was told Thursday results of the survey should be announced Sept 10.

A city hall computer is being used to analyse the reports.

The program, for girls between 13 and 18, is run on similar lines as that of the Royal Canadian Sea Cadets.

Motor Vehicle Branch Denies Reports Tardy

The B.C. motor-vehicle branch today denied reports it has been tardy in supplying vital information to B.C. police forces.

"We are usually able to give information reasonably quickly and reasonably accurately," said deputy-motor vehicle superintendent Robert Whitlock, of Victoria.

He said he has received no complaints from police and the branch has been able to maintain a "reasonable service" despite introduction of a new record-keeping syste.

The charges came from an unidentified Kelowna police official who said his force has had difficulty obtaining the names of registered car owners involved in traffic infractions.

"Up until now the majority of our requests have involved fairly minor traffic offences," the officer said, "but there could be a major incident involved at any time."

"Cars are used in many crimes these days and we have found that we haven't been able to get names in quite a number of cases."

Whitlock explained the new system which came in with Autoplan earlier this year, involved the licence plate staying with the owner as he changes cars. Under the old system, licence plates stayed with the car.

The deputy said the new system is a definite improvement and will eventually speed up information.

"It may be slower than the old system now, but last year at this time we had had that system for 25 years," he said.

"We've had no complaints and it seems to be operating fine," he added.

Alberta To View Russian Jet Drills

OTTAWA (CP) — A new petroleum drilling technique developed in the Soviet Union will be demostrated in Alberta later this year, a spokesman for the federal energy department said.

Five Soviet experts are travelling to Canada under an agreement signed between the two governments in 1971 to exchange industrial technology and promote trade.

Ralph Toombs, the department's senior adviser on oil and gas, said there have been several exchange trips since the agreement was signed.

The Soviets will arrive in late fall with their drilling equipment and probably will stay for three or four months, Toombs said. So far, all drilling has been scheduled for Alberta.

The department official said that under the Soviet technique, gas is pumped into a hole under "extremely high pressure" to break rock formations and sink and oil or gas well.

At present, Canadian companies are using the rotary drilling method with drill bit and pipe, he said.

Representatives of Canadian goverment and industry saw the "jet-principle" drilling equipment during an earlier exchange visit.

"They felt the technology might be useful in Canada and so they invited the Soviets to bring their equipment over for testing," Toombs said.

The Russians have shown interest in Canadian geophysical testing methods, northern housing and tracked vehicles used for northern transportation.

At present Canadians are not scheduled to take part in drilling programs in Western Siberia, Toombs said.

"If that happens, it's further down the road," he said. "nothing has been scheduled for this fall."

Hospital Planning Stressed

The Saanich Peninsula Hospital Board has asked again for authority to get on with planning an acute care addition, designed to ultimately replace Resthaven Hospital in Sidney.

Louis Lindholm, president of the society running the hospital, suggests in a letter to Art Young, chairman of the regional hospital board, that it makes "good sense" for the hospital to start "at once" on planning the addition, even though a new regional hospital planning agency is not yet organized.

All parties are agreed the acute care wing should be added, Lindholm says, funding was approved by referendum 17 months ago and the hospital board asked for authority to start planning almost a year ago.

"Everybody agrees the acute care wing should be constructed but up until now no one has been prepared to accept the responsibility to authorize us to go ahead."

If the hospital's plans are not to the liking of the hospital planning commission to be formed, the commission can say so, said Lindholm.

"If your plans should happily coincide with their views, precious time for this much-needed hospital will have been saved."

Crop Uncertain

SAO PAULO (AP) — A long dry spell and the possibility of late August frost in Brazil's southern state of Parana are generating concern among coffee growers and agronomists.

A coffee expert said that if the drought in north Parana continues, "serious damage could be done to the 1974 crop."

DAY CARE CENTRE TO PAY $1 RENT

Rent of $1 will be paid by the Juan de Fuca Day Care Centre for use this winter of a house owned by Sooke school board.

The board is renting the house at 1012 Goldstream for a nominal sum to the centre from Sept. 1 to June 30, in order to help the centre get on its feet.

Repairs to the house, which needs fencing, a fire escape and other improvements before the centre can get a day care licence, will be paid by the centre.

It has applied for a human resources department grant to pay for the repairs.

Day care supervisor Gerry Tromp says the centre will probably begin by providing day care to 20 youngsters. High school students are expected to help out at the centre to get practical experience in child care.

Hawaiians Visit City

A group of 68 youths and police officer leaders from the Hawaiian Islands is visiting the city.

The group, consisting of boys and girls age 14 to 18 and members of the American scouting movement, Police Explorers, is on its last leg of a two-week trip which has included visits to Expo '74 in Spokane and the PNE in Vancouver.

Thursday morning they toured the Victoria police station and civic buildings in Centennial Square.

They are being billetted in quarters at the University until they return home Saturday.

One of the two group directors on the tour, Sgt. Wayne Carvalho, of Hilo Police Department, said the Explorer movement is similar to the Canadian scouting Ventures, but was aimed more at promoting a better understanding between youth and law enforcement officers.

The trip, the group's first to Canada, has been exhausting he said, but highly successful.

Shell, Gulf To Toe Line

Shell Canada and Gulf Oil Canada said today they will join other oil companies in B.C. adhering to government price guidelines proclaimed by the cabinet Thursday.

The companies are two of three major petroleum firms that until now had refused to follow voluntarily a suggested ceiling on gasoline and heating oil price increases last winter.

Shell and Imperial Oil Ltd. both disagreed with the proclamation of Energy Act power linking adherence to guildelines with special grants to operators. However, Shell said: "Our position would be to obey the law and cooperate with the (energy) commission in making the system work."

Gulf Oil Canada Ltd. corporate affairs manager A. W. Torrell said: "When we receive this order, and it is written as I expect it to be, then we will comply."

The spokesman said Shell would respond when the company receives confirmation of the cabinet order and its accompanying regulations applying to the marketing of petroleum products.

He said Shell was not surprised by the action Thursday as the Energy Act is the only legislative vehicle available to make a previously planned system of consumer grants work.

The grants to oil companies will be available only to those firms that comply with the price guidelines.

Imperial and Standard Oil Co. of B.C. Ltd. did comply with the voluntary price restraint, while Shell, Gulf Oil Canada Ltd. and Texaco Canada Ltd. ignored the government request and allowed prices of gasoline to rise above the suggested 8-cent maximum per gallon. The ceiling set Thursday is 8 cents-a-gallon on both gasoline and furnace oil.

Imperial's corporate manager Cliff Goddard said "the only reason we are abiding by the guidelines is to comply with the anticipated law."

He disagreed the oil industry should be included with public utility companies under the Energy Act because oil companies are competitive and utilities are not.

The system of consumer grants is unfair because that introduced a non-competitive factor to the industry, Goddard said.

The proclaimed section of the Energy Act "gives the government complete open-ended control (of prices) and is going to have a negative effect on the industry. It is bound to affect new undertakings planned for the province.

"To try to operate a competitive enterprise in that kind of environment makes it difficult and discouraging to private industry. If the industry suffers, ultimately the consumer and public at large suffer," Goddard said.

He said the conflict of private competition and the system of grants in the framework of the Energy Act is like "dealing with one segment of an orange. It is better to deal with the whole orange."

Trading Shifts Alarm Ottawa

By PETER THOMSON
Special to The Times

OTTAWA — Dramatic shifts in Canadian trade patterns and a dangerous decline in exports of finished products were revealed Thursday in a Statistics Canada report on Canadian imports and exports for the first half of 1974.

Exports for the first half reached $15.1 billion, an increase of $2 billion or about 15 per cent. Imports for the same period increased by $2.2 billion, or 18 per cent, to $14.5 billion — all on a seasonally adjusted basis.

Most of the increases, for both exports and imports, were attributed to higher prices — not to increased volume.

Government officials amitted they were concerned about the drop in exports of motor vehicles and parts and other machinery and equipment.

These are generally labor intensive industries, they noted, and deterioration in exports carries a threat of increased unemployment in Canada.

The decline in exports of these catagories is attributed to the general economic slowdown in the U.S. and several other major trading partners.

The report, which does not comment on reasons for changes in export patterns, reveals a 90 per cent increase in the value of crude oil exports and a 75 per cent increase for wheat, a 35 per cent increase in wood pulp, a 23 per cent increase for newsprint and a 16 per cent increase for fabricated metals.

There was a decline of eight per cent in value of exports of motor vehicles and parts despite price increases for those products. There was a three per cent decline in exports of other machinery and equipment, a five per cent decline for softwood lumber and a three per cent decrease for metalic ores and concentrates.

On the import side of the ledger, crude oil costs increased by 116 per cent, animals and edible products by nine per cent, chemicals and products by 17 per cent, synthetic rubber and plastics by 32 per cent, fuel oil and other oil products by 40 per cent, fabricated steel by 41 per cent non-ferrous alloys by 20 per cent, motor vehicles and parts by two per cent and other machinery and equipment by 12 per cent.

The report states that "most of the increase reflected higher prices: in real terms imports rose about four per cent while exports decreased about more than four per cent."

With slower growth for exports than for imports, the trade balance narrowed to some $600 million from $800 million in the last half of 1973.

Growth in purchases from Latin America and some other countries was up sharply "owing to the high import bill for crude oil."

"A sharply accelerated growth in the value of exports took place for wheat, crude oil and pulp; and the growth of newsprint shipments was resumed.

"Lumber sales continued to decline in line, with lower housing construction in the U.S. . . . shipments of automotive and related products fell because of reduced production and sales of motor vehicles in the U.S.," the report states.

GRAIN TALKS OFF

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Labor Minister John Munro and Justice Minister Otto Lang, minister responsible for the Canadian wheat board, today cancelled plans for a meeting Monday with the presidents of four Western grain firms.

The ministers told the presidents by telegram that the companies' decision to lay off employees made it pointless to hold the meeting.

Meanwhile, the flow of grain in Vancouver has already expected total shutdown tonight.

A special session of parliament now appears imminent to force an end to the dispute and impose a binding contract.

On Wednesday, last day for which figures are available, Only 61 boxcars were unloaded by 550 grain handlers involved in adispute with the four elevator companies. Estimated daily potential of the handlers if 700 cars. A week ago Wednesday they unloaded 277 boxcars.

More than a third of the work force faces layoff as of 5 p.m. today. The Grain Handlers Union has said that layoof will be considered a lockout and all men will cease working.

A conciliation report by federal mediator Dr. Neil Perry has been accepted by union members but rejected by the companies.

2 Swoops Net $12M In Drugs

Times News Services

Drugs worth $12 million were seized in raids in Chicago and Chester, Nova Scotia, today.

In Chicago, police and federal agents seized heroin and cocaine valued at nearly $9 million and arrested nine persons early today in a series of raids.

"These raids broke up a ring supplying a major portion of the heroin found in the metropolitan area," one narcotics investigator said.

In the Nova Scotia incident, five persons were charged today with possession of hashish for the purpose of trafficking following a raid Thursday in which 1,800 pounds of hashish were seized at a nearby cottage. The drug had a street value of $3 million.

The accused are: Edward Quintin Carr, 21, of Halifax; Donald Brock Robson, 25, of Montreal and formerly of Halifax; and Bruce Keith Ervin, Patrick Marcel Mayers and Mickey Lynn Hale, all of Vancouver.

Police said the hashish, packed in blocks weighing 2½ pounds each, was located on the ground floor of the cottage.

U.S. Eyes Float For Own Oil

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — President Ford is considering a proposal to lift the price ceiling on domestically - produced crude oil, which could cause steep price increases.

The proposal is contained in a "closely-guarded" administration working paper, and is apparently one of a number of alternatives being considered to reduce demand for gasoline and other petroleum products and cut U.S. reliance on foreign oil suppliers, according to government sources.

The proposal is to lift the $5.25-a-barrel ceiling price on "old domestic crude oil," which accounts for 75 per cent of U.S. produced crude, the newspaper said.

"New oil" production above the 1972 level is not subject to controls, to stimulate increased production and exploration.

Foreign oil now sells for $10 to $11 a barrel, and if the U.S. crude oil price ceiling were lifted, the cost could double to that level, which would cause an increase of 4 to 5 cents a gallon at the retail level.

The proposal has been prepared by teams from the president's council of economic advisers, the federal energy administration and the treasury department.

Backers of the plan say removing the price lid or "equalizing" foreign and U.S. crude oil price differences would probably have short-term inflationary effects. The rationale behind the proposal, however, suggests the increased domestic price would reduce demand and, in the end, cut crude oil imports by between 3 and 10 per cent, sources said.

Allowing the U.S. crude oil prices to float toward the much higher foreign prices some proponents of the idea believe, would introduce a new element of competition into the system, forcing the Arab states and other foreign producers to eventually reduce prices.

The proposal is also seen as a means of encouraging oil firms to drill deeper to recover more oil from petroleum fields — so-called "secondary" and "tertiary" recovery — thereby increasing much-needed domestic oil producducing U.S. dependence on tion and, again, somewhat re-foreign oil, the sources said.

Both Kuwait and Venezuela announced Thursday they are cutting back oil production in order to keep prices up.

Venezuela said it will cut production by 100,000 barrels a day immediately to dry up what it called an oversupply that is pushing prices downwards.

Kuwait has reduced its oil production for this month and will cut it even further during the coming two months in an effort to keep oil prices up.

Mine Explodes

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (UPI)—A land mine exploded under a Rhodesian army truck today, killing two white soldiers and injuring eight, a security forces communique announced.

Officer Gunned Down

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — A man carrying a sub-machine-gun burst into a crowded tavern in the town of Omagh today and fatally shot a senior British police intelligence officer who was having lunch, security forces said.

The policeman, an inspector in the special branch, Britain's police intelligence unit, died after the gunman coolly reloaded his weapon and then fired a second burst into the officer's body as it lay on the floor, a security force spokesman said.

The inspector was sitting with friends in a tavern in Omagh, 70 miles west of Belfast, when the gunman rushed in.

It was the second shooting death in the province in less than 24 hours and the 1,064th fatality in more than five years of violence in the province, which is united with Great Britain.

Late Thursday gunmen shot and killed a young man who was taking a traffic census for the government's environment department, police said.

A second man was injured in the incident, which took place near Dungannon, 35 miles west of Belfast.

Also in Belfast, John Hume, deputy leader of the mainly Catholic Social Democratic and Labor Party (SDLP) said Thursday night two men tried to abduct him as he waited in a Belfast airport for a flight to London.

THIRD W. GERMAN BANK COLLAPSES

BONN (Reuter) — The small Hamburg private bank of H. Wolff ceased trading today, the Federation of German Banks said in a statement.

A spokesman for the federation said the owner of the bank, whom it did not name, returned his trading licence to the federal banking supervisory office in Berlin today.

It was the third bank collapse in West Germany in two months.

Bankhaus Wolff KG Hamburg is one of the smaller private banks with an annual turnover of about 80 million marks (about $31.2 million).

The series of private bank closures began June 26 when the Herstatt Bank in Cologne, the biggest private bank in the country, was officially ordered to cease business and turn in its banking licence because it had run up heavy losses in foreign-exchange deals which were alleged to have been falsely entered in its books.

Herstatt had debts of 500 million marks nearly $200 million when it was closed down.

The Frankfurt banking house of Bass and Herz went into liquidation Aug. 12, largely due to financial problems of an industrial group with which it was connected.

No explanation was immediately available for the closure of the Wolff bank. A spokesman for the bank declined to make any statement.

ONE WAY to get away from it all is to take your canoe out on the Gorge waterway and just do a little easy driftin'. Dave Larsson has found solitude but he's keeping in touch with the rest of the world by listening to his radio. (John McKay photo)

Syrian Forces Put On Alert

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Syria has placed its armed forces on the alert to counter Israeli military moves, says the pro-Palestinian newspaper Al Moharrer.

Officials in Damascus had no comment.

The newspaper, which gave no source for its report, says the Syrian move followed recent Israeli official statements that reservists will be called up in the next few days for "military exercises."

Meanwhile, the Suez Canal, closed to commercial ships since the 1967 Middle East War, may be re-opened by January, the head of the four-nation mine clearing and salvage operations said today.

Tugmen Rescued

Believing the captain of a sinking tug was trapped inside the craft, a deckhand dived from a barge Thursday night in a rescue attempt.

The incident happened in the Inner Harbor involving the 36-foot tug Seaspan Rival.

A Seaspar spokesman said John Wilcox, 33, of 247 St. Andrews, jumped in to rescue Bobby Wilson, 41, of 3219 Loledo Place, master of the Seaspan Rival.

However, unknown to Wilcox, Wilson had jumped clear as the boat went down. Both men were subsequently rescued by a nearby tug.

The vessel went down in 20 feet of water off MacLaughlin Point at about 8 p.m. as it was preparing to enter Lime Bay terminal.

Moments before it had taken over a rail barge which had been towed from Seattle by the larger, Seaspan Challenger.

Company officials have not yet determined the cause of the accident though they believe it was a mechanical failure.

The Rival was raised four hours later.

Lease Scheme Defended

A spokesman for the leasing agency Pacific Strata Services Ltd. today denied that his firm is trying to circumvent provincial legislation by selling assigned 99-year leases on suites in the Orchard House apartment in James Bay.

The firm's manager, Bud O'Connor, said the transfer of leases from Westsea Construction Ltd. to another company, Capital Construction Supplies Ltd., was completed earlier this year and therefore "pre-dated any government action."

He was referring to the new Landlord and Tenant Act, a section of which proclaimed Aug. 9 requires prior municipal approval for any lease agreement exceeding three years.

The firm has received a letter from Victoria city solicitor Jakob de Villiers, pointing out that it is a "criminal offence" under the section for the firm to enter into long-term leases without first obtaining authorization from city council.

But O'Connor told the Times: "It appears the city was not aware that these are assigned leases we are selling. It's not a loophole because it preceded the government action."

De Villiers said he understands the solicitor for Pacific Strata Services is writing to him explaining in detail what the firm has been doing, and meanwhile he can only assume that "they are not breaking the law."

The firm is offering 99-year leases at Orchard House. It discontinued advertising the suites until the matter is cleared up to official satisfaction.

City Couple Killed

A Victoria couple died Wednesday in a two-car collision 18 miles north of Prince Albert, Sask.

Dead are James Wilson Annett, 54, and his wife Marilyn, 41, of 307 King George Terrace.

He was killed instantly; she died on Thursday.

Two Prince Albert teen-agers Robert Markling and Paul Manvieux, both 16, also died in the mishap.

Annett, a retired stockbroker, was attending University of Victoria studying law.

A neighbor, Mrs. J. M. Elliott, said the Annetts had long wanted to visit the Wood Buffalo game park near Prince Albert and decided to go this summer before Annett resumed classes next month.

Annett's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Annett, live at 360 Douglas.

Ferry Worker Talks Starting

Wage negotiations for unlicensed B.C. ferry workers start today and tentative wage agreements have been reached by three other branches of the B.C. Government Employees Union.

The three branches — corrections officers, clerical workers and hospital and allied service employees — will vote on the proposed settlement in two or three weeks, a union spokesman said today.

The union bargains jointly for all 27,000 provincial workers in matters of general working conditions, but each of the 13 branches of the union bargains separately for wages and fringe benefits.

The over-all contract was signed June 28.

Details of the proposed wage settlement were not released.

Ferry officers will start wage bargaining Saturday and negotiations for the other eight union branches will be carried on over the next month.

PARENTAL APATHY IRKS SIDNEY RCMP

"Public apathy" has raised the ire of the head of the Sidney RCMP.

Sgt. Alan Tomlins is irked by the poor response by parents to a bicycle training program slated for Sidney Elementary over the next three weeks.

"We have been plagued with calls from citizens moaning there were no courses offered here," he said. "So we, in support of the Capital Regional District Safety Council, went out and arranged not one, but three."

Despite the publicity only eight children registered.

Though 10 is the normal minimum enrolment, police and safety organizers went ahead and held a three-day session this week as planned.

"Would you believe it . . . out of the eight, only seven showed up."

He called the people's concern for the course "a lot of hogwash" and said "we have no support from the home in this thing at all."

He decried the public's attitude: "It is a really good program the Safety Council offers, with top-notch instructors. It should concern us all."

Residents, however, have one more chance for redemption.

Another course will be offered Aug. 28, 29 and 30 . . . provided at least 10 youngsters . . . and their parents, are interested enough to sign up.

Registrations are being handled at the RCMP office in Sidney.

N. Saanich Name Game May Be a Terminal One

Choosing a new name for North Saanich municipality may soon be a taxing problem, hinging on a decision by council Sept. 3.

Mayor Paul Grieve and aldermen will first decide whether there is need and support for a change from the unwieldy District of North Saanich to something more facile and appropriate to the historical and natural qualities of the northern end of Saanich Peninsula.

There is no pressure afoot to make a change, Grieve said, but he had been asked by a number of people to consider it and would leave it to council whether to proceed.

Originality counts, along with popular acceptance and suitability.

Grieve said only two names had been put forward for discussion — Tsaykum (or Tsehum as Shoal Harbor also is known) and Arbutus, which follows from the distinctive tree abounding in the area.

There could be as many suggested names as there are topographical, marine and geographical features in the municipality, such as Coles Bay, Deep Cove, Towner-Park, Mount Newton, Artmore and Lands End.

Residents may want to draw notice to the great recreational potential of their community and choose something like McDonald Park or Marinaland.

However, they are unlikely, in view of the large retired population, to accept Terminal City, despite the presence of Victoria International Airport and two mainland ferry routes.

Busload Of Books

A busload of Canadian books will be in Victoria next month as part of a western tour sponsored by the Independent Publishers Association.

The display of 2,000 books written and published by Canadians is expected to reach Victoria Sept. 19 and will be outside the Victoria Public Library from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Ask The Times

Q. Please explain the origin of the slang "tanner", used to identify an English six-penny piece. A.B.

A. According to both Brewer's Dictionary of Phrase and Fable and the Oxford English Dictionary, the origin of "tanner" is unknown, but has been in use for more than 100 years.

As Expected, Carl Is America's Best

Carl Buchan, 17, of Seattle, is the new North American single-handed champion.

Buchan never relinquished his lead in the North American Yacht Racing Union's George O'Day series since racing began Monday off Esquimalt.

By the time the series ended Thursday evening Buchan was 39 points ahead of second-place winner Rick Kern of Sherman Oaks, Calif.

Ten points behind Kern was Don Trask of San Francisco.

Only Canadian in the championships, Tony Rose, 18, of 3898 Cadboro Bay ended 12th. Only .7 of a point behind him was the oldest competitor in the championships, Les Chirlwin, 56, of Stamford, Conn.

Final standings, using minimal point Olympic scoring, were:

Buchan, 8.7; Kern, 47.7; Trask, 53.7; Peter Branning of Miami, 63.8; Mark Foster of Corpus Christie, Texas, 67; David Patterson of Dallas, 68.7; Mike Hill of Newport, R.I., 70.1; Jeff O'Brien of Warwick, R.I., 72; Randall Swan of Folly Beach, S.C., 74.7; Gary Knapp of Syosset, N.Y., 78.7; Larry Levin of Honolulu, 83; Rose, 87; Chirlwin, 87.7; Michael Price of Long Island, N.Y., 99; Will Norris of Wauwatosa, Wis., 114; Gary Smith of Arlington, Vir., 117; and Brad McCoy of Canton, Ohio, 133.

WOMAN SHAKEN BY TV EXPLOSION

The morning news was a blast for an elderly Victoria woman today.

Victoria fire department spokesman said an old black and white television set exploded in the apartment of Mrs. F. N. Cookson, No. 608, 620 Toronto.

Firemen, who received the call at 8:15 a.m. quickly controlled the fire. Damage was minor.

A spokesman said Mrs. Cookson was "shaken up quite badly," but not injured.

She told firemen she had just had the television set repaired a week ago.

Scholarship for Every Student

Nearly 100 teenagers from more than 30 countries will arrive in Victoria next month to become the first students at Lester B. Pearson College of the Pacific.

The world's third United World College will open Sept. 25 at its 75-acre site on Pedder Bay.

The students, aged 15 to 17, will live and study at the college two years, and leave with an international baccalaureate which assures them entrance into virtually any university in the world.

College administrator John Davis said Thursday 100 student scholarships have been donated to the college, so all students attending will have their tuition, room and board paid for.

Aim of the scholarships is to make the college something more than a private school for rich kids, but instead a place where any able student can hope to attend.

Only Victorian known to be attending this year is Frances Jones, who won a $4,750 Capital Regional District scholarship.

The one provincial government scholarship went to Michael Scott of Castlegar.

Winners of three other B.C. scholarships, donated by Crown Zellerbach and the Koerner Foundation, are to be announced Sept. 9.

Construction is still continuing on the one and two-storey red cedar buildings which will house students and staff, but Davis said all should be ready for opening day.

The teaching staff of 12, chosen from 2,200 applicants from a variety of countries, is already in town and will move into its quarters on the college site Sept. 15.

Furniture, laboratory equipment, sailboats and other sports equipment are all on their way. Books for the school have also been readied, and many are now stored in Davis' basement.

Official opening of the school will be delayed until next April 19, he said, when the international council of United World Colleges will meet at Pearson College.

Council president is Lord Mountbatten.

Trading Shifts Alarm Ottawa

By PETER THOMSON
Special to The Times

OTTAWA — Dramatic shifts in Canadian trade patterns and a dangerous decline in exports of finished products were revealed Thursday in a Statistics Canada report on Canadian imports and exports for the first half of 1974.

Exports for the first half reached $15.1 billion, an increase of $2 billion or about 15 per cent. Imports for the same period increased by $2.2 billion, or 18 per cent, to $14.5 billion — all on a seasonally adjusted basis.

Most of the increases, for both exports and imports, were attributed to higher prices — not to increased volume.

Government officials admitted they were concerned about the drop in exports of motor vehicles and parts and other machinery and equipment.

These are generally labor intensive industries, they noted, and deterioration in exports carries a threat of increased unemployment in Canada.

The decline in exports of these catagories is attributed to the general economic slowdown in the U.S. and several other major trading partners.

The report, which does not comment on reasons for changes in export patterns, reveals a 90 per cent increase in the value of crude oil exports and a 75 per cent increase for wheat, a 35 per cent increase in wood pulp, a 23 per cent increase for newsprint and a 16 per cent increase for fabricated metals.

There was a decline of eight per cent in value of exports of motor vehicles and parts despite price increases for those products. There was a three per cent decline in exports of other machinery and equipment, a five per cent decline for softwood lumber and a three per cent decrease for metallic ores and concentrates.

On the import side of the ledger, crude oil costs increased by 116 per cent, animals and edible products by nine per cent, chemicals and products by 17 per cent, synthetic rubber and plastics by 32 per cent, fuel oil and other oil products by 40 per cent, fabricated steel by 41 per cent non-ferrous alloys by 20 per cent, motor vehicles and parts by two per cent and other machinery and equipment by 12 per cent.

The report states that "most of the increase reflected higher prices; in real terms imports rose about four per cent while exports decreased about more than four per cent."

With slower growth for exports than for imports, the trade balance narrowed to some $600 million from $800 million in the last half of 1973.

Growth in purchases from Latin America and some other countries was up sharply "owing to the high import bill for crude oil."

"A sharply accelerated growth in the value of exports took place for wheat, crude oil and pulp; and the growth of newsprint shipments was resumed.

"Lumber sales continued to decline in line with lower housing construction in the U.S. . . . shipments of automotive and related products fell because of reduced production and sales of motor vehicles in the U.S.," the report states.

Shell, Gulf To Toe Line

Shell Canada and Gulf Oil Canada said today they will join other oil companies in B.C. adhering to government price guidelines proclaimed by the cabinet Thursday.

The companies are two of three major petroleum firms that until now had refused to follow voluntarily a suggested ceiling on gasoline and heating oil price increases last winter.

Shell and Imperial Oil Ltd. both disagreed with the proclamation of Energy Act power linking adherence to guidelines with special grants to operators. However, Shell said: "Our position would be to obey the law and co-operate with the (energy) commission in making the system work."

Gulf Oil Canada Ltd. corporate affairs manager A. W. Torrell said: "When we receive this order, and it is written as I expect it to be, then we will comply."

The spokesman said Shell would respond when the company receives confirmation of the cabinet order and its accompanying regulations applying to the marketing of petroleum products.

He said Shell was not surprised by the action Thursday as the Energy Act is the only legislative vehicle available to make a previously planned system of consumer grants work.

The grants to oil companies will be available only to those firms that comply with the price guidelines.

Imperial and Standard Oil Co. of B.C. Ltd. did comply with the voluntary price restraint, while Shell, Gulf Oil Canada Ltd. and Texaco Canada Ltd. ignored the government request and allowed prices of gasoline to rise above the suggested 8-cent maximum per gallon. The ceiling set Thursday is 8 cents-a-gallon on both gasoline and furnace oil.

Imperial's corporate manager Cliff Goddard said "the only reason we are abiding by the guidelines is to comply with the anticipated law."

He disagreed the oil industry should be included with public utility companies under the Energy Act because oil companies are competitive and utilities are not.

The system of consumer grants is unfair because that introduced a non-competitive factor to the industry, Goddard said.

The proclaimed section of the Energy Act "gives the government complete open-ended control (of prices) and is going to have a negative effect on the industry. It is bound to affect new undertakings planned for the province.

"To try to operate a competitive enterprise in that kind of environment makes it difficult and discouraging to private industry. If the industry suffers, ultimately the consumer and public at large suffer," Goddard said.

He said the conflict of private competition and the system of grants in the framework of the Energy Act is like "dealing with one segment of an orange. It is better to deal with the whole orange."

GRAIN TALKS OFF

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Labor Minister John Munro and Justice Minister Otto Lang, minister responsible for the Canadian wheat board, today cancelled plans for a meeting Monday with the presidents of four Western grain firms.

The ministers told the presidents by telegram that the companies' decision to lay off employees made it pointless to hold the meeting.

Meanwhile, the flow of grain in Vancouver has already slowed to a trickle before an expected total shutdown tonight.

A special session of parliament now appears imminent to force an end to the dispute and impose a binding contract.

On Wednesday, last day for which figures are available, only 61 boxcars were unloaded by 550 grain handlers involved in a dispute with the four elevator companies. Estimated daily potential of the handlers if 700 cars. A week ago Wednesday they unloaded 277 boxcars.

More than a third of the work force faces layoff as of 5 p.m. today. The Grain Handlers Union has said that layoff will be considered a lockout and all men will cease working.

A conciliation report by federal mediator Dr. Neil Perry has been accepted by union members but rejected by the companies.

Tanker 'Error' Rapped

WASHINGTON (CP) — Interior Secretary Rogers Morton, in a strongly-worded letter, accused the U.S. Coast Guard Friday of "a serious error" in failing to call for double-bottomed tankers on the Alaskan oil route down the west coast of Canada. Reacting to recently-proposed Coast Guard regulations, Morton wrote:

"The department of the interior believes . . . that the regulations' failure to require the incorporation of double bottoms on all new tank vessels entering the Alaska oil trade represents a serious error which may adversely affect the environment of Alaska, Canada, the northwestern United States and, indirectly, the entire world for decades to come."

The letter was send to Rear Admiral W. M. Benkert, the Coast Guard's chief of the office of merchant marine safety.

The new regulations—which would apply to all new tankers and barges used in traffic between American ports—state: "It should be noted that double bottoms beneath the cargo tank area are not proposed, nor are they prohibited.

"While all studies ascribe varying degrees of effectiveness to double bottoms as a means to reduce accidental oil outflows in grounding casualties, this reduction is directly related to the individual ship involved."

The Coast Guard said double bottoms would not prevent spills and that new requirements for operating procedures were being proposed as an alternative to requiring double bottoms.

2 Swoops Net $12M In Drugs

Times News Services

Drugs worth $12 million were seized in raids in Chicago and Chester, Nova Scotia, today.

In Chicago, police and federal agents seized heroin and cocaine valued at nearly $9 million and arrested nine persons early today in a series of raids.

"These raids broke up a ring supplying a major portion of the heroin found in the metropolitan area," one narcotics investigator said.

In the Nova Scotia incident, five persons were charged today with possession of hashish for the purpose of trafficking following a raid Thursday in which 1,800 pounds of hashish were seized at a nearby cottage. The drug had a street value of $3 million.

The accused are: Edward Quintin Carr, 21, of Halifax; Donald Brock Robson, 25, of Montreal and formerly of Halifax; and Bruce Keith Ervin, Patrick Marcel Mayers and Mickey Lynn Hale, all of Vancouver.

Police said the hashish, packed in blocks weighing 2½ pounds each, was located on the ground floor of the cottage.

U.S. Eyes Float For Own Oil

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — President Ford is considering a proposal to lift the price ceiling on domestically-produced crude oil, which could cause steep price increases.

The proposal is contained in a "closely-guarded" administration working paper, and is apparently one of a number of alternatives being considered to reduce demand for gasoline and other petroleum products and cut U.S. reliance on foreign oil suppliers, according to government sources.

The proposal is to lift the $5.25-a-barrel ceiling price on "old domestic crude oil," which accounts for 75 per cent of U.S. produced crude, the newspaper said.

"New oil" production above the 1972 level — is not subject to controls, to stimulate increased production and exploration.

Foreign oil now sells for $10 to $11 a barrel, and if the U.S. crude oil price ceiling were lifted, the cost could double to that level, which would cause an increase of 4 to 5 cents a gallon at the retail level.

The proposal has been prepared by teams from the president's council of economic advisers, the federal energy administration and the treasury department.

Backers of the plan say removing the price lid or "equalizing" foreign and U.S. crude oil price differences would probably have short-term inflationary effects. The rationale behind the proposal, however, suggests the increased domestic price would reduce demand and, in the end, cut crude oil imports by between 3 and 10 per cent, sources said.

Allowing the U.S. crude oil prices to float toward the much higher foreign prices, some proponents of the idea believe, would introduce a new element of competition into the system, forcing the Arab states and other foreign producers to eventually reduce prices.

The proposal is also seen as a means of encouraging oil firms to drill deeper to recover more oil from petroleum fields — so-called "secondary" and "tertiary" recovery — thereby increasing much-needed domestic oil production and, again, somewhat reducing U.S. dependence on foreign oil, the sources said.

Both Kuwait and Venezuela announced Thursday they are cutting back oil production in order to keep prices up.

Venezuela said it will cut production by 100,000 barrels a day immediately to dry up what it called an oversupply that is pushing prices downwards.

Kuwait has reduced its oil production for this month and will cut it even further during the coming two months in an effort to keep oil prices up.

THIRD W. GERMAN BANK COLLAPSES

BONN (Reuter) — The small Hamburg private bank of H. Wolff ceased trading today, the Federation of German Banks said in a statement.

A spokesman for the federation said the owner of the bank, whom it did not name, returned his trading licence to the federal banking supervisory office in Berlin today.

It was the third bank collapse in West Germany in two months.

Bankhaus Wolff KG Hamburg is one of the smaller private banks with an annual turnover of about 80 million marks (about $31.2 million).

The series of private bank closures began June 26 when the Herstatt Bank in Cologne, the biggest private bank in the country, was officially ordered to cease business and turn in its banking licence because it had run up heavy losses in foreign-exchange deals which were alleged to have been falsely entered in its books.

Herstatt had debts of 500 million marks nearly $200 million when it was closed down.

The Frankfurt banking house of Bass and Herz went into liquidation Aug. 12, largely due to financial problems of an industrial group with which it was connected.

No explanation was immediately available for the closure of the Wolff bank. A spokesman for the bank declined to make any statement.

Syrian Forces Put On Alert

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Syria has placed its armed forces on the alert to counter Israeli military moves, says the pro-Palestinian newspaper Al Moharrer.

Officials in Damascus had no comment.

The newspaper, which gave no source for its report, says the Syrian move followed recent Israeli official statements that reservists will be called up in the next few days for "military exercises."

Meanwhile, the Suez Canal, closed to commercial ships since the 1967 Middle East War, may be re-opened by January, the head of the fournation mine clearing and salvage operations said today.

Water Drink With Flair Opens Scientists Meet

WINNIPEG (CP) — Manitoba Lt.-Gov. W. J. McKeag found a unique way of opening the world conference of the International Association of Limnology here Thursday.

To mark the beginning of the week-long meeting of scientists who study the properties of the world's inland waters, the lieutenant-governor swallowed a glass of water with great ceremony.

"Often there is something to do at an opening — cut a ribbon or shoot a puck," he said. "What could be better than drinking a glass of sparkling Manitoba water . . ."

The conference, said to be the largest scientific meeting ever held in Winnipeg, has attracted about 1,000 scientists from 38 countries. More than 450 scientific papers will be presented during the conference.

Beer Price Hike Looms

WINNIPEG (CP) — Manitobans, who are already facing increases in the price of liquor, may soon be facing higher beer prices as well.

The Manitoba Liquor Control Commission has recommended increases in beer prices to the provincial public utilities commission, which controls the wholesale price of beer.

The amount of the increases recommended is not known.

Nick Pyrch, president of the Manitoba Hotel Assn., says an increase in the price of a 25-cent draft or a reduction in size from the present 7½ ounces is "inevitable."

"We must get more money for the product we are selling . . . our backs are to the wall."

Women's Suffrage Leader Dies

CALGARY (CP) — Alice Riggs Hunt, a leader of the women's suffrage movement and a war correspondent during the first world war, died in Calgary Wednesday at the age of 90.

Miss Hunt was a leader of the New York Suffrage Movement from the early 1900's to the 1920's. She had been in ill health since 1967, when she moved to Calgary from Hawthorne, N.Y., to be with her family.

She led a successful career as a reporter for 15 years before she devoted to writing in 1924. She was a foreign correspondent for New York papers during the First World War and covered the Versailles Treaty and the organization of the League of Nations.

Judge Raps Court's Bungling

EDMONTON (CP) — Bungling and an overwhelming volume of work in the court system resulted in Provincial Court Judge George Forbes dismissing 35 charges against four teen-agers Wednesday.

Judge Forbes said he was dismissing the charges of breaking, entering and theft and possession of stolen property because of "the sad difficulty under which the crown operates."

"The same number of persons we had 10 years ago are handling three times the volume of cases now.

"The courts are subject to such a volume of cases we have control of nothing."

He did not level the bungling charge against any specific department but noted that the crown could only produce three of its seven witnesses.

Crown counsel Don Ralston said notices to appear had not been served personally on the witnesses. He immediately charged the men again based on new information.

The charges date back to March 21 and Judge Forbes said should there be further foul-ups in the case he would "regard it as an abuse of the process (of law). It's approaching that now."

CLEANING WOMAN FINDS LOOT BAG

REGINA (CP) — A cleaning woman has found $3,900 of the $65,000 stolen recently from a Brinks armored car in Regina.

The money was found in a plastic bag inside a wastepaper container in the women's bathroom in Simpson's downtown department store.

Officials of the department store said they believe someone may have tried to flush the money down the toilet, since it was torn and the toilet had been plugged earlier in the day, perhaps with more of the money.

Police had no official comment but it was learned the serial numbers of the torn money matched those of the Brinks shipment which disappeared during a weekend delivery earlier this month. Three men were charged in connection with the theft.

Air Canada's three "big ones" every day to Toronto.

747 9:15 a.m. Non-stop. Arrives 4.25 p.m.
L-1011 1:05 p.m. One-stop. Arrives 9.20 p.m.
L-1011 2:00 p.m. Non-stop. Arrives 9.10 p.m.

Only Air Canada gives you the choice of three "wide body" jets from Vancouver to Toronto, every day of the week. Two of them are non-stop, and all three take off at popular departure times.

Both the L-1011 and the 747 are magnificent aircraft, with plenty of room to relax. And our seating arrangement means even more comfort. You can enjoy your choice of music on either plane, and the 747 shows current movies* as well.

Another great feature is curbside baggage check-in at Vancouver and Toronto—you don't have to carry your bags to the counter.

So come with us. For our three "big ones". For our choice of take-off times. For your convenience. (Also L-1011 services to Calgary and Montreal). Call us, or your travel agent, for flight, car and hotel reservations. One call does it all, with Reservec II.

AIR CANADA
love you to come with us

Seaboard Silenced

Randy Jackson slipped the silencer on Seaboard Construction's bats and a bit of rain helped put the plug in the team's hopes of a sweep of the Stuffy McGinnis Men's Softball League final.

Jackson, who yielded seven homers, in the first two games of the best-of-five series, came up with a four-hit shutout Thursday to spark Century Inn to a 3-0 victory.

The Heywood Avenue Park contest was called after five innings because of rain.

A two-run homer by veteran Mike Cox provided Jackson with all the runs he needed.

Seaboard now leads the series 2-1 with the fourth game scheduled Monday evening at Heywood.

Seaboard	000 00—0	4	1
Century Inn	210 00—3	5	1

Phil Berry and Wayne King; Randy Jackson and John Hughes. Home run — Century — Mike Cox.

WENDY SNAPS RECORD

CONCORD, Calif. (CP) — Wendy Cook of Vancouver broke the listed world record in the women's 200-metre backstroke Thursday night in the United States Amateur Athletic Union swimming championships.

Her time was two minutes, 18.81 seconds as she finished almost three seconds ahead of Florida's Ann Marshall.

However, her time was four-tenths of a second over the pending world record set in July by Ulrike Richter of East Germany.

California teenagers Shirley Babashoff and Tim Shaw turned in world-record efforts in 400-metre freestyle events. Miss Babashaoff finished with a time of 4:17.77 and Shaw was clocked in 3:54.69.

Shaw erased the 3:58.18 mark set by Rick DeMont, who did not qualify for the final.

Fast Start by Pakistan

LONDON (Reuter) — Pakistan mauled England's bowlers on the first day of the third and final cricket test, piling up 317 for two wickets in front of 20,000 fans at the sun-baked Oval Ground Thursday.

Pakistan won the toss for the third successive time and made every use of their advantage with a succession of blistering strokes on a perfect pitch.

Zaheer Abbes led Pakistan with an unbeaten 118 while opener Majid Khan unluckily missed his first test century in England when he was dismissed for 98.

HONDA CIVIC is incredibly stingy with gasoline. Of all U.S. cars tested by the U.S. Environment Protection Agency the 4-speed HONDA came in first at 34.9 miles per Canadian gallon.

Trading Shifts Alarm Ottawa

By PETER THOMSON
Special to The Times

OTTAWA — Dramatic shifts in Canadian trade patterns and a dangerous decline in exports of finished products were revealed Thursday in a Statistics Canada report on Canadian imports and exports for the first half of 1974.

Exports for the first half reached $15.1 billion, an increase of $2 billion or about 15 per cent. Imports for the same period increased by $2.2 billion, or 18 per cent, to $14.5 billion — all on a seasonally adjusted basis.

Most of the increases, for both exports and imports, were attributed to higher prices — not to increased volume.

Government officials amitted they were concerned about the drop in exports of motor vehicles and parts and other machinery and equipment.

These are generally labor intensive industries, they noted, and deterioration in exports carries a threat of increased unemployment in Canada.

The decline in exports of these catagories is attributed to the general economic slowdown in the U.S. and several other major trading partners.

The report, which does not comment on reasons for changes in export patterns, reveals a 90 per cent increase in the value of crude oil exports and a 75 per cent increase for wheat, a 35 per cent increase in wood pulp, a 23 per cent increase for newsprint and a 16 per cent increase for fabricated metals.

There was a decline of eight per cent in value of exports of motor vehicles and parts despite price increases for those products. There was a three per cent decline in exports of other machinery and equipment, a five per cent decline for softwood lumber and a three per cent decrease for metallic ores and concentrates.

On the import side of the ledger, crude oil costs increased by 116 per cent, animals and edible products by nine per cent, chemicals and products by 17 per cent, synthetic rubber and plastics by 32 per cent, fuel oil and other oil products by 40 per cent, fabricated steel by 41 per cent non-ferrous alloys by 20 per cent, motor vehicles and parts by two per cent and other machinery and equipment by 12 per cent.

The report states that "most of the increase reflected higher prices; in real terms imports rose about four per cent while exports decreased about more than four per cent."

With slower growth for exports than for imports, the trade balance narrowed to some $600 million from $800 million in the last half of 1973.

Growth in purchases from Latin America and some other countries was up sharply, "owing to the high import bill for crude oil."

"A sharply accelerated growth in the value of exports took place for wheat, crude oil and pulp; and the growth of newsprint shipments was resumed.

"Lumber sales continued to decline in line with lower housing construction in the U.S. . . . shipments of automotive and related products fell because of reduced production and sales of motor vehicles in the U.S.," the report states.

Shell, Gulf To Toe Line

Shell Canada and Gulf Oil Canada said today they will join other oil companies in B.C. adhering to government price guidelines proclaimed by the cabinet Thursday.

The companies are two of three major petroleum firms that until now had refused to follow voluntarily a suggested ceiling on gasoline and heating oil price increases last winter.

Shell and Imperial Oil Ltd. both disagreed with the proclamation of Energy Act power linking adherence to guidelines with special grants to operators. However, Shell said: "Our position would be to obey the law and cooperate with the (energy) commission in making the system work."

Gulf Oil Canada Ltd. corporate affairs manager A. W. Torrell said: "When we receive this order, and it is written as I expect it to be, then we will comply."

The spokesman said Shell would respond when the company receives confirmation of the cabinet order and its accompanying regulations applying to the marketing of petroleum products.

He said Shell was not surprised by the action Thursday as the Energy Act is the only legislative vehicle available to make a previously planned system of consumer grants work.

The grants to oil companies will be available only to those firms that comply with the price guidelines.

Imperial and Standard Oil Co. of B.C. Ltd. did comply with the voluntary price restraint, while Shell, Gulf Oil Canada Ltd. and Texaco Canada Ltd. ignored the government request and allowed prices of gasoline to rise above the suggested 8-cent maximum per gallon. The ceiling set Thursday is 8 cents-a-gallon on both gasoline and furnace oil.

Imperial's corporate manager Cliff Goddard said "the only reason we are abiding by the guidelines is to comply with the anticipated law."

He disagreed the oil industry should be included with public utility companies under the Energy Act because oil companies are competitive and utilities are not.

The system of consumer grants is unfair because that introduced a non-competitive factor to the industry, Goddard said.

The proclaimed section of the Energy Act "gives the government complete open-ended control (of prices) and is going to have a negative effect on the industry. It is bound to affect new undertakings planned for the province.

"To try to operate a competitive enterprise in that kind of environment makes it difficult and discouraging to private industry. If the industry suffers, ultimately the consumer and public at large suffer," Goddard said.

He said the conflict of private competition and the system of grants in the framework of the Energy Act is like "dealing with one segment of an orange. It is better to deal with the whole orange."

GRAIN TALKS OFF

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Labor Minister John Munro and Justice Minister Otto Lang, minister responsible for the Canadian wheat board, today cancelled plans for a meeting Monday with the presidents of four Western grain firms.

The ministers told the presidents by telegram that the companies' decision to lay off employees made it pointless to hold the meeting.

Meanwhile, the flow of grain in Vancouver has already slowed to a trickle before an expected total shutdown tonight.

A special session of parliament now appears imminent to force an end to the dispute and impose a binding contract.

On Wednesday, last day for which figures are available, only 61 boxcars were unloaded by 550 grain handlers involved in a dispute with the four elevator companies. Estimated daily potential of the handlers if 700 cars. A week ago Wednesday they unloaded 277 boxcars.

More than a third of the work force faces layoff as of 5 p.m. today. The Grain Handlers Union has said that layoffs will be considered a lockout and all men will cease working.

A conciliation report by federal mediator Dr. Neil Perry has been accepted by union members but rejected by the companies.

2 Swoops Net $12M In Drugs

Times News Services

Drugs worth $12 million were seized in raids in Chicago and Chester, Nova Scotia, today.

In Chicago, police and federal agents seized heroin and cocaine valued at nearly $9 million and arrested nine persons early today in a series of raids.

"These raids broke up a ring supplying a major portion of the heroin found in the metropolitan area," one narcotics investigator said.

In the Nova Scotia incident, five persons were charged today with possession of hashish for the purpose of trafficking following a raid Thursday in which 1,800 pounds of hashish were seized at a nearby cottage. The drug had a street value of $3 million.

The accused are: Edward Quintin Carr, 21, of Halifax; Donald Brock Robson, 25, of Montreal and formerly of Halifax; and Bruce Keith Ervin, Patrick Marcel Mayers and Mickey Lynn Hale, all of Vancouver.

Police said the hashish, packed in blocks weighing 2½ pounds each, was located on the ground floor of the cottage.

U.S. Eyes Float For Own Oil

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — President Ford is considering a proposal to lift the price ceiling on domestically-produced crude oil, which could cause steep price increases.

The proposal is contained in a "closely-guarded" administration working paper, and is apparently one of a number of alternatives being considered to reduce demand for gasoline and other petroleum products and cut U.S. reliance on foreign oil suppliers, according to government sources.

The proposal is to lift the $5.25-a-barrel ceiling price on "old domestic crude oil," which accounts for 75 per cent of U.S. produced crude, the newspaper said.

"New oil" production above the 1972 level is not subject to controls, to stimulate increased production and exploration.

Foreign oil now sells for $10 to $11 a barrel, and if the U.S. crude oil price ceiling were lifted, the cost could double to that level, which would cause an increase of 4 to 5 cents a gallon at the retail level.

The proposal has been prepared by teams from the president's council of economic advisers, the federal energy administration and the treasury department.

Backers of the plan say removing the price lid or "equalizing" foreign and U.S. crude oil price differences would probably have short-term inflationary effects. The rationale behind the proposal, however, suggests the increased domestic price would reduce demand and, in the end, cut crude oil imports by between 3 and 10 per cent, sources said.

Allowing the U.S. crude oil prices to float toward the much higher foreign prices, some proponents of the idea believe, would introduce a new element of competition into the system; forcing the Arab states and other foreign producers to eventually reduce prices.

The proposal is also seen as a means of encouraging oil firms to drill deeper to recover more oil from petroleum fields so-called "secondary" and "tertiary" recovery — thereby increasing much-needed domestic oil production and, again, somewhat reducing U.S. dependence on foreign oil, the sources said.

Both Kuwait and Venezuela announced Thursday they are cutting back oil production in order to keep prices up.

Venezuela said it will cut production by 100,000 barrels a day immediately to dry up what it called an oversupply that is pushing prices downwards.

Kuwait has reduced its oil production for this month and will cut it even further during the coming two months in an effort to keep oil prices up.

THIRD W. GERMAN BANK COLLAPSES

BONN (Reuter) — The small Hamburg private bank of H. Wolff ceased trading today, the Federation of German Banks said in a statement.

A spokesman for the federation said the owner of the bank, whom it did not name, returned his trading licence to the federal banking supervisory office in Berlin today.

It was the third bank collapse in West Germany in two months.

Bankhaus Wolff KG Hamburg is one of the smaller private banks with an annual turnover of about 80 million marks (about $31.2 million).

The series of private bank closures began June 26 when the Herstatt Bank in Cologne, the biggest private bank in the country, was officially ordered to cease business and turn in its banking licence because it had run up heavy losses in foreign-exchange deals which were alleged to have been falsely entered in its books.

Herstatt had debts of 500 million marks nearly $200 million when it was closed down.

The Frankfurt banking house of Bass and Herz went into liquidation Aug. 12, largely due to financial problems of an industrial group with which it was connected.

No explanation was immediately available for the closure of the Wolff bank. A spokesman for the bank declined to make any statement.

Movies

Panic in the City (xx), on 13 at 10. A 1968 low-budget espionage thriller set in Los Angeles and starring Howard Duff, Linda Cristal and Stephen McNally.

This Above All (xxx), on 13 at 1. A dated (1942) but still entertaining film version of the Eric Knight novel about Second World War England and a love affair between a patriotic wealthy young woman and a disillusioned deserter, starring Joan Fontaine and Tyrone Power.

Mister Moses (xx), on 4 at 2. Robert Mitchum and Carroll Baker star in this 1965 adventure about an adventurer-turned-modern-day Moses who agrees to lead a group of African refugees to a new land. The plot takes a back seat to the glorious on-location filming in Africa.

The Blue Bird (xx), on 11 at 2. For kids and Shirley Temple fans is this 1940 drama adapted from Maurice Maeterlinck's classical fantasy about a little girl's search for true happiness.

The Longest Hundred Miles (xx), on 7 at 3. Doug McClure and Katherine Ross star in this 1966 drama about a group of assorted people attempting to flee the Japanese occupation of the Philippines during the Second World War.

The Adventures of Robin Hood (xxx), on 13 at 3. An excellent cast (Errol Flynn, Olivia de Havilland and Basil Rathbone) star in this entertaining and imaginative 1938 film version of the classic tale about the outlaw hero of Sherwood Forest.

Planet Earth, on 4 at 8:30. No rating on this 1974 pilot for a proposed science fiction series set in the 22nd century, written by Gene Roddenberry (Star Trek), and starring John Saxon, Janet Margolin and Diana Muldaur.

The Girl Who Couldn't Say No, on 8 at 9. George Segal, Virna Lisi and Lila Kedrova star in this rambling, offbeat 1969 Italian-made farce about the long term romantic escapades of an eccentric young woman and a stuffed-shirt doctor. Their love affair spans a number of years — and a variety of locations from Italy to Scandinavia.

New Invisible Man (x), on 13 at 9. A 1960 Mexican-made thriller about a man, falsely accused of murder, who uses an experimental serum to make himself invisible and hunts down the real killer.

MAGGIE SMITH
. . . on 7 at 11 p.m.

The Prime of Miss Jean Brodie (xxxx), on 7 at 11. Maggie Smith's brilliant, Oscar-winning performance dominates this superb 1969 drama about a vain, eccentric school-teacher in Scotland of the 1930s. Filling the minds of her favorite young female students with romantic and often naive ideas on art and politics, Miss Brodie gains the awe and affection of her students — and enrages the school's headmistress. Miss Smith's portrait of a complex woman, fiercely independent and proud, yet unwittingly cruel and insentitive, is brilliant and most deserving of the Academy Award. Recommended.

Upstairs and Downstairs (xxx), on 11 at 11. A charming 1959 English-made comedy about a young married couple and their problems in obtaining the right servant girl, starring Michael Craig and Anne Heywood. Humorous script is enhanced by an excellent supporting cast that includes James Robertson Justice, Sidney James and Joan Sims.

Breaking the Sound Barrier (xxx), on 12 at 11. A marvelous 1952 British-made aerial drama about an aircraft manufacturer who endures personal grief in his quest to produce a plane that can travel faster than the speed of sound. Highlighted by breathtaking photography and excellent performances by Ralph Richardson, Ann Todd and Nigel Patrick.

Carousel ((xxx), on 5 at 11:15. Gordon MacRae and Shirley Jones are well cast in this fine 1956 film adaptation of the Rodgers and Hammerstein musical about the ill-fated marriage between a swaggering carnival barker and a shy, small-town girl.

The Girl Who Couldn't Say No, on 6 at 11:15. (See earlier for details of this movie.)

Ride the High Country (xxxx), on 4 at 11:45. Top flight 1962 western, directed by Sam Peckinpah (Straw Dogs), highlighted by the fine performances of Randolph Scott and Joel McCrea. They portray two old-time lawmen who sign on to escort gold from the fields to the bank, meeting trouble along the way. Well-written, well-photographed and a must for western fans.

Hotel (xxx), on 8 at midnight. An entertaining and colorful 1967 melodrama adapted from Arthur Hailey's best-selling novel about the staff and guests at a deluxe old fashioned New Orleans hotel. A good cast includes Rod Taylor, Karl Malden, Catherine Spaak, Melvyn Douglas, Merle Oberon and Michael Rennie.

The Beguiled (xx), on 8 at 2:35. A 1971 drama about love, jealousy and revenge in the Civil War South, starring Clint Eastwood and Geraldine Page.

The Zoo Gang

CBC-TV Premieres Six-Part Thriller

Meet four of the most unexpected crime fighters to hit television, The Zoo Gang, on CBC-TV Saturdays at 8:30 p.m. starting August 24.

Barry Morse, John Mills, Lilli Palmer and Brian Keith star in this TV adaptation of Paul Gallico's bestseller as four aging but skilled veterans of the French Resistance, reunited 30 years later and willing to undertake assignments as perilous as anything they faced in wartime years.

High adventure is the stuff the comrades encounter on the new six-part thriller series, with each 60-minute episode packed with nail-biting drama for viewers of the gang's daring post-war exploits.

Code-Names

Filmed on-location on the French Riviera — a sun-soaked playground swarming in the series not only with millionaires but vice and crime-busting opportunities — The Zoo Gang derives its name from the animal code-names the four members used while working together underground in France against the Nazis; namely The Tiger, The Elephant, The Leopard and The Fox, each representing, respectively, a Canadian, British, French and American national.

In the lead-off program (Revenge Post-Dated), the storyline establishing the gung ho group's hurried rendezvous in southern France is the chance to even the score with the man who long ago betrayed them to the Gestapo — a master criminal who has finally surfaced as the brains behind big-scale art robberies on the Riviera.

Putting their wits, ingenuity and derring-do together to right this wrong, and other injustices, are Zoo Gang members:

The Tiger

The Tiger (Barry Morse), codename for the Canadian Alec Marlowe, a wartime Lieutenant in the RCAF who, until rejoining his old comrades, has been running an auto repair shop in Vancouver. Morse is the brilliant London-born actor who became one of the leading figures in Canadian television, and also in Hollywood where he was probably best-known as the pursuing, relentless Lieut. Gerard in the long-running series The Fugitive.

The Elephant

The Elephant (John Mills), codename for the former British commando officer Tommy Devon who lives in Nice as the owner of a jewelry shop. Though he has played many war heroes in his time, Mills is also recognized as an outstanding character actor, especially since his Academy Award-winning role as the village idiot in Ryan's Daughter.

The Leopard

The Leopard (Lilli Palmer), codename for the French woman Manouche Roget, a Nice restaurant owner and widow who once fought alongside of her husband, The Wolf, killed by the Gestapo and whose death the gang has sworn to avenge. It's the first starring role in a TV series for the distinguished actress.

The Fox

The Fox (Brian Keith) codename for the former overseas U.S. secret-service agent Stephen Halliday, now an important business executive in New York. For this part, actor Keith temporarily deserted his more tranquil role as a children's doctor in the popular American series Little People.

Theme music for The Zoo Gang is by ex-Beatles Paul McCartney and his wife Linda, marking the first time the couple has composed for any TV series.

MEET THE ZOO GANG — Barry Morse (front-left), Brian Keith (front-right), John Mills (back-left) and Lilli Palmer starring in the six-part thriller series The Zoo Gang, based on Paul Gallico's best-seller, beginning on Saturday at 8:30 on Channel 2 and 6.

GUNSMOKE — Ruth Roman (left) and Johnnie Whitaker (right) star in Waste, a two-part episode of Gunsmoke, to be telecast on Saturday at 9 p.m. on Channel 12. Matt's (James Arness) search for an outlaw involves him with a wagonload of saloon women and with a boy searching for his mother. (Part 2 next week, same time and channel.)

CBC Documentary Sounds Warning

GENEVA PARK, Ont. — A rapidly growing world population will eventually mean the end of civilization unless world politicians take a more active part in stopping this growth, delegates to the 43rd Couchiching Conference were told recently.

Doug Lower, an executive producer with the CBC, issuing the warning prior to showing excerpts of a soon-to-be-aired television documentary, said the world population growth rate of four births a second must be curbed.

The three-part television program, Elements of Survival, will be aired Sept. 15, 22 and 29. It illustrates the pressures exerted on the worlds human and physical resources by this growth which, he said, even countries like Canada and the United States will be unable to sustain indefinitely.

Playing the numbers game, Mr. Lower said, in reference to the burgeoning population, is both frightening and fascinating and crucial to the understanding of the seriousness of the situation.

Movies

Hercules, the Avenger (x), on 13 at noon. A 1964 Italian-made adventure about a muscular hero who aids the Babylonians in their fight against a Grecian conspiracy.

The Judge and Jake Wyler (xx), on 6 and 8 at 12:45. A 1972 made-for-TV mystery starring Bette Davis and Doug McClure.

KIM NOVAK
. . . on 6 and 8 at midnight

Rendezvous with Annie (xx), on 11 at 1. Eddie Albert and Faye Marlowe star in this lightweight 1946 comedy about a pilot who flies home secretly to spend a few hours with his wife — then has to explain his forthcoming fatherhood.

Both Sides of the Law (xxx), on 5 at 3:30. A well-made 1953 British melodrama that offers a colorful cross section of London life as encountered by a policewoman and she takes on a variety of cases daily. Cast includes Anne Crawford and Peggy Cummins.

Raffles (xx), on 7 at 3:30. A 1939 comedy-drama about the adventures of an amateur jewel thief, starring David Niven and Olivia de Havilland.

Never Too Late (xxx), on 12 at 7. A delightful and entertaining 1965 film adaptation of the Broadway hit comedy about a middle-aged couple with a grown, married daughter, who discover they are about to become parents. The film is highlighted by a truly wonderful performance by Paul Ford as the old man thinking of retiring and then hit with the news that he is about to become a father. Maureen O'Sullivan, who appeared on Broadway along with Ford, is just right as the wife, and Connie Stevens and Jim Hutton are excellent as their daughter and son-in-law. Good fun and recommended.

PETER FALK
. . . on 12 at 11:30 p.m.

The Deep Blue Sea (xx), on 11 at 8. Defects in direction detract from this 1955 British-made adaptation of the Terrence Rattigan stage success about an emotionally unstable woman's affair with a test pilot, starring Vivien Leigh and Kenneth More.

MAUREEN O'SULLIVAN
. . . on 12 at 7 p.m.

The Night of the Great Attack (x), on 13 at 8. A 1960 Italian-made costume drama set during the time of the Borgias.

The Proud Ones (xxx), on 4 at 11. A good 1956 western bolstered by an excellent cast that includes Robert Ryan, Virginia Mayo and Jeffrey Hunter, about a gun-toting marshall and the men who try and balk the law.

Husbands (xxx), on 12 at 11:30. An offbeat 1970 drama highlighted by improvised dialogue, written and directed by John Cassavetes. He, along with Peter Falk and Ben Gazarra, portray three married men who react to a friend's death by taking off on a four-day binge. Experimental and unusual but nevertheless well-made and interesting.

Scream, and Scream Again, on 7 at 11:45. British horror stars Peter Cushing and Christopher Lee appear in cameo roles in this 1970 thriller starring Vincent Price as a mad scientist who uses live, unwilling donors for organ transplants.

Kiss of Evil (xx), on 2 at midnight. A 1963 English-made thriller about a couple menaced by a vampire in an eerie chateau.

Picnic (xxx), on 6 and 8 at midnight. An excellent 1955 film rendering of the William Inge play about a stranger who arrives in a small Kansas town and changes a number of lives. Well-directed by Joshua Logan and starring William Holden, Kim Novak, Rosalind Russell and Arthur O'Connell. It's not perfection but it's worth staying up for.

What's the Future of Sonny and Cher?

'Svengali'

Cher's Side

By JERRY BUCK

LOS ANGELES — In the Sonny and Cher battle of the sexes on television, Cher always won with a clever put-down, acting the tart-tongued liberated woman.

But in real life, she says, Sonny was a "watered-down Svengali" who ran their careers and lives with an iron fist.

"Except on TV, there was no back-talk. The jokes about Sonny's being short or Italian were his idea, she says, because he wanted her to be witty. And liberated? He wouldn't let her go to the movies or learn tennis because it would take her out of the house, she says.

Cher talked candidly in an interview about life with her estranged husband, picturing him as Professor Higgins to her Eliza Doolittle, shaping her into his own image of My Fair Lady.

Finally, she said, she rebelled.

"I didn't object to him running things," she said.

"He was better at it than I was. But I think people, including women, should have more freedom about how your life is run than just saying yes."

The Sonny and Cher Comedy Hour, top-rated for three years, fell apart with the 10-year marriage. They continued the show for two years, after they separated.

Sonny filed suit for separation Feb. 19, 1974. She countered with a suit for dissolution of the marriage. A property settlement and custody of their five-year-old blonde daughter, Chastity, is being negotiated in divorce court.

Sonny bounced back with a new ABC variety show beginning this fall. Cher will do a solo special for CBS.

Cherilyn La Piere met Salvatore Bono on a blind date in Hollywood. She was 16, Sonny, then 28, was a once-married ne'er do well. After a short courtship, they were married on Oct. 27, 1964.

She was a shy, introverted girl, frightened of audiences. She clung to Sonny, depended on him, looked to him for guidance. Finally, it became smothering.

"Sonny brought me out personally," Cher said.

"He always wanted me to be witty and a good entertainer. But he wanted me to stay the way I was when I met him. It's hard to stay the way you were at 16 when you're 27."

"Sonny was a male chauvinist. There's nothing wrong with that. He's really a nice person. He thinks women are beautiful, but should stay in their place, wherever it is."

Cher, who is part Armenian, part Turkish, part French and part Cherokee Indian, said the only time she ever pushed Sonny was to buy the $1.3 million house she occupies with Chastity just off Sunset Boulevard.

After the breakup in 1972, she paid Sonny $450,000 for the house. When Sonny didn't move out, she took possession one night while he was away. He went to a hotel and later rented a house.

"There was no other man in my life then and no other woman in his."

How does she feel about Sonny now?

"I don't know," she answered. "I loved him. That's about all I can say. I love, yesterday, today, tomorrow."

Cher has a boy-friend, David Geffen, a multimillionaire record producer.

Cher is fond of Geffen. She sees him as a man much like Sonny but with a more enlightened view toward women. But she says she has no plans to marry because of her fear of becoming confined again.

I Haven't Got You Babe

'Prima Donna'

Sonny's Side

By JERRY BUCK

LOS ANGELES — "Maybe I should spank her once in a while," Sonny Bono said of Cher.

"That's the extent of my ill feelings. I've loved her for too long to have any other feelings."

Sonny sat in the living room of a rented house in the Hollywood Hills, a few miles from the mansion he once shared with Cher. He is preparing for a solo TV series, The Sonny Comedy Hour, this fall.

His wife left him two years ago, but they continued to perform on The Sonny and Cher Comedy Hour as though nothing had happened. They still sang I Got You, Babe and The Beat Goes On. They still traded witty put-downs and showed off their daughter, Chastity.

Finally, early this year, Cher refused to perform any more. The show was cancelled. She has since learned he had her tied up until 1977 in a snare of legal contracts that gave him full control of her career. She is suing to break out of them, and Sonny has said she is free to work on her own for now.

In their 10-year-marriage, now coming to an end in divorce court, Sonny ran things. Life was on a grand scale — big houses, big cars, furs, diamonds. Even when Sonny was nearly broke.

He called himself "El Primo." He was the boss. She was his "Prima Donna."

Cher felt her personal freedom was being smothered.

Sonny said: "If I mistreated her I did it in style. She's in good shape. Every woman should be mistreated in that way. I don't think Cher would say I mistreated her." He was asked if he considered himself a male chauvinist, as Cher called him.

"What's a male chauvinist? I don't know what that means. "If you're referring to me being director of our careers and head of the household, I was. I believe in that to this day. It's my old Italian upbringing."

But he said he didn't dominate Cher. "I think if you love someone enough, and she loves you enough, I don't think you can dominate someone. Cher's too bright to be dominated." Sonny said he wouldn't do anything differently. "I think things are inevitable," he explained.

Sonny, 39, seems to know where he's going and how to get there. He took Cherilyn La Piere when she was 16, and moulded her into a vibrant show-business personality.

Sonny had failed as a song plugger, bombed out as a record producer. Even when he had to wait tables and drive a truck he knew what he wanted.

He wanted a hit record and he got it. I Got You, Babe, which expressed his love for Cher, sold three million copies and launched them as teenage singing idols.

Even after their singing career nosedived in the late 1960's and he was nearly broke Sonny continued to live like Croesus.

Sonny, who has a girlfriend, Connie Foreman, said he has no plans to remarry when the divorce is final.

"My plans are to go to work. I don't feel any need now to remarry." He has no trepidations about performing without Cher.

"Cher is not there, so it's a question of performing without her. You either do it or you don't . . . But ther's going to be a difference when I look to the left and the tall, skinny Indian's not there."

What Their Producer Thinks

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD — What's to become of Sonny Bono without Cher?

The same question was asked about Dean Martin when he was cut adrift from Jerry Lewis.

When the comedy team split in 1958 it was predicted Jerry would go on to greater heights while Dean would end up in Steubenville, Ohio, dealing poker hands.

Wrong. Dean is still going strong. Jerry is hurting.

Now the wiseacres predict superstardom for Cher and the soup lines for Sonny.

Chris Bearde, a bright young English producer, has something else in mind. The Sonny Comedy Hour, starring Bono every week via ABC-TV in the fall.

Bearde produced The Sonny and Cher Show and predicts Sonny will continue to blossom as one of the tube's top comedians.

"Sonny won't change his image on the show," Bearde said. "He'll be the same down-trodden Sad Sack. The format will be changed somewhat but we'll keep Sonny's pizza bit, some of the operatic take-offs and the same six regulars will be with us that were on the old show.

"We've got a new idea, Bono's Brigade with guest stars playing a top sergeant every week to harass Sonny. They'll be putting him down just like Cher used to do."

Bearde and his painer, Allan Blye, will make no attempt to replace Cher with another leading lady.

"We won't hide the fact of the divorce on the show," Bearde said.

"In fact we'll have a few gags about it on the opening segment. We will continue doing man-woman relationship sketches with guest stars like Jill St. John, Twiggy, Joey Heatherton and Dyan Cannon.

"There's going to be plenty of glamor on the show with beauty queens and dancing girls."

Bearde, of course, would have preferred to have Cher return. He doesn't give up easily. He's seeking to sign Cher as one of the guest stars on Sonny's new show.

The Bono's daughter, Chastity, was a regular performer on her parents' show. Now Sonny wants Chastity to make occasional appearances because of her popularity with viewers.

"Even now," Bearde said, "we'd welcome Cher back into the old format with the same show we've had for the past several years.

"I don't know what Cher's future will be without Sonny. She's signed for some specials with CBS, and there is talk of a new series for her a year from now."

According to Bearde, who also worked on The Andy Williams Show and Laugh-In, television hasn't produced any major stars in the 1970s.

"Here we are, halfway through the decade, and there's nothing new," he said. "No Beatles, no new musical sound, no new Presleys or Gleasons coming up. I think Sonny is the guy who can do it — alone."

TV Movie Becomes A Series This Fall

By LAWRENCE LAURENT

Some actors might do better with lockjaw. Take, for example, Darren McGavin. He told Veron Scott of United Press International: "Television has got worse and worse. The medium is all boxed in. There's no freedom in it . . no originality and few, if any, fresh ideas for anyone to work with."

When McGavin made those comments, he hadn't done a television series for a full year. He was speaking of the soulscarring experiences that go with having appeared in four TV series. Each had a rather short life.

He started in the series by popping flashbulbs and punching bad guys in Crime Photographer. That was on CBS in 1951. (Darren was just a child at the time, of course).

After a lot of time in live television drama, McGavin tried another TV series. This time he was the hero of Mickey Spillane's blood-and-thunder, blended lightly with sex, detective stories about Mike Hammer. This was his most successful series, at least in terms of the number of episodes that it ran. It ran for two seasons, beginning in 1957 and in those days 39 episodes made a season. He played Mike Hammer in 78 episodes and he solved every single case.

The passing of Mike Hammer didn't leave Darren McGavin idle for very long. Out in San Fernando Valley at the old Universal Studios, an executive noticed that an old riverboat was still in the manmade lake and it had been there for a long time. He decided this studio asset shouldn't go to waste and on the spot he decided there should be a television series called Riverboat.

NBC-TV liked the idea. The old boat was renamed The Enterprise and Darren McGavin was quickly cast as Capt. Grey Holden. The top assistant was a brooding, dark-haired actor named Burt Reynolds. Riverboat quickly developed into an anthropology series, meaning it served mainly as a vehicle for starring the young actors and actresses who were under contract to Revue Productions. Reynolds asked out early in the series, but McGavin sailed up and down the studio lake for 44 one-hour episodes. (The boat, by the way, is still parked in the same lake and is pointed out regularly to the ticket-buying tourists.)

After Riverboat McGavin stayed away from series work for six years. He worked in feature films, took guest shots in TV programs and waited for something good to happen.

He thought the something good might be a private detective series, conceived by Roy Huggins, called The Outsider. The series taught McGavin the difference between a made-for-TV feature film and a TV series. For the film, which played Nov. 21, 1967, the detective had an adult relationship with a woman and he had the benefit of big, expensive special effects and explosives.

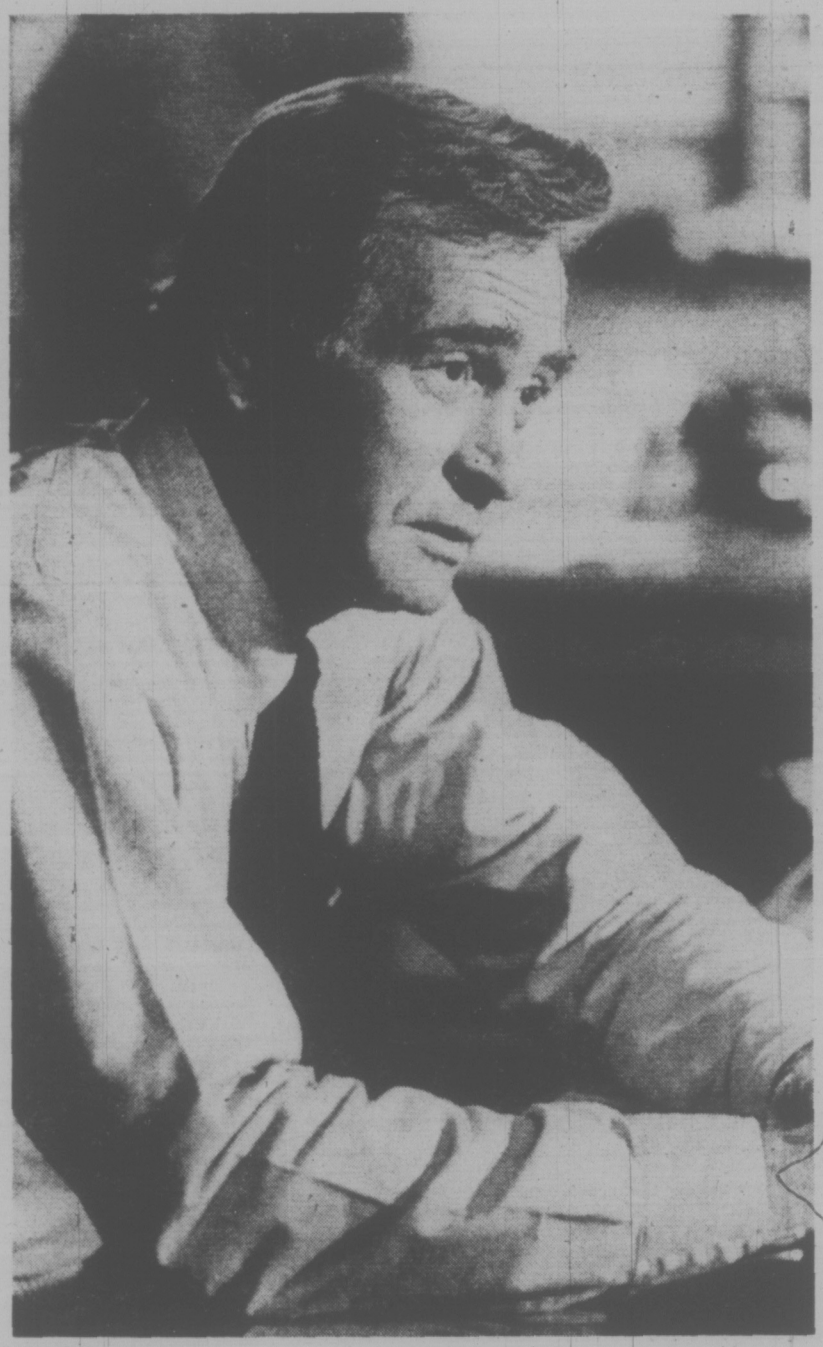
But the very things that made detective David Ross — The Outsider — interesting and attractive in the movie were eliminated from the series of the same name. David Ross, in McGavin's words, became "The Loser." It was his lot to be intimidated by a racketeer, embarrassed by a crooked sheriff, shot at by hoodlums, chased by gangsters and beaten by one or more musclemen. Frequently, he was outwitted by corporate executives, cheated by an insurance claims settlement agent and taken advantage of by women who were almost beautiful.

During the next five years Darren McGavin became known as "King of the pilots." A pilot film is a sample of a series and while Darren would work in the pilot he usually turned down any chance to work in the series. He also changed his way of living. He took a new wife, actress Kathie Browne, and when asked about television, said: "Who watches it? I only tune in the news."

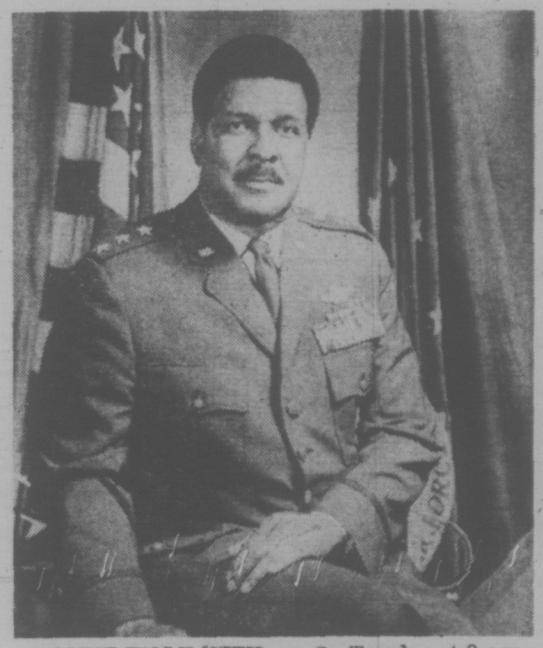
But an actor is still an actor only when he is working. And Darren McGavin has been an actor for a long time. He took a job nearly three years ago in a TV film called The Kolchak Tapes or The Night Stalker. It was a potboiler about a newspaper reporter in Las Vegas who is certain that a series of murders have been committed by a vampire.

ABC-TV was astonished when its Jan. 11, 1972, showing brought a rating of 33.2. It was repeated with good ratings and shown a third time on Wide World of Entertainment. The ratings indicated that it should become a series. In due time: Kolchak — The Night Stalker was booked for 10 p.m. Fridays (ABC).

So, ask Darren McGavin what he's doing back for his fifth TV series and he'll tell you: "An actor has four alternatives today — the theatre, motion pictures, television or unemployment. Any of the first three is better than the last one."



DARREN McGAVIN stars as Carl Kolchak, a dynamic determined reporter, who pursues stories about the supernatural in The Night Stalker, a new fall series which evolved from the TV movie of the same title, premiering September 13 at 10 p.m. on Channel 4.



JEANNE WOLF WITH . . . On Tuesday at 9 p.m. on Channel 9, Ms. Wolf talks with Lieut.-General Daniel James Jr., the highest-ranking black military officer in the United States.

Give-Away King Now Plays Drunks

By BOB THOMAS
Los Angeles

The face is still round and puckish, the wit sharp and outrageous.

But instead of dispensing posies and plunder to the Queen for a Day, Jack Bailey is wielding a paint brush and playing drunks in movies.

"Funny things, my playing drunks," he mused. "I haven't had a drink since Oct. 8, 1948."

Bailey's trimmed mustache and semi-bald pate were familiar to millions of housewives during his 20-year run in radio and television with Queen for a Day.

By the time the show shut down 10 years ago, he had crowned more than 5,000 queens and bestowed $23 million worth of merchadise.

The emcee-actor talked about his life with Queen for a Day and afterward during an interview at the Disney studio.

He had just finished a role as a board member of a cereal company owned by Eve Arden in the supernatural comedy, The Strongest Man in the World.

JACK BAILEY
. . . reformed alcoholic

"It's the first time I've gone legit in quite a while," Bailey reflected. "Mostly I've been playing drunks, in films like How to Seduce a Woman and series like Police Story and Emergency."

A man who can tell the date of his last drink more than 25 years ago might seem to have had a drinking problem. True. Bailey did not hesitate to talk about it.

"I drank because I liked to drink," he said. "The tendencey certainly wasn't inherited, because my mother was Iowa state president of the Women's Christian Temperance Union.

"I never started fights in bars. I just became thick-tongued and slow-talking, and the radio that clock on the studio wall wouldn't wait.

"Emcees who are half-stoned often think they are funnier than the comedy lead. They aren't."

Bailey said he didn't realize he had a probelm until he started a habit of not going to work, "which can become a probem when you're dong a live show." He never missed a cue, but there were shows when his sparkle had the quality of day-old beer.

Movies

Swanee River (xx), on 13 at noon. A mediocre 1939 biography of composer Stephen Foster redeemed by a good cast (Don Ameche and Al Jolson) and fine music.

Apache (xx), on 6 and 8 at 12:45. Burt Lancaster has the title role in this 1954 western drama about a peace-seeking Indian forced to turn renegade when a treaty is violated. Jean Peters has little else to do but look worried as his faithful squaw.

Geraldine (xx), on 11 at 1. A mild 1953 musical-comedy about a college professor who promotes folk music, starring John Carroll, Mala Powers and Jim Backus.

The Guru (xxx), on 5 at 3:30. A strange but generally rewarding and magnificently 1969 film made in India, and starring Michael York, Uptal Dutt and Rita Tushingham. The theme of the film is the conflict of Eastern and Western cultures wound around the story of a young British pop star who comes to India to study the sitar with a guru.

JACQUELINE BISSET
. . . on 7 at 9 p.m.

A silly love story is thrown in but the music is worth listening to and the photography is stunning.

Captain Newman, M.D. (xxx), on 7 at 3:30. Conclusion of the 1964 drama starring Gregory Peck in the title role. (See yesterday, same time and channel for details.)

Brigham Young (xxx), on 13 at 8. A sprawling 1940 saga about the pioneer Mormons who traveled from Illinois to Utah to live in peace according to their beliefs. An excellent cast includes Tyrone Power, Linda Darnell, Dean Jagger, Brian Donlevy, Jane Darwell, John Carradine and Mary Astor.

Secret World, on 7 at 9. No rating available on this 1968 French-made drama about a withdrawn young boy and his romantic interest in his uncle's youthful mistress. Cast includes Jacqueline Bisset.

The Visit (xx), on 12 at 9. A watered-down 1964 film adaptation of the fascinating play by Swiss playwright Friedrich Duerrenmatt about a now-wealthy woman who returns to her poor childhood village to wreck vengeance on her former lover. The cynical, brittle cutting edge of the play has been lost but the excellent acting of Ingrid Bergman and Anthony Quinn makes the movie worthwhile.

The Hill (xxxx), on 12 at 11:30. A brilliant but chilling 1965 study of a British military prison in Africa during the Second World War. The inmates are British soldiers and their almost inhuman treatment makes an absorbing and memorable drama. Sean Connery has never been better as an outspoken, tough prisoner and the supporting cast is flawless, especially Harry Andrews as the sinister head of the detention camp.

ANTHONY QUINN
. . . on 12 at 9 p.m.

The Desperados (xx), on 7 at 11:45. Vince Edwards and Jack Palance star in this violent 1969 western set during the Civil War. Good supporting cast includes Sylvia Sims and Neville Brand.

The Brides of Dracula (xx), on 2 at midnight. Lovers of vampire lore will enjoy this 1960 English-made thriller, starring Peter Cushing and Marita Hunt.

The Magician (xx), on 6 and 8 at midnight. This 1973 drama about a magician who uses his powers to help those in trouble, served as the pilot for the now-defunct series starring Bill Bixby in the title role. Supporting cast includes Kim Hunter, Barry Sullivan and Elizabeth Ashley.

The Game Is Over (xxx), on 6 and 8 at 1:30. French director Roger Vadim's fascinating 1966 study of the decadent European rich centreing on a man who sets up an affair between his young second wife and his son. Beautifully photographed with an excellent cast that includes Jane Fonda, Peter McEnery and Michel Piccoli.

France Loves Its Plastic TV Ladies

By ALINE MOSBY

PARIS — Along with handmade clothes and cheap little restaurants, the future of another cherished institution of France — female television announcers — hangs in doubt.

On two of France's three channels, smiling beauties with gleaming teeth, lacquered hair and inextinguishable happiness announce program schedules.

President Valery Giscard D'Estaing in July ordered the state-operated TV to break up into six competing systems by year's end.

Whether the reorganized television will retain the 27-year-old custom of lady announcers "depends upon the new program director," said Jacques Planche, supervisor since 1953 of his stable of girl announcers.

"The girls may disappear with computers taking over. They are artisan work."

The third channel which opened in 1972 uses computer-run printed announcements to identify the channel and announce programs.

Female TV announcers have appeared elsewhere in Europe but Planche said France holds the record of nine girls for the two channels.

The lady announcers came into being "as a human, charming touch" when one channel opened in 1947. In line with orders from the French academy to keep English out of the French language, the girls are supposed to be called "presentatrices". But Planche and the public still call them "speakerines" in Franglais.

When the second channel opened in 1964, Planche chose three more speakerines out of 10,000 applicants.

Of his nine girls, all are married, most have children and one — the eldest and the wife of one of the TV executives — is a grandmother.

Down the years one girl quit to go on radio, another to become a photographer. Planche fired one when she made the front pages by biting two policemen and another was dismissed for posing virtually nude for a magazine.

In addition to announcing programs, the girls apologize when films are put on upside down or in case of other technical difficulties, a steady characteristic of French TV.

The girls' sing-song introductions are mimicked mercilessly by stage comedians. But Planche said the public regards them as friends, showering them with fan letters, propositions and proposals.

Actor Resents Criticism Of Black Superstars

By BOB THOMAS

LOS ANGELES — What happens when black superstars band together to make a film. They are misunderstood, asserts comedian Bill Cosby.

The film is Uptown Saturday Night, and it stars Sidney Poitier, Cosby, Harry Belafonte, Flip Wilson, Richard Pryor, Calvin Lockhart, Roscoe Lee Browne, Paula Kelly and others.

Poitier put the project together and directed it for First Artists, in which he is a partner with Barbra Streisand, Steven McQueen, Dustin Hoffman and Paul Newman.

Uptown Saturday Night opened to excellent business in New York and Chicago but some of the reviews have been dismaying.

"As black film-makers, we are subject to a condition in which things get pushed out of proportion," Cosby observed.

"In the first place, this is not a black film made by blacks for black audiences. We are Americans, and we made the picture to be seen and enjoyed by Americans."

Cosby was especially piqued by criticisms that Uptown Saturday Night repeated the old movie stereotype of eye-bugging by black comics.

"The color of the skin of a black man gives more prominence to the whiteness of the eyes than does the pinkish tinge of the white man's skin," said the comedian.

"Watch George Segal or Jack Nicholson or Walter Matthau or Jack Lemmon when they are doing comedy and you will note that their eyes bug out. It is only natural in comedy to open your eyes wider."

BILL COSBY
. . . misunderstood

Most of the reviews of Uptown Saturday Night in New York were favourable but Cosby complained that "we as black Americans tend to be auditioning every time we make a movie."

"Nobody talks about a 'white movie' But whenever blacks do a film, the critics "Is it a real black movie. Is it real?'

"Well, I'll tell you what a real black movie would be: Two hours of sorrow, poor people, roaches, being called names and no place to go."

Uptown Saturday Night tells about a fun-loving pair Poitier and Cosby who lose their money in a nightclub heist and encounter adventures in trying to recover the dough.

The film was designed as "sheer entertainment" Cosby insisted, "but because we are black, we are compared to Amos 'n' Andy, or anybody who made laughs in the 1940s."

Cosby, 37, once made Los Angeles his home. Now his full-time residence is in Greenfield, Mass. He moved his wife and four children there three years ago so he could study to a PhD at University of Massachusetts school of education.

The notion of a showbiz superstar returning to college was greeted with skepticism along the Las Vegas and Sunset strips. But Cosby reports that next year he will receive his doctorate. He pays for his education by telling stories about 20 weeks a year in the Nevada casinos and in theatres across the country.

Cosby is often asked, 'What are you going to do with your doctorate?"

"People think it must be good for something, like taking it to the drugstore and turning it in for toothpaste," he said.

"I don't know what I'm going to do with it. Already I've had enough reward in hearing my mother say with tears on her face, 'Thank heaven he's got something to fall back on.'"

Movies

Savage Season, on 13 at noon. No rating available on this 1970 adventure drama about a search for a fortune in platinum, starring Ron Harper, Diane McBaim and Victor Buono.

Three for the Show (xx), on 6 and 8 at 12:45. A lightweight 1955 musical about a Broadway star who believes her first husband dead in the war and marries his best friend. Hubby No. 1 turns up and the mad whirl begins. A good cast includes Betty Grable, Jack Lemmon and Marge and Gower Champion.

Moonrise (xx), on 11 at 1. Dane Clark, Ethel Barrymore and Lloyd Bridges star in this grim and moody 1948 tale of a frenzied young man who tries to hide an accidental murder.

One Million Years B.C. (x), on 5 at 3:30. A 1966 English-made adventure about two cave people vs. prehistoric nature. Raquel Welch is probably the sexiest cave woman ever, but the movie is still silly nonsense and John Richardson, sporting a furry loin cloth, seems to have based his acting techniques on the grunts and groans of pre-historic man before he learned to talk.

Reseanna McCoy (xx), on 7 at 3:30. A trite 1949 melodrama about the legendary feuding hill families of the Hatfields and the McCoys, starring Farley Granger, Joan Evans, Raymond Massey and Richard Basehart.

Satan Never Sleeps (x), on 11 at 8. The acting talents of William Holden and Clifton Webb are wasted in this banal 1962 drama about two priests who perilously oppose the Chinese Reds when they take over their mission. The film was intended to be anti-Communist but it's so poorly done, it could have the opposite effect.

Dollars for a Fast Gun (x), on 13 at 8. Routine 1968 Italian-made western about a young widow who tries to break a rancher's control over the county water supply. Robert Hundar and Pamela Tudor star.

Skyway to Death, on 8 at 8:30. Bobby Sherman, Joseph Campanella and Stefanie Powers star in this 1974 made-for-TV drama about an aerial rescue attempt of passengers trapped thousands of feet in the air in a stuck tramway. Hampering the rescue attempt is a dangerous, impending wind storm.

The Little House on the Prairie (xxx), on 5 at 9. In the tradition of The Waltons, this 1974 TV adaptation of Laura Ingall's novel about his family's adventure-filled life on the Kansas frontier, has been made into a series to be premiered this fall. The movie was directed by Michael Landon (Bonanza) who also has a small role.

Istanbul Express (xx), on 7 at 9. A 1968 low-budget espionage thriller about a secret agent who tangles with assassins, bombs and beautiful women. Cast includes Gene Barry, Senta Berger and John Saxon.

Desire Under the Elms (xx), on 12 at 9. A 1958 film rendering of Eugene O'Neill's play about family passions and hatreds in 19th century New England, starring Sophia Loren, Anthony Perkins and Burl Ives. The movie, unfortunately, misses something in its transference to the screen.

Follow That Dream (xx), on 12 at 11:20. A 1962 comedy strictly for Elvis Presley fans as he sings, drawls and gets into plenty of trouble in this story about a group of hillbilly homesteaders who settle in a small Florida town.

Curse of the Undead (x) 7 at 11:45. A 1959 horror-western about a mysterious gunman who turns out to be a vampire. Eric Fleming and Kathleen Crowley star.

The Sergeant (xxx), on 2 at midnight. A brilliant performance by Rod Steiger highlights this complex drama about repressed homosexuality in the peacetime Army, and of one sergeant whose physical attraction to a handsome private (John Philip Law) proves his downfall. Filmed in 1968 by John Flynn in a promising directorial debut.

Skyway to Death, on 6 at midnight. (See earlier for details of this movie.)

Invasion of the Animal People (x), on 8 at midnight. A low-budget 1962 science-fiction thriller.

The Spider (x), on 7 at 1:30. Another low-budget sci-fi thriller, about a giant insect that terrorizes a small community.

The D.A.: Murder One (xxx), on 8 at 1:45. An excellent cast highlights this well-made 1969 crime-drama about a deputy DA fighting against time to trap an attractive nurse suspected of murder. The DA's are played by Robert Conrad and Howard Duff and the capable supporting cast includes Diane Baker, J. D. Cannon, David Opatoshu and Gerald O'Loughlin.

Ideas Ends With Jazz

CBC Radio's Ideas series which goes off the AM network at the end of September, sings its swan song in jazz, with excerpts from its immensely successful FM series on Universal Jazz.

Ideas will be leaving the AM air waves to make way for new variety programming, but listeners in CBC-FM areas can still catch the thought-provoking series weeknights at 10:03 p.m.

In the final AM series, Aug. 26-Sept. 30, 11:03 p.m., six programs will tell the history and development of jazz from the drum beats in Africa to the jazz in modern-day concert halls. The programs provide views of the music itself by the people who make it, record it, and criticize it. The music is seen as a social force, and the anatomy of jazz as a music form is also examined.

When the series was first heard in January, Joan Irwin of the Montreal Star raved that "CBC-FM launches terrific jazz series." Even before the 15 shows hit the air waves, word had spread so quickly that tapes were requested for the archives of Rutgers Institute of Jazz Studies, Tulane University, and the Smithsonian Institute, Washington, D.C. The series was the first one of this length and nature ever in the history of broadcasting.

Alan Offstein of the international jazz publication, Coda, wrote that the programs offer "authentic music, colorful language and bare emotion that simply does not appear on any other public media . . . It is this openness . . . that is shocking and historical and unprecedented and valuable about Universal Jazz."

Ideas looks at the origins of jazz Aug. 26, at the improvisatory nature of the music Sept. 2, and at Blues Sept. 16. The series closes with an exclusive interview about Billie Holliday, Sept. 30, recorded last year for CBC Radio, and featuring Carmen McRae and Artie Shaw, who lived and worked with the late singer.
